The Verdict in the S. S. Atlantic Case.

Collector McDonald has given judgment in the Atlantic case. He finds

That the ship was sent to sea with less than thirteen days' coal supply, barely sufficient to carry her across in favorable weather;

That Captain Williams was justified in bearing up for Halifax;

That the ship must have set to the westward, after changing her course, over one knot an hour;

That the conduct of the officers, after the ship struck, seems to be all that could have been demanded of men in their situation;

That, in consequence of the speed of the ship being underrated, and the want of vigilance on the part of the officers on duty, and the neglect to obtain soundings or use the most ordinary precautions that ought to be used in approaching the coast, she would have struck land at about the same time if the current had not set her out of her course;

That there is no way to account for the failure of the officers to see lights than by want of vigilance, as Sanbro, Chebucto, and Devil's Island lights were all in good order that night, Sanbro light having been seen nine and a half miles, the whole weight of the testimony going to show that the night was one in which the light might have been seen in time to prevent the disaster if a vigilant watch had been kept;

That it seems impossible to account for the error in calculating the ship's speed except on the ground of incompetency or carelessness in calculating a log;

"That the conduct of the captain in leaving the deck after midnight seems to me to have been at least imprudent, and calculated to create the impression on the minds of the officers on duty that they were not so near land as to make extra vigilance imperative";

That the failure to cast the lead, although in soundings eight hours, "is a neglect of duty for which there can be possibly no excuse"; and

That "from a careful review of all the facts of the case, I feel compelled to state my belief that the conduct of Captain Williams in the management of his ship during the 12 or 14 hours preceding the disaster was so gravely at variance with what ought to have been the conduct of a man placed in his responsible position as to call for severe censure, and to justify me in saying that his certificate as Extra Master and Master might be cancelled; but, in consideration of the praiseworthy and energetic efforts made by him to save life after the ship struck, the mitigated penalty of suspension of certificate for two years should be imposed. I also feel it my duty to state that the conduct of Mr. Brown, the 4th officer, in preventing the servant from calling Captain Williams at twenty minutes to three, as ordered, was, under the circumstances, an improper violation of the captain's orders, and further, in the fact that he was one of the officers of the watch after 12 o'clock, and ought to have seen the light, but did not see it, and ought to have seen the land, but did not see it, either, there is an implied culpable neglect and want of vigilance, which consideration for the public safety demands should be marked by censure and moderate punishment. I therefore decide that the certificate of Fourth Officer Brown, Master, should be suspended for three months."

This judgment indelibly stains the Captain and his officers with the blood of over half a thousand persons who had entrusted their lives to their keeping. The punishment is so very mild as to show that the Collector wanted to favor Capt. Williams all he could, and yet from his finding there is no escape for the master of the floating tomb. The punishment is ridiculously light. Is there no law under which Captain Williams may be tried and condemned to the gallows? Has he not self respect enough to go down into the cabin of the submerged wreck and stay there with the mangled corpses of the victims of his negligence?

The belief that the Modocs were surrounded and would be "calmly exterminated" in the lava beds has been dispelled by their escape to the mountains.

Three serials are now in course of publication in Littell's Living Age, one by Mrs. Oliphant, one by the author of that charming story "Dorothy Fox," and one by Lord Lytton. The numbers for April 12th and 19th also contain the following noteworthy articles: Natural Theology, Contemporary Review; The Two Fredericks, Quarterly Review; Lord Lytton, Blackwood's Magazine; The First Arctic Expedition to the North west, Contemporary Review; Ultramontanism at home and abroad, Spectator; Germany and the Church of Rome, Pall Mall Gazette; Dr. Francis Lieber, Revue de Drott International; The Liberation of France, Spectator; with poetry and miscellany.

A new form of argument against the Old Catholics is used in the Canton of St. Gaul, Switzerland. A number of young women belonging to Tablat have resolved to banish all young men from society who incline to Old Catholic opinions; not only as they phrase it, will they not marry them, but they will not even dance with them. Such an excommunication is likely to be more effectual than one severely theological; for an earnest Reformer could more readily support the anathema of a priest than see his friends carry off all the pretty girls in a ball-room. It is, of course, to be presumed, that the young ladies of Talbat are desirable partners, as otherwise their defence of orthodoxy would take another and self-mortifying shape.

NOTES AND NEWS.

NOVA SCOTIA.

The house of Mr. Duncan McInnes, Marshy Hope, Antigonish Co., was destroyed by fire about a fortnight ago. Mr. McInnes was away from his house at the time (in the evening) and saved nothing except the clothes on his back. Two women who were in the house were not able to save much of the contents.

The members of "Eastern Star" Lodge, I. O. O. F., Pictou, will celebrate the fifty-fourth anniversary of the Order by a soiree in Mason Hall, on Tuesday, May 1st, this year, as the 26th of April—anniversary day—falls on Saturday. The members of "Fuller Lodge," Stellarton, have decided to celebrate the anniversary by a march, supper and intellectual entertainment, on Saturday the 26th.

A correspondent of the Truro Sun, whose letter is dated Maitland, April 11th, 1873, writes as follows: This place has been visited by Scarlet Fever and Measles during the past winter to an extent, rarely, if ever before, known. Scarcely a family has escaped—in some instances just as they were recovering from one disease they would take the other. About seven per cent. of the children under ten years have died from scarlet fever alone, besides those from other diseases. The average attendance at our schools have been reduced during the last two months fully one-third or 33 per cent. The deaths above mentioned have all taken place within two months.

UNITED STATES.

On Tuesday two small boys were quarrelling together in Portland, Me., when one of them took out his knife and plunged it into the breast of the other, inflicting a very serious wound, which it is feared will prove fatal.

The New York Herald again comes to the rescue of its commissioner in Cuba with a two-page array of full face type and leaded paragraphs which are well calculated to inspire terror in the breasts of the Spaniards.

An interesting bit of gossip is said to be going the rounds in New York touching Mr. James Gordon Bennett, of the Herald. This gentleman, who is now flying about Europe and Northern Africa, is said to cherish a fondness for one of the daughters of Christian IX., of Denmark, and for the purpose of properly paving his way to the haughty old King, he has shrewdly managed the European department of the Herald in order to impress the great influence of his newspaper more firmly upon the old man's mind.

GENERAL.

The actresses' ball which recently took place in Paris was a noble event. It was a case of real charity, the announcement giving notice that the proceeds were to be devoted to the Association for the aid of dramatic artists. This card, together with the tacit understanding that the prettiest actresses in Paris were to be present, of course drew together a large company. There was plenty of beauty, and nothing could be whiter than the shoulders, or blacker than the eyebrows of the fair danseuses, while their cheeks were rosy with a hue for which not even the excitement of the dance could altogether account.

Details of a Desperate Struggle for Life.

NEW YORK, April 16.

The deadly struggle between Mr. Murray, a gas collector of this city, and Dr. Brown, yesterday, makes another startling addition to the city's record of crime. From what can be learned of the affair it appears that Mr. Murray called at the doctor's office with the usual monthly bill. He was admitted to the surgery and there presented his bill. Brown asked him to receipt it and went to the front room, apparently for some money. Murray seated himself at a table, with his back to the door opening from the room into the hall. A newspaper package, containing between $500 and $600 in money, the proceeds of his day's collection, he laid on the table while he began to fill out the receipt for the doctor. While Murray was writing the doctor stepped to the door, and closing it sprung the night latch. He then glided stealthily behind Murray, and with the hatchet dealt him a blow on the back of the neck, at the same time trying to grasp the money on the table. Murray cried out and tried to rise. As he was getting up the doctor struck him on the head. By this time Murray had gained his feet and was facing the doctor. The blade of the knife in the hatchet handle had snapped off at the second blow, and the doctor finding this weapon useless threw it to the floor. Then thrusting his hand into the breast of his coat he drew forth a heavy hatchet and prepared to renew the assault. Murray, seeing that it was the intention of the doctor to kill him, closed with his assailant, and then ensued a desperate struggle for the possession of the hatchet. Murray, although faint from the loss of blood, proved more than a match for the doctor. By a desperate effort he wrenched the hatchet from his grasp, and in turn dealt the doctor a tremendous blow, knocking him down. In the struggle the package of money which Murray had in his hand became scattered on the floor. Murray, suspecting that the doctor might have confederates in the room, ran to the door and tried to open it, but found it locked. Then turning to the doctor he raised the hatchet, which he still held in his hand, and said: "If you attempt to get up from where you are I will kill you, you old scoundrel." The doctor then denied having attacked Murray, and said that it was another man who struck him. Murray then broke the lock off the door and called in an officer, who arrested Brown. Mr. Murray was covered with blood. The blow of the hatchet on the arm had cut through his coat and shirt, and several deep gashes were found upon his body. The wounds, altho' of a very serious character, are not considered dangerous, and but little doubt is felt by the physicians of Murray's early recovery. Dr. Brown, it is said, bears an unenviable reputation. He is an advertising empiric, and is 66 years old, and said by his neighbors to be very quarrelsome. His business has been several times broken up by the police, but he renewed operations under other names. When arrested he stoutly denied having made the assault, saying that a young man had entered the office with Murray and had knocked him down. Brown's story is not credited, however, and it is believed that he intended to murder Murray and make off with his money. Mr. Murray has been in the employ of the Gas Company eleven years. From childhood he has lived in Williamsburg, and is well known and respected. Brown has been committed to await the result of Murray's injuries.

The Somnambulistic Murderer.

An investigation into the circumstances connected with the terrible assault upon the boy John Emerson, at Candia, N. H., on Monday night, has as yet failed to dispel the mystery in which the affair is enveloped. It now appears that the boy Emerson may recover, though he is yet in a critical condition. The Fitz boy who is suspected of having committed the murderous assault has been taken to his home in Lowell, and says he knows nothing of the affair, and the papers and all intelligence bearing directly upon it, are withheld from him. A close and searching investigation of all the clothing he had on that day, and at any other time, does not show blood, and but little beyond the merest suspicion points him out as the criminal. He is described as a very intelligent lad and orderly in his behavior. He is sixteen years of age, and has been very studious with his books, as well as being an accomplished musician. He is a professor of religion of the Methodist faith, and so very devoted at times heretofore that he has appeared somewhat gloomy, and about two months ago a physician was consulted, who advised that he refrain from his studies and go into the country for recreation, hence his visit to Candia. He has been in the habit of getting up in his sleep and roaming about the house, but has never done any harm other than to hide things away. The parents of the boy are persons of the highest respectability and are anxious to do all in their power to aid in the investigation. An examination of the premises where the assault was committed shows, it is said, that the boy Fitz did not sleep in the room where it was supposed he was fastened that night, but was concealed in the kitchen below until the assault, and was very soon afterwards found in the bed, pretending to be asleep, and it was discovered that the fastening of the room had been removed from the outside.

A Financial Panic.

Wall street, New York, was the scene of great excitement Wednesday, amounting at one time to a panic. Money was scarce and dearer all day, distress among borrowers during the afternoon being exceptionally severe. This resulted in a general demoralization, and caused a decline in values, very decided in some cases. The pressure was felt particularly on the Stock Exchange. Toward noon a rally took place, but the improvement did not last, and at the second board there was another break under a frantic pressure to sell, which carried the price down from one to nearly eight per cent. This was caused by reports that some stock houses were in trouble. In the midst of the excitement it was announced that Barton & Allen had failed. The street staggered like a drunken man under the unexpected blow. Mr. Barton is a nephew of Commodore Vanderbilt, and the house does most of his stock business. They were regarded as the strongest parties on the street, and able to withstand any financial crisis. A regular panic ensued, especially in those stocks in which the firm was supposed to be most deeply interested. Barton & Allen's liabilities are $2,000,000. The other failures positively known are Mr. Otis and Mr. Foster, both prominent members of the Stock Exchange. Many other brokers have lost heavily. Over $1,500,000 will accrue to the shorts by the day's operations. The corridors of the Fifth Avenue Hotel were crowded at night with excited brokers.

A Horrible Outrage.

The Augusta, Arkansas, Bulletin publishes a letter from Thomas Warren of Union county, Arkansas, giving an account of a horrible outrage, ending in the murder of a white woman by a negro in that county. A few weeks ago a married woman went to a neighbor's house to remain several days, but found no one at home and started to return, when the negro stopped her horse, took her off and drove, pushed and pulled her eight miles into bottom lands, where he tied her to a tree and ravished her, keeping her there for three days. On the second day, while still tied to a tree, she gave birth to a child. On the third day the husband not finding her at the neighbor's, but discovering her horse where the negro left it tied, collected some of his friends and began the search, which resulted in finding her dead body tied to the tree, the negro having murdered her by blows upon the head with a club. The murderer was soon afterwards captured by a party of negroes who were assisting in the search, and at the husband's request the negroes built two log heaps and setting them on fire placed the negro between them. They were twenty-four hours burning him, and at intervals subjecting him to horrible torture, such as cutting off his toes and strips from his body. There were three other negroes concerned in ravishing the woman. They were subsequently caught and shot.

A Choice Bit of Scandal.

Brooklyn, N. Y., is excited over a choice bit of scandal, involving the reputation of Mr. Thomas Kinsella, an ex-M. C., member of the Board of Education, and editor of the Brooklyn Eagle, and Mrs. Thomas Fields, wife of the Superintendent of Public Schools of that city. The story goes that Wednesday afternoon Mr. Kinsella drove out with Mrs. Fields on the Cony Island road and stopped for luncheon at Capt. Olmstead's public house. Soon after Mrs. Kinsella, who had followed them, drove up, and springing from her wagon, furiously assaulted Mrs. Fields with her fists, stigmatizing her as a strumpet, and calling upon the astonished spectators to witness that her husband had deserted her and their ten children for Mrs. Fields's company. The latter fled in confusion, and entering a carriage, was rapidly driven off. Mr. Kinsella endeavored to calm his irate spouse and finally succeeded in inducing her to go home with him. The high standing of all the parties gives to the affair the greatest local importance and it was the chief topic of conversation on all sides.

The Anglin Condemnation.

The conclusion of the debate in Parliament on the resolution condemning Mr. Anglin is on the first page.

Brevities.

The first male child born on Grand Manan, Mr. Moses Cheney, is dead.

Miss Annie Louise Cary, with whom a barrister and a physician fell desperately in love during her visit to St. John, had a benefit concert in Portland, Me., Tuesday night, that yielded her over $1000.

Ball Playing on the Sabbath.

It has been the common practice of a number of boys, for some Sundays past, to play ball on Crown street, and, when remonstrated with, to use very insulting language. Persons residing in the vicinity have put up with this desecration of the Sabbath until they think it about time the police interfered. All other means having failed, probably their interference will prove effectual.

Visit of Firemen.

It is stated that a number of the members of the Boston Fire Department intend visiting the Maritime Provinces about the first of June. They will come by rail, staying a day or two at Bangor, visiting St. John, and then proceeding to Halifax. They will be accompanied by a portion of Gilmore's Band, and no doubt our Fire Department will be prepared to give them a good reception. They gave such a good account of themselves at the great fire that they must be a fine body of men, and deserve a good reception.

Union Street Church Soiree.

A very pleasant social re-union was held in the Union street Congregational Church last evening. The large vestry was well filled with ladies and gentlemen, who seemed bound to enjoy themselves. Mr. John Boyd read several pieces mostly of a comic character which were suited to the entertainment. A. Rowan, Esq., attempted to read but the audience at that time had been nearly a half an hour listening to music and readings, the night was waning and there was a large amount of flirting to be done. He seeing this laughingly closed his book to allow free scope to mirth and eating. For at one end of the room were refreshment tables which were well patronized by those present. Mr. Boyd used his persuasive powers, and Miss Hartt who had not intended to sing sent home for her music and favored the audience with several nice selections. Mrs. Blanchard and Mr. George H. Clark also sang several pieces all of which were appreciated by those present. The affair was social in every sense of the word, and there was not the slightest restraint on any present. About 11 o'clock the guests departed, all being well pleased with the few hours spent with their friends in Union street.

Entertainment in Carleton.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Lanergan gave one of their very pleasant parlor entertainments last evening in the City Hall, Carleton. The Band of the 62nd left their room in the Customs building about 7 o'clock, went to Carleton and during the evening played some very choice selections. The performance was in every way first-class, and satisfied the select but small audience who were present.

A Breakdown.

A countryman with a load of lumber on his cart came to grief this morning on King Square. In turning the corner one of the wheels of his wagon was caught by the end of the stone-crossing, which completely demolished it. Some little time was spent in getting a new wheel and putting it on his vehicle, and then he proceeded on his way cursing stone-crossings.

Grand Division S. of T.

The Grand Division will meet in St. Andrews Wednesday next. The City of St. John carries members there and back for one fare.

Another Music Union Concert.

ST. JOHN, April 19, 1873.

To the Editor of the Tribune.

SIR: It seems to be the very general verdict of those who attended the last concert of the Music Union in the Academy of Music, that it was the best local entertainment of the year. Expressions of gratification and approbation have been heard continually on our streets since Thursday evening, and many who were unable to attend now desire an opportunity of listening to a fourth concert. A full house could confidently be expected by the managers. This is the wish of a large number of LOVERS OF MUSIC.

Shipping Notes.

The ship Eliza Everett (of Windsor, N. S.) Dennis, master, at New York 16th inst., from Middlesboro 42 days, with railroad iron, reports: Took the middle passage, and had a succession of W. and N. W. gales from lon. 30 to lon. 36; from thence variable weather; lost and split sails; had been 11 days west of the banks; on the 31st ult., lat. 41 20, lon. 49, passed ship Edgar, from Savanah for Reval.

The bark Kate Crosby (of Yarmouth, N. S.) Hibbert, master, at New York 16th inst. from Middlesboro 48 days, reports: Took the northern passage and had a continuation of westerly gales; been 13 days west of the Banks; March 28, Thomas Jones, seaman, a native of Manchester, Eng., aged 19 years, fell from the spencer boom overboard and was drowned: March 26, lat. 43, lon. 43, W, had a gale from N. W., lasting for 36 hours, in which shifted cargo between decks and carried away six stanchions.

Loss of bark Glenalladail of Halifax.—The bark Freeman Dennis, Abbott, master, at New York 16th inst., from Amsterdam 40 days, reports: Had moderate weather to March 22, then up to April 1 had strong S. W. and N. W. gales; March 25 had a fearful hurricane, with heavy thunder and lightning, beginning at S. S. E. and hauling to W. and N. W., lasting to the 27th, with heavy cross sea; April 3, lat. 47 50, lon. 47 30, passed several icebergs; since crossing the Banks had fine weather; March 22, lat. 50 30 N. lon. 33 27 W., fell in with bark Glenalladail, (of Pictou, N. S.,) Captain McArthur, from Halifax, N. S., for Liverpool, lumber laden, water logged, foremast and bowsprit and rudder gone, afterdeck stove in and hatches washed off; vessel unmanageable, having been so for 15 days; launched a boat and took Captain and crew off after making three trips with the boat, there being a fresh gale and heavy sea running at the time, and brought them to New York. Captain McArthur, for himself and crew, desires to return thanks to Captain Abbott, and Mr. Calvert, chief mate, of the Freeman Dennis, for the kindness shown to them while on board their vessel.

The brig Julia Blake (of Parrsboro, N. S.), Gavin, master, at New York 15th inst., from Trinidad, Cuba, reports: Had fine weather up to Hatteras; thence 8 days, with heavy N. and N. W. gales. April 2, during a calm, drifted ashore on Sancho Pardo Reef, and was obliged to throw overboard part of the cargo to lighten the vessel before getting off; same time lost an anchor and 30 fathoms of chain.

The brig Lone Star (of Yarmouth, N.S.), Kennedy, master, from London, while lying at anchor in the stream at Fall River on the 14th inst., was run into by schooner Thomas Borden (of Fall River), Allen, Philadelphia, carrring away the brig's topgallantmast, mainrail, chainplates, &c. The Thomas Borden carried away her foretopmast, jibboom and all head gear. The brig had her lights burning brightly all the time.

City Police Court.

Samuel Doughty and William Robb were charged with scuffling and wrestling on the Ferry floats to the annoyance of passengers by the boat; fined $4 each.

Margaret Oliver alias Scott was yesterday arrested on information of Margaret Trenholm on a charge of keeping a house of ill-fame. This morning at 10 o'clock Mrs. Oliver was brought to the Police Office and her examination commenced. She came into Court dressed in a waterproof mantle and fur cap, accompanied by her young daughter. The Magistrate sent the little girl from the room while the examination was going on. John Kerr, Esq., appeared for Mrs. Oliver. On the charge being read over to her she pleaded not guilty.

Margaret Trenholm was the first witness, her testimony was—I am a married woman, know the prisoner, she lives in Queen street. I have known Mrs. Oliver for some time, have been with her about two months. When I first went to the house I found Mrs. Oliver, her daughter about fourteen years of age, Sarah Bra... ley and Clara Golding; no men lived in the house. Saw a great many men both married and single in the house drinking; generally came from 7.30 to 11.30 p. m. and left at daylight in the morning. They spent the time drinking and going up stairs with the girls. For the use of a room they always paid Mrs. Oliver $1 for a little while or $2 for a night. Afterwards two girls from Portland, Me., Addie Clark and Annie Brown came. I have waited on them in the bed-room, taking towels and water. This has been going on day and night since I have been there. Have seen the men and women in bed. Mrs. Oliver sold liquor and swearing, drinking, dancing and music were kept up all night. Her daughter and Addie Clark, played on the piano. ... left on Thursday, have tried several times to leave before, but Mrs. Oliver always prevented me, by hiding my clothes.

Cross-examined—I am a married woman, my husband lives in Lowell. I have been with my parents in St. John for the past three years, and was enticed away from my home by the prisoner and a young man. After a number of questions the girl confessed the life she had led and appeared really sorry for what she had done, and told a very strange story of how she had been taken into the house, through the intrigues of a man and Mrs. Oliver. She said she paid Mrs. Oliver $9 a week for her board while there. This concluded the examination of this witness. The magistrate advised her, now that she had made this humiliating confession, to reform, which, with tears, she promised to do.

John Kerr, Esq., asked the magistrate if he would accept bail for the prisoner's appearance on Monday, which was refused, and the prisoner was remanded until Monday.
