

difficulty and opposition risked all, even life itself, for what they thought was right. We think also of the world's great mass of humanity who toiled unhonoured and unsung but who, by their Faithful Labours, laid the foundations of Empire, of whom the poet says:-

" Perhaps in this neglected spot is laid;

Some hearts once pregnant with Celestial fire;

Hands that the rod of Empire might have swayed,

Or waked to ecstasy the Living Lyre."

As we think of these heroes of Faith in the past, our souls are inspired by what they did, by how they lived and for what they died.

To-day's Need:-

But in the time through which we now are passing the world needs men of even greater Faith than ever before.

In International relations has there ever been a time in the History of the world when the relationships between the nations were so uncertain, so tense and delicate, as during the past few months? There were times when anything might have happened over-night. Only the men who are close to the center of things knew the dangers through which we have passed. New relationships had to be faced and are being faced almost every day. And these are fraught with so many difficulties. The world seems to be moving to a new order, BUT like the Israelites there is the Red Sea to cross. And it is only by the men who have Faith in God can the world be guided aright; men of steady, calm and discerning Faith in
