A Revival of Roque.

An outdoor game for old men has showed a marked revival in popularity, this year in the United States. Roque is its mame, and it is interesting and gentle. Croquet is the parent of the word roque. Take away from the term croquet its first letter and its last, and the term roque remains. In like mamner, take away from the game of croquet its foolishness and its inaccuracies, and the game of roque is left, say the roque experts.

Roque is a game as scientific as billiards, but its rules resemble croquet's rules. There is a peg, like a croquet peg, at each end of the court; there are nine wickets, like croquet wickets, set in a regular croquetilke pattern; there are balls to shoot through the wickets; just as in croquet, and there are mallets; like croquet mallets, wherewith to hit these balls. But the roque court is as firm and smooth as a billiard table, and its boundaries are of rubber, so that balls may carom from them as from a billiard-table's cushions. The balls themselves are solid rubber. The wickets, of bright steel, are only one-quarter of an inch broader at their base than the balls that must be shot through them. The short mallets are tipped with rubber and bound with brass or silver, and the material used in their making is rosewood or Turkish boxwood or lignum vitae or amaranth.

Roque, in a word, is croquet, but croquet perfected, croquet made scientific. Rare is the skill that its disciples acquire, and admirable are the improvements that the game makes in their quire, and admirable are the improve-ments that the game makes in their health.

It is interesting to consider the care with which a roque court is made. The soil first is dug out to a level about two feet first is dug out to a level about two feet below the one which the court will ultimately have. A base is then made of big stones and cinders, and on this base layers of smaller and smaller stones are set, until finally there is a top layer of fine gravel. The gravel is covered with a four-inch coat of richest, purest clay, and after this has been mathematically levelled, and rolled to a bricklike firmness, it is sanded with a tiny sifting of white sea sand. The court's dimensions are seventy-two by thirty-six feet, and its bouncaries of wood have rubber are seventy-two by thirty-six feet, and its boundaries of wood have rubber cushions, shaped like pool or billiard-table cushions, which present to the ball a sharp edge, so that it will rebound from them briskly. The court is rolled daily, first with a heavy, and afterward with a light, roller. It is daily watered and sanded, and after every game the ground about the wickets is lewith a pinewood levelling board.

Fireflies for Sale.

In Japan there are established firms

In Japan there are established firms of firefly dealers, each employing sixty or seventy catchers, and exporting their catch chiefly to the large cities where fireflies are in adjunct to all grades of social festivity, from the private garden parties of nobles to an evening at a cheap tea-garden. Sometimes they are kept caged, sometimes released in swarms in presence of the guests.

The firefly-hunter starts forth at sun set with a long bomboo pole and a bag of mosquito-netting. On reaching a suitable growth of willows near water, he make ready his net and strikes the branches, winkling with the insects, with his pole. This jars them to the ground, where they are easily gathered up. But it must be lone very rapidly, before they recover themselves enough to fly. So the skilled catcher, sparing no time to put them at once into the bag, uses both hands to pick them up, and tosses them lightly into his mouth, where he holds them unharmed till he can hold no more, and only then transfers them to the bag.

He works thus till about two 'clock in the morning, when the insects leave, the trees for the dewy soil. He then hanges his method. He brushes the surface of the ground with a light broom to startle the insects into light; then his been known to gather three thousand in a night.

Besides being a business, firefly-catching is a sport. Little girls pursue if

A collision has occurred.

The driver of the motor applies his brake and comes to a full stop and an easy, half-turned attitude of interrogation.

The companion of the injured pedes-trian stoops over the insensible form and makes a brief yet searching examination.

Then, cap in hand, he approaches the vibrating car, and simply says:

"On behalf of my friend, who has dislocated his vertebrae, fractured his tibia, sprained his ankle, and is evidently suifering from concussion of the brain, I beg to offer you my humble apologies."

And the motorist, with a haughty inclination of the head, accepts the explanation and immediately proceeds to resurge on his wild career.

For such is the rule of the road.

Sympathetic.

Young wife (rather nervously)—Oh, sook, I must really speak to you. Your master is always complaining. One Cay it is the soup, the second day it is the fish, the third day it is the joint—in fact, it's always something or other. Cook (with ferling)—Well, mum, I'm truly sorry for you. It must be quite hawful to live with a gentleman of that sort—"Punch."

SKIN AND BLOOD PURIFICATION

Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Resolvent

Cleanse the Skin. Scalp and Blood

Of Torturing, Disfiguring Humours with Loss of Hair

WHEN ALL ELSE FAILS

Thousands of the world's best people have found instant relief and speedy cure by the use of Cuticura Resolvent, Ointment and Soap in the most torturing and disfiguring of itching, burning and scaly humours, eczemas, rashes, itchings and inflammations.

Thousands of tired, fretted mothers, of skin-tortured and disfigured ers, of skin-tortured and disfigured bables, of all ages and conditions, have certified to almost miraculous cures by the Caticura remedies when the best medical skill had falled to relieve, much less cure.

Cuticura Treatment is local and constitutional—complete and perfect, pure, sweet and wholesome. Bathe the affected surfaces with Cuticura Soap and hot water to cleanse the skin of crusts and scales and soften the thickened cuticle, dry without hard rubbing, and apply Cuticura Ointment freely to allay itching, irritation and inflammation, and soothe and heal, and lastly take Cuticura Resolvent to cool and cleanse the blood, and put every function in a state of healthy activity.

take Cutteura Resolvent to cool and cleanse the blood, and put every function in a state of healthy activity.

More great cures of simple, scrofulous and hereditary humours are daily made by Cutteura remedies than by all other blood and skin remedies combined, a single set being often sufficient to cure the most distressing cases when all else falls.

Our affections are for life. We live by these they sing an old folk-rhyme as they follow they glistening insects:

"Firefly, come! firefly, come! with your lantern-light,"

All the boys of Seiki are wanting you to-night."

Nor do the elders disdain to join the sport. They also organize festival parties to visit certain spots, long known and famous, to witness the beautiful spectacles of the fireflies swarming. Special trains, carrying thousands of visit ors, are run during the season to Uji, the most renowned, to behold the Hotara-Kassen, or Firefly Battle.

Myriads of fireflies hovering over a gentle river so swarm and eling together that they appear at one time like a gent ball of sparks. Cloud or ball, the wonder soon breaks, and thousands of the fallen insects drift with the stream, while new swarms form, reform and sparkle continuously above the water. So marvellous is the sight that a Japanese poet wrote:

It was time to forget my own by gone love affairs and take, or profess to take, the keenest interest in other people's. But (sotto voce) are they ever really forgotten? Some mind pictures the mist of years falls to dim. Better so; we would often be lonely enough if it were not thus.

A tellow hears so much nowadays of the Great Dominion—anyway, out we came, and after some touring found ourselves on a island in the Georgian Bay, employing its refreshing breezes.

which I already knew, for I was all anxiety to get to the "coup d'etat" of the story.

"Yes," he resumed, "I was awfully hard hit. There is a fatality in these things. Some men can stop and put on the 'drag whenever they choose—back out of the field—but I—well! In spite of being formally betrothed since my boyhood to an English girl I liked in a lukewarm, sisterly way, I flung prudence, everything, to the winds and determined to lay my heart and hand at her feet. I say flung prudence, because a certain irascible old uncle whose heir I was supposed to be was set upon the match, Miss Conyers being a ward of his. Then she possessed a sung little lortune of her own, not the least of her attractions in his eyes. I notice moneyed folk love to attract more.

"What was she like? Oh! well, yes, beautiful in her 'splendidly null' way—cold, precise—why, man aliver she never made my heart jump into my mouth at her presence, however near. A glance from her pale blue eyes failed to make me feel anything except that maybe I wanted to throw sin extra log on the fire. Finally, she had not made me 'fall in love with her."

"Just so," I murmured. "But it seems to me you found all that out pretty late in the day."

"Just so," he murmured between the whills of his cigar. "But a far-strained sense of honor wasn't going to make me

Dear Sirs.—A few days ago I was taken with a severe pain and contraction of the cords of my leg, and had to be taken home in a rig. I could not sleep for pain and was unable to put my foot to the floor. When I returned she was sitting on a rocking-chair, away by herself, on the verandah. The moon had vanished discreetly behind a cloud, but I could see the soft outline of her face. She stooped and whispered, oh! so softly, while she groped about, as if searching for something. Where can it be? 'Have you lost anything?' I asked, stooping also My hand touched hers. Positively refused to be introduced to the 'designing American minx, though I could see he was impressed by her beauty and attractiveness. So matters were at a standstill, when one fine morning a lot of us set off with rod and worm. He, being a keen fisher, could not refrain from joining us. While standing on a slippery rock, he hooked a huge bass, and at the very moment of playing it he was selzed with his old enemy lumbago. We hurried him off to get into dry togs, but not before he had confided to me that I might marry the minx and welcome, with his blessing, "for Gad!' he added with a chuckle, "she landed my fish for me. So I can't and won't stand in the way of her landing hers."

Infant Marriages.

According to a recent census repost 13 boys and 187 girls under one year (A age were marri d in India during a single year. The record during the same year for marriages of children under five years was 2,297 for boys, and 3,544 for girls. As a consequence of this state of affairs there were, at the time the census was taken, twenty-two widowers and twenty-seven widows less than a year old, and some 300 less than five years old. The evil results of this system have been so extreme and alarming among certain of the Hindu castes that a bill has lately been drafted in the Province of Baroda which limits the marriageable age at eighteen years for boys and fourteen for girls.

The far-reaching results of the visit can readily be imagined. "Good evening," said the elderly woman, approaching the steps. "I see you are enjoying the fresh air. It's a luxury to be able to sit outside again, isn't it?"

"It is plea ant," responded the woman who was sitting on the front steps.

"I don't believe you know me. I am Mrs. Baxter, your neighbor, two doors off. No, don't get up. 'Pl just sit down here beside you. Don't say a word now. I have intended to call ever since you moved in, but you know how it is. There's always something. And when I saw you come out and sit down I said to my husband, 'I'm just going to run over right now. If she thinks I'm informal, I don't mind, because I am informal, I always was.' And he just laughed and told me to go ahead. He says he thinks he met your husband some years ago. How do you like your house? You needn't tell me, though, for I hardly suppose you've got used to it yet, and it's so discouraging getting settled; and then I saw Mrs. Thomas, your next-door neighbor on the other side, a day or two ago, and she tells me that you've been having awful trouble getting a servant. You needn't say anything. I know exactly what it is. I don't know what the girls are coming to. They don't seem to want to work, and they're most of them worthless when you do get one.
