DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS CURED HIS CHRONIC SORE BACK.

M. J. Morrison had suffered for thirty-five years, but got Prompt and Permanent Relief. Tarbot Vale, Victoria Co., N. S.

Oct. 14 (Special)—Those who have not used Dodd's Kidney Pills, and who would like to enquire as to their value as a kidney remedy, can get valuable information from Mr. M. J. Morrison, the postmaster here.

"I had been suffering from sore back for over thirty-five years, but after taking the first box of Dodd's Kidney Pills I have never had a moment's pain in my back," he says.

"Dodd's Kidney Pills are an invaluable remedy for sore back, especially if the kidneys are affected."

It is because his kidneys were affected that the postmaster got such prompt and permanent relief by using Dodd's Kidney Pills. They are a kidney remedy. Acting directly on the kidneys, they put those important organs in condition to do their full work of straining all the impurities, all the seeds of disease out of the blood.

It is because of this removing of the cause of disease that they have given such splendid results in treating rheumatism, dropsy, heart disease, gravel, diabetes and Bright's disease. Ask your neighbors about Dodd's Kidney Pills.

The War Gardens Are Proved Success

By E. M. GOODMAN

Special Correspondent of the Detroit Free Press

In 1917, when England had a food reserve sufficient for only a few weeks, and Germany was sinking shiploads of meat and grain faster than the world's shipyards could build the ships or the world's farmers replace the food, the Women's Land Army of Britain played its great part in the effort to make England self-sufficient for food, and women crowded into the shipyards to do work which, through the centuries that England has been a sea-faring nation they never attempted. They helped to build food ships, they worked on steel warships and cruisers to convey them. This we know, but we have waited a year to know that Scottish fishermen also did navy work at a new navy base. They did," Mr. Kellaway, a Scottish member of Parliament, now tells us, "the heaviest of the blast furnace and excavation work."

But these proud deeds were not for the many. Yet, women who could not do this work were not content to sit idle and see their country starve. It is true, no one talked of starvation but London streets were full of women and children waiting outside shops in long lines for the chance of buying a few pounds of potatoes. The winter had been very long. It was nearly as cold as Christmas. It looked as though nothing would ever grow again and yet we know that the best time had already gone by for making preparations for a harvest on which so much depended. Here comes in the story of allotments—war gardens—a story of little efforts by people who did not know how to set about their work. The new allotment holders, or "plotters" as they were called, were not by any means all women, but women formed an ever-larger proportion of them.

Allotments are plots of ground for growing vegetables. Before the war country laborers had them and some suburban artisans and a few eccentric school-masters and college professors. But as a rule no one but farm laborers grew vegetables anywhere but in their own gardens. Townspeople often had no garden at all and often had only a patch of lawn and a little border of flowers. There were less than half a million allotments altogether in 1918, and a good many were neglected.

But when the U-boat campaign threatened us with defeat by starvation half a million more British men and women forgot they were already working harder than ever in their lives before, and made up their mind that if potatoes were not to be bought at shops they would grow them themselves. They got temporary possessors of little pieces of waste rural gardens of empty houses, or building land; they were allowed to dig up parts of public parkways, near or in large towns; they made grounds of golf links, and tennis grounds; they hired pasture land and dug it hastily while there was yet time to get potatoes and sow carrots and turnips, parsnips and beets. They were a comic army of farmers and gardeners, but they "got there."

Red Cross Concert Was Successful

Thanksgiving Musical Evening Given in Bridge St. Methodist Church

A Thanksgiving concert given in Bridge St. Methodist church was a decided success musically. The large Cassavant organ was heard in a number of selections by the organist and accompanied, Mr. Vincent P. Hunt. The public having been removed also enabled the audience to see the skilful manipulation of it.

Rubinstein's "Reve Angeli" of Kamennol-Ostrow as it is sometimes called was a tone picture which was vividly portrayed. The Russian seaside resort, the lapping of the waves, the call to worship of the church bell and the solemn church hymns being brought to the mind.

Several familiar songs such as "Old Black Joe" and "Way Down Upon the Swanee River" were heard in Flagers "Variations on an American Air."

The "Village Harvest Home" and "A Royal Procession" by Spiny were particularly appropriate—the first for Thanksgiving, being the rejoicing of the simple villagers and the second the flourish of trumpets, martial air.

Miss Helen R. Hunt rendered a number of violin selections in a mastery style, all the tones being clear, true and sweet and her memory excellent. Besides those on the programme she played "The Swann" by St. Saens and a Dutch Dance.

Mr. Sam Anglin, B.A. contributed to the success of the evening by singing several selections in his characteristic good style, clarity of tone and crisp pronunciation; the heavier numbers being brilliantly rendered. Verdi's O tu Palermo given in the Italian language being as distinctly pronounced as the English songs. The Invictus by Huhn was also heard to advantage. The other numbers were "In Plaudens Fields" set to music by Walk. "O For a Burst of Song" by F. Alliton and three short numbers, "Sylvia," "Violets" and "Joy of the Morning."

Mr. Hunt accompanied both vocalist and violinist and ably supported in a subdued way the artists.

The audience was regrettably small owing to the epidemic prevailing but Mr. Hunt explained that as the tickets were sold and arrangements completed they decided to give the concert. Another concert will be given on the 26th inst. for Albert College boys overseas, of which there are two hundred and fifty, who will be remembered at Christmas time, and hope the conditions will be such to enable a larger turnout and swell the fund for the brave lads of Albert.

The National Anthem and God Save Our Splendid Men brought an enjoyable evening to a close.

Dr. McCulloch will be at his office 47 Campbell St. every Saturday for consultation on diseases of the eye, ear, nose and throat.

Oshawa's population has now reached 9,748.

Price of Milk Takes a Jump.

Lindsay, Oct. 15.—The Post was informed this morning by local dairymen that at a meeting of the Milk Producers' Association of this locality last night a price was set to milk men equal to Toronto prices. The reason for the increase, the producer stated, was owing to the high cost of feed, etc.

"This means," said the dairymen, "that we will have to get 12 cents a quart in future, commencing with Saturday morning. We can't sell it for anything less. It is 12 cents a quart in Peterboro and Ovilla and 14c, I believe, in Midland."—Post.

Auto Thieves Caught.

Kingston, Oct. 15.—The two men who are suspected of having stolen R. J. Reid's auto last week have been arrested in Cornwall and have been charged with stealing a horse and rig there. The local police were notified and Mr. Reid took out a warrant for their prosecution.

At the same time the man who owned the auto which was stolen from Marmora and which was recovered near Foley's Ferry, was notified, and asked to issue a warrant for them. In the event of the horse stealing charge not being proven the men will be discharged.

Young Girl Struck by Runaway Horse

Cobourg, Oct. 15.—Quite an exciting runaway took place on Monday, at noon, when a horse, belonging to James Morgan, of Baltimore, attached to a buggy, broke loose from the Albion stables. The buggy was damaged getting out of the yard, and in front of the post office one of the wheels came off. The horse continued up King street, and just as it reached the Standard Bank, appeared as if it was going to turn down Second street. Instead it ran between the sidewalk and the town hall, striking Miss Grace Spry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Spry, of Harwood, and rendering her unconscious. She was taken to the hospital, and, in addition to the shock, received a cut on her elbow that required several stitches. The horse continued on to the Armouries, where it was caught. The buggy was slightly damaged.—Sentinel-Star.

War Will be Over By New Year.

New York, Oct. 15.—Betting in the Wall street district on the probable duration of the war was somewhat more active to-day. A customer of James W. Ball & Co., a Wall Street brokerage house, offers to make the following wagers in connection with the war:

He will bet $100 against $1200 that Turkey will sue for peace before Oct. 15, $1000 against $1500 that Austria will suspend hostilities by Thanksgiving Day, and $1000 against $2500 that the war will be over by Jan. 1, 1919.

It is stipulated that any or all of these bets must be made in fourth Liberty Loan bonds.

Dreams

At Shelbyville, Ind., Al Schneider, an automobile repair man, had a dream which caused him to make a flying leap through a window in the bedroom of his house, and attracted a number of neighbors to the scene. Schneider dreamed that he was in an automobile, which was plunging over an embankment, and that to save himself he must jump. He jumped from the "hood" and went through this window. The man suffered deep cuts on his legs, and several stitches were necessary to close the wounds.
