Twelve Hungarians, who have been working in the city for the past number of years, leave tomorrow for their native native land. Included in their number is Gaspar, the foreman of the cities sewer gangs for the past four or five years. These foreigners have evidently a thorough knowledge of the knack of saving money, for between them they are taking some $35,000 of good Canadian currency to their homes across the sea. They may never come back and then again they may, but nevertheless, Brantford will be minus a few thousand dollars to-morrow when they leave.

The men have been employed came, but every one is wondering how they can save so much money in so short a time. Gaspar, the ex-city foreman of the sewer gang is said to have accumulated $11,000.
