THE OLD WIFE.

By the bed the old man, waiting, sat in

"Is it night?" she whispered, waking

(for her spirit seemed to hover
Lost between the next world's sunshine and the bed time cares of this),
And the old man, wesk and tearful,
trembling as he bent above her,
Answered, "Yes."

"Are the children in?" she saked him.

'Are the children in?" she asked him Could be tell her? All the treasures Of their househeld lay in silence many years beneath the snow; But her heart was with them living, back among her toils and pleasures Long ago; nd again she called at dew fall, in the sweet old summer weather, Where is little Charlie, father? Frank and Robert—have they come?"

They are safe," the old man faltered—
"all the children are together, Safe at home."

Then he murmured gentle soothings, but his grief grew strong and stronger, Till it choked and stilled him and he kissed her wrinkled hand.

For her soul, far out of hearing, could his fondest words no longer

Tremol.t Temple. The meetings of the world in Fan use in Fan use

Still the pale lips stammered questions, lullabies and broken verses, Nursery prattle—all the language of a mother's loving heeds, While the midnight round the mourner, left to express' bitter mercies. left to sorrow's bitter mercies, Wrapped it's weeds.

There was stillness on the pillow—and the old man listened lonely—
Till they led him from the chamber, with the burden on his breast,
For the wife of seventy years, his manhood's early love and only,
Law at rest.

It was even so. The springtime in the steps of winter treading,
Scarcely shed its orchard blossoms ere the old man closed his eyes,
And they buried him by Sarah—and they had their "diamond wedding".
