The Thirteenth Century

The Boy With a Backbone

"I say there, boy, want to earn a nickel?" Tommy Tolliver, the new errand boy at the factory, jumped to his feet.

The Lie From Gil Blas

Some weeks ago The Catholic Standard and Times commented upon the flaccid article reprinted by many American dailies...

You're Losing Money

If you do not buy your Piano, Organ or Sewing Machine from Miller Bros. Having no big commission to pay they save you that amount.

Hats and Caps

It is considered by all who know that I have the most up to date hat and cap department in the city. My prices are dead right, that's the reason I'm getting the business.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills

Mr. John O. Yensen, Little Roebuck, N.B., writes: "I was troubled with a stab-like pain through my heart. I tried many remedies, but they seemed to do me more harm than good."

bread steps to the elevator. The elevator boy directed him to the room where "the whole push, president, vice president, secretary and treasurer, are holding an important meeting."

Boldly Tommy knocked at the door, and found himself facing a room full of prosperous-looking men; so prosperous, indeed, in dress that Tommy glanced down with sudden shame at his own shabby garments.

"Well, my boy, what's the trouble?" asked the gentleman who seemed to be at the head of affairs.

"I'm Tommy Tolliver, the new errand boy in the factory," said Tommy, bravely. "I just came yesterday, and the men down there, they say I've got to get this pair of beer or I'll be fired quick. I came up here to find the real boss. Say, is it so? Have I got to carry their beer for them?"

The man looked seriously down into the boy's anxious face as he answered with another question: "Suppose you have? What will you do about it, young man?"

Quick as a flash the answer came back in a respectful but spirited tone: "Do I reckon there ain't but one thing to do, and that's to hunt another job. I'm not going into the beer business for anybody." There was a subdued murmur of applause in the room.

"Well, my boy, neither are we in the beer business, and I think it's about time we had some pretty stiff licks posted up in our building concerning that very thing. What do you say?" he asked, turning to the other gentlemen in the room.

"I suggest that we draft such a notice immediately, have it written out on the typewriter and put a copy in that tap and send it back by this young man. Then the man can't say he didn't bring back a full pail."

Before the day was over notices were pasted all over the building forbidding the use of beer and liquor of all kinds on the premises. Neither did the president forget the new boy in the factory, but when a few weeks later a new office boy was needed in the head office he sent word to the superintendent of the factory that he would like to have "the boy with the backbone" sent up to take the position. And although no name was mentioned, the superintendent smiled a knowing smile and called out loud so that all could hear:

"Tommy Tolliver, the president wants to see you in his office."—Union Signal.

the fathers that the Church has from the beginning insisted on receiving as candidates for her sacred ministry, those only who voluntarily promise to lead single and chaste lives.

"Christ instituted the sacrament of holy orders for the purpose of strengthening the clergy with those special graces necessary for the exercise of the sacred ministry. The few who fall, spare graces, and these doubtless would have spared grace had they been perpetually bound in lawful wedlock to one wife or united for a time to many in a sort of American progressive polygamy. Sound Catholic clergy, whether in France or abroad, are satisfied with their condition of self-imposed chastity. Those who berate their condition are old-time enemies who seek their destruction. The world at large looks nothing from the fact that the priest chooses a single life. The advancement and happiness of the human race consists not so much in the number of individuals as it does in the possession of morality and the enjoyment of higher ideals of perfection.

"Hence in spite of 'Gil Blas' and the devil, the world may depend upon it that the Catholic clergy will go right on in the old way, neither marrying nor permitting themselves to be married, following Christ closer than others, urging sad and weary Christian souls onward and upward."

Our mail order department gives immediate and careful attention to all orders received by mail or telephone. There is no reason why you should not enjoy all the advantages of a large and carefully selected stock. We can do as well for you as any house in Canada.
