The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

This started out to be a very forward spring. I commented most bromidically the other day, "but look how it has wound up. It seems to me as if it were always that way about the spring. Sometimes it starts off like summer instead of spring, and in March and April things are way ahead of the schedule, and then somewhere in May or June we get the cold weather all in a lump, and by the end of June things have gotten back to normal.

"Then other times it starts out cold and people say everything will be terribly behind, and along in May or June comes a long hot spell and even things up.

"Seems to me, on the whole, that for all the to-do they make about early and late spring, that things progress just about the same every year."

The philosopher happened to be present during that long speech.

"Now isn't it possible that it's the same way about lives?" he suggested thoughtfully. "We are always saying what a perfectly happy life some one seems to have, and what a contrast it is to somebody else who has every sort of sorrow and trouble, but in the long run don't things even up pretty thoroughly? Isn't it possible that before the season is over, the pleasant and unpleasant days have balanced pretty well?"

I wonder if he is right.

Of course the Matter-of-fact Person was present, and promptly refuted the philosopher with an example of a woman whom she knew who was over eighty and never had a mite of real trouble in her life, and would have to crowd a lot into the last few years of her life if she were to make up the arrears of stormy weather due her.

"How do you know she never had any trouble, Madame?" inquired the philosopher.

"Know?" indignantly protested the Matter-of-fact Person. "Haven't I lived next door to her all my life and didn't my mother before me, and doesn't everybody know it, anyway?"

"But trouble, Madame, sometimes lies deeper than even next-door neighbours can see," protested the philosopher.

The Matter-of-fact Person sniffed, at philosophers, and the philosopher addressed the rest of his remarks to me.

"I know a man who was mean and low down, and selfish as they make them," he said, "and yet everything he touched prospered, and what most of us call trouble never came to him. But I never had any doubts that he suffered some kind of a punishment inside of himself, even if it was simply his own inability to be decent."

I have an idea that many of the people we think are so perfectly happy are shut out by continual freedom from trouble from an ability of appreciating happiness—and isn't that something of a deprivation?

I wonder if it isn't even true that although we can always see it from the outside, the account of pleasant and unpleasant days is evened up for most of us before the season is over.

I wonder if some of the lives that seem to us so entirely and uninterceptably sunny are not often bleak and dreary inside.

I wonder if Omar, in his reckoning, is right when he says:

I sent my soul through the invisible. Some letter of that After-life to spell; And by and by my soul returned to me. And answered, "I myself am Heaven and Hell."

Shannahan on Old Bachelors.

Thursday evening I strolled up to take in the St. Bonaventure's sports, and as I climbed the hill some queer old thoughts came rushing through my brain. I looked back on my life. Here I was sixty-three years old come the 19th October. I had lived a kind of "put off from day to day" life, thinking 'twas time enough to settle down, till one fine morning I got to find I was bald and as ugly as sin. Men as a rule think when they are young that they can get a girl to marry them any time they wish, but that is a mistake; for life is shorter than you imagine, and you are as old as Buckley's goat and as ugly as old Nick before you realize it. It's only when a fellow like me goes to a place like the sports and finds his neighbor's children grown up nearly to manhood that it dawns on him how lonely he is. You actually envy the man with three or four children. You pretend you don't, but you do just the same. There's a cheap feeling about the old bachelor's life that makes you feel as if everyone hated you, either that or an idea that all hands are out trying to "soak" you good and hard.

Single life is all right while you are young and gay, but when the time comes round when you find gray hairs appearing, a lonesomeness sets in which nearly drives you mad. Young men, take heed! Don't waste your time preaching to yourself that you'll be all right by and bye. Take time by the forelock and fall into line with the thousands of happy benefactors whose delight is to witness their children take part in college sports while the old bachelor puts in his evening puffing a cheap pipe and taking off his hat to girls who despise him.

Castle Wemyss, situated on the "irth of Clyde, where Lord and Lady Inverclyde have been spending a few weeks, is a handsome and imposing house, which was built by the late Sir John Burns. Lord Inverclyde is one of the best-known sportsmen of the North, and besides being a good shot, is an expert at hockey and curling. With one whose fortunes are round up with the sea, it is but natural that he should include yachting in his list of recreations. His ordship tells many good stories, one of his best being connected with a pigeon-shooting match. A party of "mateur pigeon-shooters" some time ago arranged for a match, and ordered thirty pigeons from a dealer in a neighbouring town. The shooting, as of a really wonderful character, but the actual performances need not be described in detail. The net results will be gathered readily from the following note, which was subsequently received from the dealer. It ran: "Gentlemen,—I beg sincerely to thank you for your order, and to intimate that I shall be only too happy to supply you with any number of birds on future occasions of this sort. The whole of the thirty birds, for which you paid me at the rate of eightpence per head, returned home in safety, and, moreover, brought with them a stray pigeon. My price to your party henceforth will be sixpence a dozen."

A BROKEN-DOWN SYSTEM. This is a condition (or disease) to which doctors give many names, but which few of them understand. It is simply weakness—a break-down, a waver of the vital forces that sustain the system. No matter what may be its causes (for they are almost numberless), its symptoms are much the same: the more prominent being sleeplessness, sense of prostration or weariness, depression of spirits and want of energy for all the ordinary affairs of life. Now, what alone is absolutely essential in all such cases is increased vitality—vigour.

VITAL STRENGTH & ENERGY is thus the name of the medicine, and experience proves that as night succeeds the day this may be more certainly secured by a course of the celebrated life-restoring tonic.

THERAPION No. 3 is a new scientific combination. So sure as it is taken in accordance with the printed directions accompanying it, will the shattered health be restored.

THE EXPIRING LAMP OF LIFE LIGHTED UP AFRESH. and a new science imparted in place of what had so lately seemed worn-out, "used up," and valueless. This wonderful medicine is purely vegetable and innocuous, is agreeable to the taste—suitable for all constitutions and conditions, in either sex; and it is difficult to imagine a case of disease or debility, whose main features are those of debility, that will not be speedily and permanently benefited by this never-failing recuperative essence, which is destined to cast into oblivion everything that had preceded it for this life-time and subsequent ones.

THERAPION is sold by Chemists, Druggists, and Grocers. Price in England, 2/6 and 4/6. Purchasers should see that the word "THERAPION" appears on British Empire Patent Stamp in white letters on a red ground affixed to every package by order of His Majesty's High Commission, and without which it is a forgery.

THERAPION may now also be obtained in Dragee (Tasteless) form.

ers, a power she even preserved throughout the voyage, which the prisoners made in a specially constructed iron cage, built amidships. The other prisoners on receiving their rations immediately handed them to Co-Ba for distribution, and she laid down iron regulations for the prisoners' life on board. Her word was always scrupulously respected. When the prisoners landed it was Co-Ba who marched proudly at their head, taking not the slightest notice of the crowds who watched the embarkation of the prisoners on their way to the Isle de Re, in the Bay of Biscay. Fads and Fashions.

Large lace collars are worn. Ribbon embroidered is revived. Plain colored parasols are most liked. Paris insistently holds for the touch of black. The durable pongees are more popular than ever. The newest material for underwear is cross bar dimity. Underwear of cotton crepe is a new fad that will be popular. All-white gloves are worn less than they have been for some time. Scarfs with Persian centres have deep borders in solid colors. Its durability makes percale one of the favorite fabrics for the summer. The newest tailored shirtwaists are made with the yoke in the back. Skirt hems are wider this summer than they were last by a good two inches. The one-seam small Bishop sleeve is the favorite for the tailored waist. Pumps and slippers owe much of their effect to the bows, buckles or rosettes. Cotton voiles are among the most useful materials for simple afternoon frocks. The most popular white footwear this summer will be a high boot or canvas or kid. The Paisley tie is a pretty touch which will add richness to the mid-summer shirtwaist. For evening wear the favourite slipper adornment is a large rhinestone or cut steel buckle. There is a surging revival of the vogue for coin and water-spotted foulard. There is a general inclination toward patterned fabrics as against self-colored materials. Facings of hats may be of velvet or of silk, and while black is most used colors may be used also. Snowy white skirts will dominate every summer resort when the hot weather comes in full force. The big hat of the day and the collarless gown demand that the veil be worn loose and flowing.

A Pirate Queen.

Among a party of thirty-four Anamite pirates and malefactors just brought to Marseilles was one of the wives of the pirate De Tham, who has given the French so much trouble in Indo-China. Co-Ba, as the woman pirate is called, exercised a dominating influence over the pirate king and his follow-
