Mayor Taylor and City Solicitor Meredith arrived home on the C. P. R. about 4 o'clock yesterday from their fruitless mission at Ottawa. Their train had been delayed over four hours and both were thoroughly tired out. Mayor Taylor was seen at his office this morning. The London and Port Stanley Railway Bill, he said, had been defeated by 20 majority in a committee of 100. Had it not been for clause 4, which asked that the city be empowered to sell the road, he felt certain that no objection would have been raised. Both Mr. Hyman and Mr. Meredith had presented their case admirably, while G. T. R. Solicitor Bell pleaded very strongly on the other side, and was backed up by a deputation from St. Thomas, Mr. Bell had urged that the defeat of the bill would be to the interest of the city of London, arguing that there was a year's time before the lapse of the lease, and contending that if a new charter was made out by London in case the application was granted the same privileges might to be accorded as under the present one. Mayor Taylor said he understood Mr. Wainwright, of the G. T. R., had been at the Capital and had probably done some effective canvassing.

England's Relations with France.

London July 10.—In the House of Commons last evening, Mr. Labouchere protested against the attitude of Lord Salisbury toward the Driebund as calculated to irritate France.

Sir James Fergusson, Under Foreign Secretary, said the Government was no party to the Driebund, and was unaware of the terms of that alliance. The entente with Italy to maintain the status quo on the Mediterranean was not hostile to any power. The sympathy and influence of England would be with the powers keeping the peace, and against those breaking the peace. English interests would be chiefly consulted in any concerted action it might be necessary to take to meet unforseen events.
