LAST MOMENTS OF THE POPE; SCENES ABOUT THE BEDSIDE

Pathetic and Impressive Incidents of Leo's Dying Hours.

HIS LAST ACT A BENEDICTION

An Early Conclave of the Cardinals Expected-Opinions of the English Press.

Rome, July 20.-The Pope died shortly after 4 o'clock this afternoon. His last moments were comparatively peaceful and painless, and were preceded by a period of insensibility. Around the bedside at the final moment were the cardinals, the relatives and members of the papal court. Before lapsing into unconsciousness the dying Pontiff feebly moved his lips, his last articulate words being those use in bestowing a benediction. Gradually the shadow of death spread over the Pontiff, his extremities became cold, his features assumed the fixed rigidity of death, and Dr. Lapponi noted his last fluttering heartand slower until they finally stopped.

The news of the Pope's death spread rapidly throughout Rome and caused a most profound sensation. The whole city is in mourning. A large crowd has gathered about the Vatican, but weeping which could no longer be reperfect order prevails there and elsewhere in Rome. The Pope's death agony was short and terminated by a paroxysm of benefits, charities and benedictions. afino Vannutelli intoned the requiem, sorrowing faces of those leaving the amidst the weeping of those present. Then all kissed Pope Leo's hand before leaving the chamber.

secretary of consistory. The whole day was one of continual motion, one distressing scene following after another. When it became known shortly after 4 p.m. that the Pope's journey through the valley of death was almost finished, Cardinal Vannutelli hurried to his bedside, followed shortly afterwards by what is called in Vatican phraseology "the papel secret family," and the "noble family," besides the "personal family," including the late Pope's nephews-Comte Ludovico, Riccardo and Camillo-and also all the cardinals at the Vatican, who afterwards retired to the adjoining library, after they had been allowed to kiss the Pope's hand and pass along, presenting another of those pictures which will live in the memory of all those participating in it. The aged Pontiff was lying unconscious, propped up, to assist him in breathing, one hand laid on the red silk coverlet, the heavy pontifical ring being in danger of falling from the shrunken finger, while the other hand clutched his rosary and crucifix. Though he was entirely unconscious, gleams of intelligence seemed to flicker across the worn face, and the shadow of a smile fell over the the less profound. Everywhere people ence of the death room was the rattle of the arms of the Noble Guard, who were stationed at every door of the Pontiff's private apartments, it being their privilege and right under these circumstances to take possession of the was profoundly impressive. The Pontiff's death having been expected since noon, his deathbed was surrounded by death chamber, some standing, some ment of dissolution. In the ante-chamber had assembled the high ecclesiastics, members of the diplomatic corps and representatives of papal aristocracy awaiting the announcement that final moment had come. Proago, who had to2 be assisted to the Dr. Lapponi, who althe Pope's pulse, felt it grow gradually weaker and weaker, and at the same time the pontiff's extremities began to get cold, his lips became blue, Pope was asked to bless his nephews conclave is unfounded. dered more pronounced by the sur-

The portieres dividing the door were drawn back to the utmost to admit as much air as possible, while the light filtering through the green shades of the window rendered his sunken eyes and shrunken features absolutely ghastly. It was a most solemn moment. The head of the Pontiff, with its white skull cap, no whiter than the fringe of silvery hair, rising above the crimkneeling assemblage being too earnestly absorbed in deep affliction, veneration and weeping to even make a movement. The doctors again examined the dying holy father, and this time they found that he was at the extreme limit of his powers of respiration. His eyes began to become dull time. A contrast is drawn between the unique position the Papacy now holds in international consideration compared with its shatered, discredited position at the time of the death of Piux IX. His vietory over Bismarck is everywhere recalled as the most brilliant example to the trial to be further adjourned until the December sitting.

Old Orchard, Me., July 21. -The gas plant of the Seashore House, one of the largest hotels here, has been working poorly; this summer. Not once has the flow of gas been as plentiful as required, and at times candles were used. Proprietor Staples, who is something of a mechanic, got desperate yesterday and disconnected the parts of the gas machine to find the source of the trouble. Noticing a piece of straw in the joint of the pipe which supplies air to the machine, Mr. Staples followed the pipe and found in it, at an arm's length from the tank inlet, a sparrew's nest which almost cheked the draught. A removal of the nest restored the gas plant to working order.

into the real agony of death, which was recognized by all present kneeling. THE LAST CONSCIOUS ACT.

The last conscious act of the Pontiff was to turn his eyes towards the great crucifix on the wall, after which he suffered from a paroxysm of choking, during which he passed away. Then beats, which gradually became slower the silence of the awe-stricken assemblage was broken by the sonorous, solemn voice of Cardinal Serafino, Vannutelli, the grand penitentiary, intoning the requiem aeternam eternal). The fears of the relations of Miss Murilla Hurkett that she was the young woman drowned at Port Stanley as exclusively reported in last evening's Advertiser, have proved to be true, for the body was identified late yesterday afternoon by her brother and father. The sad news reached the city in the evening, a telephone message to this paper from Coroner Gus-
