LONDON, WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 3.
THE WESTERN FAIR.

Less than a week has passed since a large section of the buildings used by the Western Fair were burned down. It looked like a serious catastrophe. But early Friday morning the directors were on the ground. Before the ashes were cold, men were clearing up the debris. Every available mechanic in the city was engaged. Plans were quickly drafted. Material was requisitioned. Alternate gangs of men were set to work. All day and all through the night the sounds of hammer and axe and saw were heard. The municipal authorities and the board of directors were determined that nothing should prevent the opening of the fair at the usual time.

And they were successful. In a celebration in a neighboring city lately they built a house in a day. That was nothing compared with what London has done. It has put up exhibition buildings in less than a week. This is but a specimen of the energy that has characterized the Western Fair Association since its inception away back in 1863. In those days there was an itinerant provincial exhibition. London had it every three or four years. But that was not enough for our people. So the local societies, the municipality, and some of our leading citizens got together and formed the Western Fair Association. The backbone of the organization was composed of the East Middlesex District Societies, and their officers were the prime movers in the new enterprise. All honor to those pioneers—James Johnson, George Macree, William McBride, Henry Anderson, Thomas Routledge, Maynard Smith, John Campbell, James Durand, John Elliott and their associates, who inaugurated an enterprise that has become the great annual celebration of Southwestern Ontario.

The first Western Fair was but a small thing. A prize list of less than $3,000 looks very trifling compared with this year's list of nearly $20,000. But the organization has grown because it was necessary, and because those in charge have acted with energy and with wisdom. And it has not only grown in extent, but in usefulness. It is the farmer's summer school, where he can not only see the latest implements in his department of work, but can learn how to use them. And not alone the farmer, but men and women of every class and condition find here instruction as well as amusement. It supplements our common school course, for the children, as they wander through the buildings and over the grounds, see and hear the practical application of much that is given them in theory in their daily studies.

Other cities have followed the course laid out by London, and have established their annual fair, but the Western Fair has not lost its pre-eminence. Only Toronto, whose large population gives it special advantages, has surpassed London in its expenditure and in its attendance. In some other respects it is not our equal. But even though Toronto may bulk larger in the public eye, London is the centre of Southwestern Ontario. The Western Fair is ours. The people of the surrounding country support it. The villages and towns send in their hundreds and thousands; from every concession line the farmers and their families come in to the great show. Let the citizens of London keep well to the front. Let us show equal pride in our own institutions. Help on the Western Fair; if you have anything worth exhibiting, send it in; do not neglect to visit it, and more than once. It pays London; let London support it, and make it a bigger success this year than ever before.

EAST MIDDLESEX CONSERVATIVES.

Our local contemporary reads a lesson to East Middlesex Conservatives, who insist on a farmer candidate.

We agree with the contention that a candidate's postoffice address should not be a factor, but our contemporary has often taken a different view. East Middlesex farmers are merely acting on its advice given in former elections.

The Liberals have more than once run city or town residents in East Middlesex, and the other Middlesexes, and when they have been opposed by farmers the Free Press never missed the opportunity of raising a sectional cry. Its denunciation of Liberal lawyer candidates is as recent as the last federal and provincial elections. In West Middlesex, particularly, farmers were urged in 1911 to vote against Mr. Duncan Ross because his opponent was a son of the soil. Happily Liberal farmers have never listened to these appeals. Our contemporary finds its chickens coming home to roost; but they are returning on its own invitation.

The United States Government assumes that President Huerta is as bad as he looks.

Canada is the costliest country in the world to live in. Our combines are new-born, but they are lusty youngsters.

Lord Haldane says that Anglo-German relations are excellent. However, this was not said with the idea of hurting the Borden Government's feelings.

The promised workmen's compensation bill can compensate many workers or their dependents for the arrears of years of injustice.

A naval contribution is money spent not to defend the empire, but to disrupt it.

There is a fine blend of humor and reproach in the New York World's description of Thaw as "our most popular young insane millionaire murderer."

The old age pension act in Britain has reduced outdoor pauperism by 94.9 per cent. In another year it should be unanimous.

The Nationalists of Ulster have taken to singing "God Save the King." Perhaps they think he needs to be saved from the wrath of the Ulster "loyalists."

Rev. C. W. Gordon ("Ralph Connor") says that he found the old land full of youth and virility, and away ahead of Canada in regard to social work. Evidently Ralph was not dining with dukes over there.

TROUBLES OF A PAVEMENT.
[Washington Star.]
They took a little gravel
And they took a little tar
With various ingredients
Imported from afar.
They hammered it and rolled it,
And when they went away
They said they had a pavement,
That would last for many a day.
But they came with picks and spades
To lay a water main;
And then they called the workmen
To put it back again.
To run a railway cable
They took it up once more;
And they put it back again,
Just where it was before.
They took it up for conduit
To run the telephone;
And then they put it back again
As hard as any stone.
They took it up for wires
To feed the electric light,
And then they put it back again
Which was no more than right.
Oh, the pavement's full of furrows,
There are patches everywhere;
You'd like to ride upon it,
But it's seldom that you dare.
It's a very handsome pavement,
A credit to the town;
They always dignify it up
Or puttin' it down.

SAFE THERE.
[Simcoe Reformer.]
If Thaw had only managed to reach Hamilton, Canada would have been saved much expense and bother. Once in Hamilton, he would have been safe from discovery.

A GRAVE SOCIAL EVIL.
[Public Opinion.]
When Lord Morley welcomed the Medical Congress in London he said: "Another painful subject catches the eye on your fifty pages of agenda—I mean the horrible dangers of a certain disease transmitted in the dark through generations after generations of a community, and the further question of Government control and responsibility in connection with it. Here, again, ethical considerations hold, and rightly hold, a leading place in our public opinion. What we may call the surgeon's reason of state, important as it must be, cannot stand as the single decisive factor. That is certain. At the same time there would be sheer moral cowardice in shrinking from a large and serious inquiry into the extent, the causes, the palliatives of this hideous scourge just as we investigate the ravages of tuberculosis or cancer."

JUST THE REVERSE.
[Ottawa Citizen.]
The Montreal Star makes the strange query: "Are women degenerating?" They are "getting down to business" as regards their rights; it is no reason to assume that it is any kind of a decline.

SLIPS OF THE NOVELISTS.
[Manchester Evening News.]
Novelists are in a hurry at times, but only a few of their readers are critical. In a detective story of many years ago, the villain carried up to his room a basket containing 50,000 sovereigns. This is eclipsed in a novel by Guy Boothby. Here the villain stipulates that 100,000 pounds in "hard cash" shall be brought to him secretly at the place appointed. A gentlemanly at the place appointed. A gentlemanly at the place appointed. A gentlemanly at the place appointed.

AEROPLANE PARACHUTE.
[London Daily News.]
A remarkable feat was accomplished yesterday at the aerodrome of Chateau Fort, near Versailles, with a parachute invented by M. Bonnet, a Canadian, who has already been awarded a prize of $200 by the Aero Club of France.

The aviator, Pegoud, on a Blériot monoplane, to which the parachute was attached, rose to a height of 300 feet and then, stopping the motor, set free the parachute, which was strapped to his body.

The mechanism worked perfectly. The aviator descended in safety, while the monoplane came to earth a few yards away with very little damage.

MR. HARRY LAUDER'S THEAT.
[Manchester Guardian.]
The terrible news reaches me tonight that after Mr. Harry Lauder has appeared for another two weeks at the London Palladium and then for a few weeks at one or two other London halls, and then toured the continents of Africa and Australia for two years, he will retire from the variety stage. Experience teaches us that men who threaten to leave the stage live long upon it, so there is yet no necessity for us to save our hawtens over against a stupendous "last night." Still it is interesting to know from Mr. Lauder's representative that the Scots comedian has amassed a huge fortune, and that there is no necessity for him to continue to delight the public. The only thing that really stands in the way of his retirement, Mr. Lauder explains, is the applause of the public, by which he knows he has succeeded in amusing it. Did he not get this appreciation "all the money in the Bank of England would not repay him." This is as it should be. If at the end of the time Mr. Lauder feels the pressure so great that he cannot leave the public, he proposes to play throughout the country in an entertainment lasting one and a half hours, when he will sing ten songs at a stretch, as he has done in America.

THE SOUL OF A WORKING GIRL.
[Chicago Tribune.]
A girl was afflicted with the last New York in a stupor. The practiced eye of a policeman perceived at a glance that she had taken poison. He rushed her to a hospital. A doctor pumped her for the deadly drug. Then the police pumped her for her story. It was simple.

Her father and mother died within a short time. Left upon her own resources, she had no one to turn to. She earned little at it in her native city and was advised to go to New York. She went there. She looked for work for months, but did not find it. Her capricious dandies and those for dollar, she gave up her room and slept in the parks. After a few more days her last dollar had shrunk to the last quarter. The girl held communion with herself. It was easier "the street" or suicide. She decided that she would rather die unloved. With the last quarter she bought the deadly drug.

TRAVELLER LOSES 4 HATS IN SUCCESSION IN CITY.
Someone Scores Again on D. H. McGraw When He Goes Into Breakfast.

Mr. D. H. McGraw, claims agent of the Grand Trunk, is at a loss to understand whether several misfortunes that have befallen him lately are the direct result of a desire on the part of someone to get even with him over the settlement of a claim which he may have refused, or whether they are just cases of hard luck. I went to London he loses his hat. He says he would not care so much if the loss had occurred once or twice, but when it comes to four times, and those four times in succession, he says it begins to look suspicious.

He has been in London on four different occasions lately, and each time he has lost his hat. Each time he stopped at the hotel on the last four occasions someone has walked away with his hat. "I thought I would be safe this time, and left my hat in a usual place when I went to breakfast, this morning, but when I came out I found that my hat was gone again," said he. "Whoever took it made a good selection, and got the best of the bargain." He was playing a dilapidated christy that had seen much wear and that was turning green.

EXPECTS TO HEAR MORE ABOUT THE DEAR CASE.
Crown Attorney Does Not Think Man Who Victimized Cantrell Will Escape.

No move has yet been made by the Attorney-General's department towards the extradition of John Dear, who was arrested in Detroit for the police of this city on a charge of securing $450 from Joseph Cantrell, of this city, under false pretences.

When Dear was arrested in Detroit and an attempt to have extradition proceedings instituted to bring him back, a hitch occurred, caused, it is admitted, by an official, by the unwillingness on the part of the Ontario authorities to spend the money necessary to extradite a man from the United States.

Dear's wife and Dear himself, it is said, offered to settle with Cantrell if they were given an assurance that the charge against Dear would be dropped. But the authorities would not agree to this, and so far Dear has gone free, with a possibility of not having to face the charge in the Ontario courts and evading the payment of the money which he is said to have secured from Cantrell.

Hon. Adam Beck, several days ago, signified his intention of taking up the matter with the Attorney-General's department. The first time he went to Toronto, but as he is out of the city, it could not be learned whether any new move had been made.

Crown Attorney McKillop admitted that the meter had been dropped for a time, but said he expected to hear something more about it before the end of the week.

REV. COLLINS HAS RESIGNED

Wingham Baptist Pastor Tired of Receiving Anonymous Letters.

SAYS DEVIL IS IN CHURCH
[Special to The Advertiser.]
Wingham, Sept. 3.—Rev. G. V. Collins, for the past three years pastor of the Baptist Church at Wingham, sprung a big surprise at a meeting of the congregation when he rose and announced that he intended to resign. Holding an anonymous letter above his head in the pulpit he said he had received several such communications, all unsigned, and all containing mean remarks.

Throwing the letter to the floor Mr. Collins ground it beneath his feet, with the remark that any man who would write such letters was filled with the spirit of the devil. He told the congregation that there was an Achim in the camp, a snake in the grass, a devil in the church, and he proposed to resign.

The affair comes as a culmination of a series of troubles. Some months ago the organist resigned, and Mr. Collins took upon himself to hold the choir together. Later another organist was engaged and he resigned. Then the church was practically destroyed by fire.

The structure was rebuilt, but the new organ was not at all satisfactory and the choir fell away. An effort will be made, it is understood, to have Mr. Collins reconsider his decision.

EXPERTS ENGAGED FOR THE INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL.
Both Anderson and Weaver Have Had Experience in Trade Training.

The two new teacher-instructors for the Industrial School, recently appointed by the board of education, have arrived in London, and have already commenced their duties here. They are teachers as well as master mechanics, both having had successful training in vocational education.

J. C. Anderson, the new head of the woodworking department, learned the cabinet-making trade in Scotland. After working at his trade in Scotland and South Africa, taking a course at the Teachers' Training College at the University of Toronto, he was appointed to the faculty of the Saunders Trade School, York, N. Y., where for the past four years he has been head of the woodworking department.

Mr. W. Weaver, the second new teacher-instructor, will be placed in charge of the machine shop and electrical department. He is a graduate of the Hamilton Trade School, and has since been instructor to the apprentices of the Pittsburgh Iron Company, and has been one of the instructors in the engineering course of Haverford College.

TRACTION CAR HITS THRESHING ENGINE.
Trolley Came Around Curve, Striking Apparatus on Tracks.

Shortly after leaving Lambeth at 5:50 this morning, a south-bound trolley and a traction engine, owned by the Hamilton Traction Company, collided with and damaged considerably a threshing machine owned by Messrs. Willis & Davis, of that section. The machine was being drawn by a traction engine, and as the accident happened on a curve of the road, the motorist was unable to see the trolley until he was right on it.

The car was in charge of Motorman H. Thompson, of the Hamilton Traction Company. The latter, seeing that a collision was about to occur, jumped from his seat and sustained minor injuries. The motorman stuck to his post and was not hurt.

Fear Murder in Edmonton Death.
[Canadian Press.]
Edmonton, Sept. 3.—Covered with a mattress and bedding, and lying upon the floor of a one-roomed shack on the Hudson Bay river, James McNulty, really a salesman, was found dead by his partner, Burrard Mohr, on the latter's return from work on Tuesday evening.

McNulty had been killed by a 12-bore gun at close range, and had been dead six to eight hours when found. Up till a late hour no arrests had been made.

McNulty had been in Edmonton three years employed generally as a hotel clerk. He came from Norwood, Ont., where his father is a prominent farmer.

MELROSE.
Petrolia, Sept. 3.—The bowling tournament of yesterday was a great success. Rinks came from all over Lambton, and the crowd was very large.

Mr. Hodgins, the new science master at the high school, has arrived. Scholars are coming from Courthouse, Kimball, Bridgeport, and Wyoming.

Mr. Chester Booth has returned to Detroit after a brief holiday here.

Mr. W. Clyde has returned from his home in Kingston, and has again taken up the task of superintending the high school.

TWO FINE PAPERS AT ONTARIO CONVENTION

President Richter Says Pavements and Sewage Documents Are Invaluable.

Ald. J. G. Richter, newly-elected president of the Ontario Municipalities Association, returned from Rochester, N. Y., last night, after spending some time there in investigating municipal affairs, following the conclusion of the Ontario Municipalities in Toronto last week. Ald. Richter is enthusiastic over the work of the association which paid him the signal honor of electing him to its presidency.

Two Fine Papers.
"The convention this year was one of the best in the history of the association," said Ald. Richter. "Two papers, especially, of those presented at the meeting, were worth many times over the cost of membership to the various municipalities in the association."

"One of these was the paper on pavements, read by City Engineer McCallum, of Hamilton. In his work the engineer dealt with the various kinds of pavements, referring to the serviceability and durability of different kinds under different conditions. He differentiated between the heavy traffic business streets and the less travelled residential streets."

On the second day we had a paper from an American sanitary engineer now commissioned by the city of New York to prepare a thorough report on the sanitary system there. This was a paper that was and will be invaluable to the municipalities. It dealt with sewage and sewage disposal. If any of the municipalities had the report prepared for them it would have cost $500 or more, so you can readily see the advantage of belonging to such an association."

Reports To Be Printed.
"Both the sewage and the pavement reports are to be printed. They will be published in pamphlet form, and will be distributed to the municipalities having membership in the association."

DOG IMAGINES HE IS GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY.
At Least He Holds Up Car Traffic for Some Time on Stanley Street.

A large black and white dog, evidently suffering from an attack of indolence, decided with his own mind that the space between the rails of the Grand Trunk Railway Company on Stanley Street, was an ideal spot to rest at his ease. Several cars, crowded with people returning from their work, were compelled to stop or slow up until his dogship decided to vacate that particular strip of land.

"Tiring of the track, where his rest was so frequently interrupted, the traffic-blocker took it upon himself to hold up passing autos and other vehicles, or causing them to make a sharp detour, to avoid him. The air was too full of that listlessness characteristic of a warm day, for strenuous exercise, he decided. Therefore, there was no necessity for hurrying. He was not from Mexico or St. Thomas, either as later events proved."

The physiological moment came when one car, taking the corner rapidly, escaped the dog's tail by a matter of decimals. The dogship emitted a wail similar to a locomotive in distress and precipitated himself in the direction of the sidewalk. Down this home stretch he cantered, all the listlessness of his opinions as to the climate foregone. In a mad dash, resulting from wounded puppy dignity. His day dreams and most haunting hopes were rudely shattered. He was disillusioned of any willingness on the part of the world to feel for a fellow sufferer.

EIGHT LOTS SOLD ON SEE HOUSE PROPERTY.
All Purchasers Will Erect Houses at Once or in the Spring.

Building activity in South London is steadily increasing. Mr. Len G. Westland, real estate agent, has in the past two or three days sold eight lots on the old See House property on Ridout street, all the purchasers of which will erect houses either at once or early next spring. On Windsor avenue, running from Ridout street to Wortley road, houses costing from $2,000 to $3,000 are either under way or will be commenced this week by Mr. W. R. McDonald, Mr. Norman Roberts, who is erecting two such houses, Mr. George Raymond, and Mr. W. Bowley.

The Metcalfe Agencies are preparing to start work on a dozen houses on Merwin Heights, Oxford street, which they propose to sell on the instalment plan. The houses will be completed early this fall.

Mr. F. W. Benwick, another real estate man, says that the demand for houses has never been so heavy in London. People are beginning to realize that it is difficult to rent suitable houses, practically no houses being available, and are buying homes for themselves. Many houses are changing hands every day. Transfers of homes being more numerous than sales in any other branches of real estate activity.

Unknown Man Was Horribly Mangled.
[Canadian Press.]
Toronto, Sept. 3.—Crushed beyond recognition, the body of a man possibly 40 years of age, was picked up by the crew of a passing freight train at the foot of Strachan avenue early today, and conveyed to the Union Station, and later to the morgue.

It is supposed he was walking along the tracks and was struck by another train. When found by the train crew the body was lying head to the tracks, both legs had been completely severed, one arm torn off, and the face and head badly crushed.

The man, who had dark hair and a

SARNIA GETS $200,000 PLANT EMPLOYING OVER 150 HANDS
Big, New Factory Will Manufacture All Kinds of Gas and Oil Stoves, and Will Mean Big Industrial Boost for Tunnel Town.

[Special to The Advertiser.]
Sarnia, Sept. 3.—Announcement was made today that Sarnia is to have in the near future a new factory to cost $200,000, and employ 150 men. It will manufacture all kinds of oil and gas stoves. No names are mentioned as yet in connection with the management, but it is generally understood that the Imperial Oil Company is behind the enterprise, as in the charter they obtained a few months ago there was a clause embodying the manufacture of goods similar to those the new firm will make. While a definite location for the factory has not been secured it is stated that it will be either at Point Edward or right in Sarnia. No matter which place is chosen it will mean another big boost for Sarnia's industrial career.

Made Millions Out Of Trading Stamps
[Canadian Press.]
New York, Sept. 3.—Thomas A. Sperry, who made an immense fortune out of trading stamps, is dead at his city residence here. Mr. Sperry was president of the Sperry & Hutchinson Company, and one of the pioneers in the trading stamp business. His fortune was estimated at several million dollars. He leaves a wife and two sons and two daughters.
