

School Trustee—Neglect of duty.

TO THE EDITORS OF THE LOCAL COURTS' GAZETTE.

GENTLEMEN,—B., a resident of the township of T., in school section 5, the trustees of which section have been accustomed to collect their school rates instead of requiring the township council to do so, for the last 12 years has been accustomed to go to the trustees, and say "my school rate for this year amounts to $5 or $6," whatever he might think fit to pay, at the same time paying this amount. Strange to say the trustees for all this time took his word, and amount offered as sufficient. On the election of a new trustee, he discovers that B., during these 12 years has not paid the full amount of his school rate in any one year. Some years he having paid very little over half of what he should have paid. Can the school section recover from B. amounts he should have paid? and if so, for how many years back? and what is their proper remedy? or will the section have to bear the loss, or make trustees pay? By answering soon, you will oblige,

Yours truly, G.

[We think there is nothing to prevent a school Corporation recovering the balance of rates still unpaid. The remedy would be probably by action.—Eds. L. C. G.]

Promissory note—Where action to be brought.

TO THE EDITORS OF THE LOCAL COURTS' GAZETTE.

GENTLEMEN,—The following question has arisen and caused some dispute, and I submit it for your opinion, if you will be kind enough to give one.

A. of the town of G., being about to change his residence to H., a great distance off, sells his goods and chattels; for some of which he takes notes; for vendor's convenience he makes them payable at H. The maker and indorser of one of these notes for $25, both reside at G. Can C., a holder of this note, bring his action on it at H., where payable, under the Division Court Act, sec. 71, on the ground that making it payable at H., makes a sufficient cause of action arise there? Your giving an early answer will much oblige,

Yours truly,
AN ENQUIRER.

[We do not think the cause of action can be said to have arisen at H.—Eds. L. C. G.]
