ROBERT ORANGE.

A Sequel to "The School for Saints."

By JOHN OLIVER HOBBS.

The Star says:—"The School for Saints' was good, but 'Robert Orange,' unlike most sequels, is better. . . . In sheer cunning of style Mrs. Craigie has surpassed herself in this exquisitely-wrought romance. . . . I know few classics that have touched and tested me more profoundly than the history of 'Robert Orange.'"

"One of the strongest books of the season."—North American, Philadelphia

DEACON BRADBURY.

By EDWIN ASA DIX.

"A book which has touches of the David Harum manner, but is really far better constructed and much more thoroughly developed."—Boston Budget.

MARIE CORELLI'S

New Long—BOY—Novel

The Boston Courier says:—"Boy' is one of the most wonderful delineations of mental development that has ever been published."

N. Y. Times' Saturday Reviews says:—"In 'Boy,' her latest work, Miss Corelli is at her best."

THE GIRL

AT THE

HALFWAY HOUSE.

By E. HOUGH.

Nothing has been written on the opening of the West to excel this romance in epic quality. Its freshness, vividness and absorbing interest will appeal to every Canadian reader.

WINEFRED.

By

S. BARING GOULD.

This is a striking novel of English life in the eighteenth century, both in aristocratic London and in rural Devonshire. The characters are particularly well drawn, and the book teems with thrilling incident.
