The black plush hat is one of the now low-crowned shapes, turned up on each side and set square on the head. A twist of white velvet and a white feather form the only trimming.

IF THIS IS YOUR BIRTHDAY

An active year awaits you with great advantages in experience, but with little pecuniary success. If you are employed it will take much cleverness and attention on your part to satisfy your employer and yourself. Those born today will have original ideas and should be encouraged to work these out for their signs confer inventive genius. Some important discovery may be the result of their work. Their danger will be from too great specialisation, and plenty of active recreation, with cheerful companions, is therefore necessary.

EIGHT DOLLARS A LIVING WAGE FOR GIRLS

By the incipient league, having Mrs. Lowell for its founder. Only two letters were received in reply. Since then, however, great progress has been made in many directions.

Public to Blame.

That the public are greatly to blame for the hardships of those employed in stores was pointed clearly shown in the address. Since the initial movement things have become inverted. It began with the shoppers asking for more humane laws for employees; now it is the merchants asking the shoppers to shop early, as at Christmas time, and not to shop at all on Saturday afternoon.

A great obstacle with which the league has to contend are the courts in the United States, for which a secretary spends her entire time preparing briefs.

Vital Questions.

Mrs. Kelley states in the now committees are investigating prison labor, what it takes a girl to live on and other vital questions. A girl can live on less than $8 a week. Procuring minimum board is part of the work of the league. The unemployed girl, she one who merely works for excitement and pin money, should, in many cases, go back to school, but industry should pay its way. Consumptives have to be provided for because they have not been properly paid and nourished. The insane wards in some asylums are filled with young people driven there by the pressure of work and long hours.

The willow plume industry and chewing gum are for some searching arrangements from Mrs. Kelley. In reply to a question, the speaker stated that she co-operated with some trade unions, and with others, the Printers' Union, which had secured the eight-hour day, and the union of clock makers, are among the unions commended. The fabulous rents paid by merchants, the colossal advertising and the expensive modes of boxing and wrapping are among the causes of the high cost of living.

THE PROFESSOR OR THE COW

That Austrian professor who, by mixing certain portions of fats, albumin, sugar, chlorhydrate and phosphate of ammonia, has succeeded in producing milk which is not meet with feminine approval. Yet the professor claims that his chemically produced milk is as creamy and more palatable than the milk of the cow. Moreover he assures us that his artificial milk will not turn. Now, undoubtedly it would be a good thing to have milk upon which a thunderstorm, or excessive heat would have no effect. But this is the very claim which will render the milk manufactured by the professor suspect in the eyes of women.

There would be something uncanny about milk whose sweetness was undisturbed by weather conditions. Women are "kittle cattle," to use a Scottish phrase, and you never can tell just what is going to arouse their suspicions or dislike. You could not get a woman to believe that milk which remained sweet indefinitely, that defied all changes of temperature, that neither curdled nor soured, that required no surveillance, no care, could possibly be a proper and nourishing food for her babies. The fact alone that the professor claims so many virtues for the milk, that he protests so much, like the lady in the play, would lay the milk open to doubt and question. Woman is incurably prejudiced in favor of natural foods for her children. The well-cared-for healthy cow in the meadow, cropping the fresh juicy grass under summer skies, seems to her to be a much more reliable and proper creature to

BOOKS FOR CHILDREN IN LOCAL LIBRARIES

Miss Smith, Who Is in Charge, Told of the Growth of the Branch.

Miss Smith of the College street public library, addressed the Social Questions Conference, the Rev. Dr. Victor Mission, last night, on the children's department. There was a children's department at the College street library, also at the east and west end branches. It was regarded by librarians, as of very great importance to instill into the children's minds a love for good books before their sixteenth year, when they were transferred to the adult department. The children's department is a most interesting one. The foreign element was quite prominent among the juveniles attending the College street children's department.

ADDRESSED THE STUDENTS

Rev. Dr. Endicott Told of Mission Work in Western China.

In an address before the students of Toronto University, in convocation hall yesterday afternoon, Rev. Dr. Endicott of Western China, stated that more heathen Chinese confessed Christ last year than all the conversions made in Canada during the same period. In an able manner the speaker reviewed missionary effort in China, and told of the possibilities of making the yellow race a credit to Christian civilization. Thirty-five years ago, he said, there were only five Christians in all that wide territory. Fifty years ago, he said, there were fifty. As a result, largely of an awakened missionary conscience in the Christian countries, this small number has now exceeded more than 200,000.

Dr. Endicott spoke in place of N. W. Gowell, K.C., who was unable to attend, owing to illness.

Second to heredity among causes of nervous disease in children is malnutrition. Malnutrition tends both to starve and to poison nerve centres. Therefore an ill-nourished child, or one with weak digestion, ever if his general health seems good, should be looked on as liable to nervous disorders. If all efforts fail to improve the nutrition care must be taken not to demand too much of the child's energies. It is a great mistake to think that children who are "only nervous" need no attention. They need very special attention to help them "grow out of it."

As nervous disorders are most easily cured in their first stages, mothers should be able to detect the earliest and mildest symptoms. There are five classes of children who need watching: Children of nervous parentage; undernourished or poorly nourished children; children who are made delicate by slight illness, or those subject to convulsions; exceptionally bright or precocious children; children who exhibit extreme restlessness, irritability, shyness, twitching or other nervous habit, headaches, or attacks of indigestion and illness after excitement.

It is necessary to have the causes of nervous irritation removed. Eye-strain is one of the commonest; adenoids and enlarged tonsils are others. These causes are well looked after by the school medical staff.

Often it is difficult to locate the cause immediately. In this case the mother must give very strict attention to the general health. These children who get careless attention to diet and mastication will produce wonderful results.

SUFFRAGETTE INVADERS MET A SOLID WALL

The speaker's ruling, was a plot decided on long ago and Premier Asquith was aware of it.

"The answer to this treachery," she declared, "is militancy."

Sylvia Pankhurst said that her intention was to hold the speaker in the chair and leave Mr. Asquith on the bench, and with this the deputations started. The police gave them escort as far as the entrance of parliament, where an inspector informed them that the Chancellor of the Exchequer would be unable to see them until morning.

Mrs. Drummond retorted: "This is foolery. If you don't let us in there will be trouble."

At that the members of the deputations threw themselves at the police, who stood six deep across the entrance, and a scuffle occurred, in which Mrs. Drummond and another woman were either thrown or fell to the ground.

The police gave the women several chances to withdraw quietly but as they refused all were taken into custody.

Crowd Hostile.

The crowd showed little sympathy for the suffragettes, whom they tried to jostle as they were being led to the station by the police. The authorities, it is understood, contemplate arresting the leaders for inciting their followers to break the laws.

Christobel Pankhurst, who is often referred to as the brains of the organization, is believed to be in London directing the demonstrations. She is known to have left Paris, where she had been living since a warrant for her arrest was issued at the time her mother, Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, and Mr. and Mrs. Pethick Lawrence were convicted, and all trace of her is lost.

The damage to property tonight would have been much greater had not the shopkeepers taken the precaution to board up their windows.

In the last fiscal year the railways of the United States paid to labor in round figures $42,000,000 more than would have been required had the wage schedule of 1910 been in effect, and $69,000,000 more than the wages of 1909 demanded.

The total number of persons employed in England's shipping trade of all descriptions is steadily increasing, the figures being 274,807 in 1908, 276,306 in 1910, and 281,800 in 1911. Of the last figure 305,065 were British and 80,788 foreign, in addition to 45,282 Lascars.
