

destination, and were ready to settle down once more to quiet life. Thus June, 1874, finds us where June, 1873, left us—Uncle absorbed in the duties of his parish, I intent on my studies, and more strongly convinced than ever of these three things: that the world is round, that the finest country in the world is the United States, and that the brightest spot in the United States is Home!

WALWORTH HOMESTEAD, SARATOGA SPRINGS.

For p. 316.