FACTORY SITES ARE WANTED

Three Steel Industries Already Have Applied for Land in Ashbridge's Marsh.

It is not likely that the harbor commission will experience much difficulty in disposing of factory sites on Ashbridges Bay when it is filled in. Already offers have been received from three large American steel industries asking for locations on the marsh, but the plans for the sub-division of the land have not been completed.

One suggestion is to have railway sidings and roads with a deep water channel 400 feet long. There are about 1400 acres in the marsh, and it is estimated that the cost of development would be about $3000 per acre.

The marsh will be leased to manufacturers, but there will be no uniform scale of rentals.

Will Traders' Bank Building Lose Its Name?

Will the name of the Traders' Bank Building be changed, and, if so, to what? That is the question being asked by realty men, who have pondered deeply over the pending merger and the changes here that it will mean. There is a general feeling that the Royal Bank, if it takes over the Traders, will discontinue the banking office in the skyscraper building and turn the property over to a holding company. Under the Banking Act a bank cannot hold real estate, except for its exclusive use, for more than seven years. At the end of that time it is the custom for them to transfer the property to a trust company, and a perusal of the assessment rolls will show most of the bank corners downtown under the name of some company that is seldom otherwise heard of.

Then there is the possibility that the Traders' Bank Building will be sold, altho downtown realty brokers do not figure that there would be much profit over its cost to the banking people. As it stands now the rents gained from it are not so profitable as from some of the other office buildings of much less size, and of less expensive construction.

The Royal Bank Building is a bank palace pure and simple. It was erected with the chief end in view of having an edifice in keeping with the bank's high standing; but still it is quite large enough to accommodate the head office of all the offices needed here since the head office of the new merger is to be in Montreal.

Then there is a big uptown building of the Traders' at the corner of Bloor and Yonge-streets. Will it retain its name if the Traders' Bank losses its identity? Real estate men are asking these questions, for they know that the publicity the name of a building is given is quite an assetin securing tenants.

PAYS TO TRAVEL FIRST-CLASS

NEW YORK, April 29.—(Can. Press.)—In a summary of the lessons of the Titanic disaster, Lawrence Beasley, a University of Cambridge man, who was among the survivors, asks: "What was the relative chance of escape for a first-class passenger and a steerage passenger?"

His answer is as follows: "I have worked out the percentage of the saved of the four classes and find it as follows:

"First-class, 53.6 per cent.; second-class, 39 per cent.; steerage, 26.7 per cent.; officers and men, 22.3 per cent. They are instructive, those figures. The payment of about $75, excess of first over third, gives you more than twice the chance of your life being saved."
