Rockefeller for 12 Years Has Been Out of Standard

Says So Himself and Declares He Thought Fact Was Well Known—Still He Dislikes Notoriety of Becoming a Witness.

New York, June 24.—The American publishes the following cablegram from Compteur, France: John D. Rockefeller was informed by the American representative of the purpose of the United States government to prosecute the Standard Oil officials as he came from the lawn of his chateau on his bicycle this morning.

Asked for a statement, he said: "I don't think I had better say anything." In response to repeated requests by the correspondent, he finally said: "I thought it was well known that I have had no connection with the Standard Oil Co. for 12 years and that I have not even been at its offices for seven years."

"I do not know anything about this proceeding. I have no information concerning any of the matters that it touches."

"Will it make any changes in your plans?" the correspondent asked. "Absolutely none," he replied quickly. "I shall return to New York on the steamer America, which sails on July 31, as I originally planned. Meantime you must break up on the shoreboard for the trip back."

There is good reason to believe that the prosecution was not unexpected. For the past week Mr. Rockefeller has asked eagerly every morning for news from America, and especially concerning the passage of the rate bill. It is particularly interesting that he could not escape service of a government subpoena if he returned to New York, but he said nothing and declined a further statement.

"You understand that in a government proceeding a subpoena can be served on you when the boat reaches quarantine," the correspondent asked. "Oh, yes," he replied. "Why He Fears Witness Stand." "Am I to infer from that," asked the correspondent, "that you are willing to testify?"

"I question I shall have to decide when I reach New York," he replied. "I have never had any other objection to appearing in a court than that which is nature to other men. I do not like the notoriety of testifying, and I don't see why I should be called in matters concerning which others know much more."

Mr. Rockefeller is also having trouble with the authorities on this side. A city ordinance of Compteur requires that a name be placed on the handle of all bicycles. His wheel has neither, and for this there is a penalty of 30 francs. He was notified politely to-day that this ordinance was the chief of police.

The mayor of Compteur is in receipt of hundreds of letters asking him to use his influence with Mr. Rockefeller to get money from the government. Mr. Rockefeller to-day that he had to get an additional secretary to look after these letters, and Mr. Rockefeller smiled.

WITTE'S POLICY BLAMED FOR PRESENT SITUATION

Contributed to the Election of a Parliament of Revolutionary Character.

London, June 25.—The Daily Telegraph this morning published an article written by a member of the Russian cabinet, in which it is contended that it was the government's indecision and inaction in the autumn of 1904, when it would have been easy to win over the loyal zemstvo party to co-operation with the government in its work of reform, that sowed the seeds of the present trouble.

The writer proceeds to refer to the writer's great hope raised by Count Witte's call to power and the subsequent disappointment at his failure because of his vacillation and inconsistency. He complains that Witte instead of declaring a ruthless war against the revolutionary terrorist attack, actually contributed to the formation of an alliance of the moderate opposition party and the terrorists tighter than it was before.

Witte's policy, in fact, the writer continues, led to the election of a parliament of a revolutionary character, representative not of the Russian people, but of the stump political lawyer of the present time. Hence his dissolution is merely a question of time. Dissolution is indispensable, not because the provocative parliamentary debates tend to revolutionize the country, but because the present opposition of the chamber is descending to the principle of national representation. In conclusion the minister argues that a return to bureaucratic absolutism is impossible. The tremendous difficulty of the present moment, he says, is the full recognition of the absolute necessity to renew the worn-out framework of the government by means of real national representation and by enlisting the co-operation of men of the soil, even if they are chosen from the present parliament.

POLICYHOLDERS' BATTLE TO REGAIN THEIR RIGHTS

Z. A. Lash, K.C., is One of the International Committee—Program of Plans.

The World has received from Seymour Eaton, secretary of the international policyholders' committee, a statement of facts regarding its plans. Writing from 30 Broad-street, New York, he says: "If the policyholders can be organized effort wrest from Wall-street and the discredited existing managements that are seeking to shield themselves by perpetuating their own control, the investment of their own savings they will deserve the commendation of all honest Americans and the work which was undertaken by Lawyer Hughes and the Armstrong committee will have borne permanent fruit."

The statement accompanying his letter, says: "For the first time in their lives the policyholders of the New York Life and of the Mutual Life Insurance companies will be able to cast their vote which has not been chloroformed in advance. The Wall-street financiers must now look to the ballot-box for a continuance of their control and manipulation of nearly $900,000,000 of insurance assets."

This is the brief statement made by the officers of the international policyholders' committee when they gave out for publication the names of the gentlemen who have consented to serve on what is probably the most distinguished committee ever organized. The recently enacted New York laws fix definitely the conditions governing the election of the directors of life insurance companies. Each policyholder will have one vote, regardless of the amount of his policy or the number of policies held by him. The voting will be by ballot directly by mail. All proxies given before Oct. 18 are void, but no proxy is necessary. The polls open Oct. 18 and will remain open until the 25th. Ballots will be mailed to each policyholder, and may be marked and returned by mail.

Under the new laws the present insurance managements will nominate their candidates for directors on July 18. It is generally understood that insurance circles that will be "stand pat" policy; that the same men or their doubles will be re-nominated. The policyholders' committee, however, is endeavoring to secure the election of men of unquestioned integrity to serve as directors.

One Canadian is found among those who have consented to act with the policyholders in the selection of directors. He is Z. A. Lash, K.C. The other gentlemen are: Governor N. B. Broward of Florida, Governor N. C. Blanchard of Louisiana, Dr. Russell H. Conwell of the Baptist Church, President E. E. Clark of Ohio, Hon. Charles W. Drayton of Iowa, Cardinal Gibbons of the Roman Catholic Church, Judge George Grey of Delaware, Governor J. Frank Hasset of Ohio, Hon. John C. Hemphill of South Carolina, Harlow N. Higginbotham of Illinois, Governor J. A. Johnson of Minnesota, Hon. Nicholas Longworth of Ohio, Hon. Frederick B. Neiderhugh of Missouri, Samuel Newhouse of Utah, Fremont Older of California, Hon. Richard Olney of Massachusetts, Hon. Charles Emory Smith of Pennsylvania, General Benjamin F. Tracy of New York, Thos. E. "Panemaker" of Pennsylvania, Herr Heinrich Wegener of Germany, nominated by German committee, and representative of English and French committees who are to be named and will be announced later; Samuel Untermyer, general counsel, New York; Seymour Eaton, secretary; G. R. Sorugian, organization manager.

A meeting of the committee has been called to be held in the City of New York on July 10, at which time the committee will perfect its organization and begin active work for the forthcoming election for directors of both companies.

Judge Wants to Widen Civic Enquiry Books Indicate More Irregularities

Market and Exhibition Building Contracts Said to Be Under Suspicion—Sensation is Prompted at City Council Meeting This Afternoon—Authorities Take a Serious View.

There will be a sensation sprung at the city hall this afternoon, when the mayor will present to council a request from Judge Winchester, which The World has reason to believe, asks that the scope of the civic investigation be enlarged to include enquiry into some contracts for work on exhibition buildings and the St. Lawrence Market. The roofing has been mentioned. There promises to be some startling allegations of irregularities, but the utmost secrecy is maintained as it is claimed that only four persons knew of the intention. They were His Honor Judge Winchester, his worship the mayor, Crown Attorney Drayton, all of whom last night most emphatically refused to discuss the matter. His worship expressed warm regret that "The World" had dared of it. He did say that so far as he knew there would be no charge made against any member of the council. The feeling, as expressed by Mr. Fullerton, for keeping so quiet about it all is that the methods of book-keeping already exposed in connection with the civic investigation warrant it, and that parties suspected of wrongdoing should not be given an opportunity of making erasures and changes in the books, or stripping out such burking proper investigation.

In groping around for information of a definite character, The World approached officials connected with the market and exhibition buildings, but got no ground for suspicion from them. "The buildings are there, roof and all, to be inspected by anyone and everyone at any time," said Architect Geo. G. Goulet, referring to the exhibition buildings.

When asked if he knew of any irregularities in the contracts regarding the market and exhibition buildings, Mr. Goulet asked "What buildings?" "Any buildings at all," he said. "I have heard nothing, and as to anything I should have heard something."

J. O. Thorn, manager of the Metallio Roofing Co., who did the contracting work on the exhibition buildings, was asked relative to any suspected irregularities in the contract of the St. Lawrence Market roof. He had no knowledge whatever of any kick coming. He was sure that as far as he was concerned there was nothing doing.

One Canadian architect, who was associated with architect Beaumont Jarvis, was ignorant of any mine that was going to be sprung at the city council in reference to the contracting work on the exhibition buildings. "I don't know, I am sure," he said. "If Mr. Jarvis knew of anything he would have let me know. There is nothing that I know should be investigated."

Aldermen in the Dark. Intention to enlarge the scope of the investigation so as to take in other markets and exhibition buildings, was suggested by the city council last night. Apart from Mayor Coatsworth, no member of the city council appeared at the meeting. The board of control knew nothing of the events that were shaping. So far as the board of control is concerned, it is a mystery, apparently, of anything "doing." Even the vague whispering about the possibility of something being done, has been absent.

Outside of the city hall itself, however, there has been some stirring. The origin is more or less mysterious, but it's a closely-locked secret. At any rate the experiment was worth the trial. From what information The World could gather, the enquiry will depart into pastures entirely new as regards Architect E. J. Lennox and the firm of Bennett & Wright, who have borne the brunt of the examination since they ceased to concern themselves directly with the fortunes of Dr. Lynd and Promoter Geo. B. Elliott. They will be in a position to give disinterested attention to the new developments.

Can't Talk. "My tongue is tied," was Mayor Coatsworth's reply to a request for information about the sensation promised to be sprung on Monday morning. Later he explained that he expected to receive a letter Monday morning, which would lead to council in the afternoon. His worship did not deny the assumption that the contents of this communication would be of a character that might be termed sensational.

Corporation Counsel Fullerton, while not denying that the investigation had been made of council to-day. He declined to discuss in any way the nature of possible disclosures, consisting that the erasures and attempts to cover up the truth brought to light thus far in the enquiry conveyed a lesson that should be taken advantage of. He admitted, however, that the loss of time that must necessarily attend the proceedings before city council would give opportunities.

WHAT NEXT? The request which Judge Winchester will make to the city council to-day, that the scope of the civic enquiry be widened to include an investigation into—as The World is given to believe—contracts having to do with the rebuilding of the St. Lawrence Market, and of buildings at the exhibition grounds, marks another phase of an enquiry that has had only one fault—its long continuation.

The cause of the enquiry has been almost lost sight of in the maze of other "irregularities," as they have been called, which have since been revealed. It was on Oct. 13 of last year that affidavits charging Ald. Lynd with receiving money corruptly for vote and influence, respecting Puddy Bros' permit were laid before Mayor Urquhart and the investigation was opened by Judge Winchester a week later.

It soon developed that there were other things to be probed, and on Dec. 4, 1905, the scope of the enquiry was enlarged to "further investigate all charges of malfeasance, breaches of trust, or misconduct committed in, before, or since the year 1899 on the part of any member of the council, and on the part of any officer or any contractor in connection with contracts for work on the city hall building then in course of construction, or for the furnishing of the said building, or in connection with a contract between the city and the Ontario Sewer Pipe Company, all of which, if proved, are matters affecting the good government of the city and the conduct of the public business thereof."

It would seem that the enquiries into the vast number of books and papers which Judge Winchester and Crown Attorney Drayton have had to delve into, and which have been partly responsible for the delays, have revealed irregularities in other contracts in which the city is interested.

They amount to The World cannot say, but it was whispered that some officials would likely be involved. The utter secrecy maintained by the authorities last night would seem to indicate that something serious is expected to materialize.

ONE MAN AT POINT OF DEATH RESULT OF FIGHT AT ISLAND REVOLVER AND RAZOR USED

Wesley Spence Victim of an Attack Details of Which Are Obscure—Two Men Locked Up Charged With the Crime.

Wesley Spence, age 28, expressman, 29 Elm-street, is lying in St. Michael's Hospital, hovering between life and death. Pietro Laber, age 21, laborer, 113 Centre-avenue, and Robert Kennedy, age 25, moulder, 288 Perth-avenue, are in jail on the charge of wounding Spence. The affray occurred shortly before 10 o'clock Saturday night on the bridge across the lagoon leading to Turner's baths. The three men earlier in the evening had gone over to the sand bar, having with them a bottle of whiskey, which they had brought from the city. After drinking this they commenced to wrangle.

Before the men were seen a revolver shot was heard by some of the cottagers. Their loud talk and threats to each other attracted the attention of Mr. Chamberlain, who notified P. C. Johnson of their rowdiness. On his return he was met by Spence, who cried "Help! help! for Gabe's sake, or I'll be dead in a few minutes."

Mr. Chamberlain, seeing the man was wounded, took him to Eddie Durnan's boathouse, and Dr. Spohn was telephoned for at the Lakeside Home. He dressed the wounds. Mr. Chamberlain took a revolver away from Spence when he met him and asked Spence if he was shot and whether he had the revolver. Spence replied he had taken it away from the fellow who attacked him. Inspector Davis, who was in the vicinity, heard of the row and was soon on the scene. The two companions of Spence had disappeared. They were subsequently picked out of the crowd and promptly arrested by Davis, who brought them to the city and locked them up in No. 1 station. When searched Laber had a razor case in his pocket, but no razor, and his hands were covered with blood. The revolver, which was taken from Spence, contained three loaded and two empty shells. The small amount of powder in the revolver showed it had been recently fired.

The wounded man did not wish the others arrested. All refused to talk about the fight, and claimed there was a fourth man who did the cutting. They did not know his name.

Spence lost an immense quantity of blood. His coat was slashed in three places, and his clothing was saturated with blood. In St. Michael's Dr. Kiloran worked for three hours before leaving, ugly wound 8 inches long, extending from the top of and around the ear across the throat. There was another wound on the head, and a slash under the arm. He was resting quietly last night, but his recovery is still in doubt.

He escaped early death by that," said the doctor, and his fingers measured the space of a quarter of an inch. One of our Minerva Autos ran to Montreal in twenty hours. Particulars at Mutual Street Rink.

W.M. KIRBY, AUTHOR, DEAD FULL OF YEARS AND HONOR

Was Editor of The Niagara Mail in 1853—His Well-Known Writings.

Niagara-on-the-Lake, June 24.—William Kirby, F.R.S.C., Canada's oldest litterateur, born in 1817, and almost in his 90th year, died on Saturday. A native of Yorkshire, England, he has always been known as a strong advocate for British connection. Leaving England in 1832 he received part of his education in Cincinnati from a highly educated Scot, Alexander Kilmount, coming to Canada in 1835 he lived some years in St. David's, and afterwards married Miss Whitmore, whose mother was a daughter of the noted United Empire Loyalist, Daniel Servois.

He next became the editor and proprietor of The Niagara Mail, in 1853, and his first poem, "The United Empire Loyalist," was printed in the office of that paper, the greater part of the work it is said, having been done by himself. On his retirement from The Mail he became collector of customs, which office he held for many years. His greatest work, "Le Chien D'Ore," perhaps the best Canadian historical romance ever written, has won its author deserved fame. The story of the writing and publishing, the loss of the manuscript for nearly three years, its final rescue from the Grand Trunk baggage room, Toronto, and its subsequent adventures is a romance itself. His poems, "Canadian Idylls," "Queen's Birthday," "Dead Sea Roses," "Kirby Wilkie," "The Hungry Years," etc., give us many stirring incidents of Canadian history, all breathing an intense loyalty, while his translations of French and German poems show his linguistic as well as poetic powers.

His latest work, "Annals of Niagara," gives many almost forgotten stories of early days in the old capital. He was made a fellow of the Royal Society, and the his reserve and modesty kept him from being as widely known as he might have been, still by the highest in this and other lands his merits as a man and a poet have been acknowledged. The Princess Louise, Ottawa, conveyed to him the pleasure the late Queen Victoria had had in reading "The Golden Dog." The story from Lord Tennyson, the Duke of Argyll and many noted persons attest the esteem in which he was held. For many years he was magistrate of the town, he lived lately a quiet life of retirement. He leaves a son, John Kirby of Toronto, and a grandson, Eric Kirby, now in England.

A good constitution enabled him to give to his disease, which attacked him more than a year ago.
