JIMMY COON STORIES

By Dr. Warren G. Partridge.

HELP COMES IN THE NICK OF TIME

One night of silver moonlight, Jimmy Coon heard a peal of joyous and savage yelping of the dog, Ranger, who had been hiding behind a big fallen log in the Great Forest. Ranger, the dog from the Jones' Farm, had surprised Jimmy Coon, so that he had no time one little Jimmy Coon. And Spot whispered to Ranger, telling him to grab Jimmy in front, while he jumped upon Jimmy from behind.

In this peril of his life, Jimmy gave a little cry of rage. And, wonderful to tell, Mrs. Jimmy Coon heard the call of Jimmy, and she came tearing through the moon shadows like fury in fur.

And instantly Jimmy rushed for Ranger's leg, and gave him such a vicious snap, that Ranger went howling. Spot saw Jimmy's wife in the scrap, and he tore away for home, howling in fear. And Jimmy's wife had saved himself in the nick of time.

It was very comical to see those two big dogs having a race, to see which could howl the loudest, and which could get home first!

And Jimmy Coon was very grateful to his dear wife for saving his precious life; and it was very pretty to see Jimmy and Mrs. Jimmy come close together and rub noses. You know that is the way Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy shake hands or kiss each other, or congratulate each other on winning a great fight.

The Girl and the Man in Uniform

It is one of the sorriest sights imaginable in these days of anxiety to walk any evening along the main streets of a large town or city adjacent to a military camp, and see young girls, until late hours, idly parading up and down, giggling and striving by every known feminine artifice to attract the attention of the young men in uniform.

These young girls, however, moving picture houses and railroad stations, even the solitary tent of the soldier, are bridges not being free of two or three girls passing and repassing his tent until his attention is attracted. These girls are not vicious; they are thoughtless. The lure of a uniform is strong to the romantic and emotional nature of a young girl.

But what of the parents of these girls? What are they thinking of that they allow their young daughters deliberately to flirt with danger and do what they can to break down the gentleman's code which we are so anxious that our young men shall observe? Life must have taught these parents some lessons that their daughters have not learned. Are they insensible to the danger that they are incurring? Or have they no idea—and this is probably closer to the truth—where their daughters are, or what they are doing? "We trust the boys," they say. That is a very comfortable theory, but have we the right to place all the responsibility on the boy? Shall there be no division of the load? Shall we say to the boy, "Thou shalt not tempt"? We deny the unfairness of the double standard that absolves the man and penalizes the woman. But is it any fairer to expect our boys to hold fast to their standards when every artifice is used by these girls to break down those standards?

There are sad hours ahead for thousands of homes in this country, if parents permit the present unlicensed actions of their daughters with regard to our boys in uniform. It will avail us little if we win in war abroad only to lose in morals at home. Blame belongs squarely on those of the parents who are criminally permitting this unwise freedom where ordinary precaution should be observed. It is perfectly right that our girls should have the opportunity to satisfy their desire to see and meet the boys in uniform. The boy in uniform, too, wants to meet girls, and he should. If there is ever a time when we have a right to ask of a man that he shall be a gentleman, it is when he puts on the uniform of his country. For then he immediately represents not only his own standards, but those of his nation. But it remains, nevertheless, a deplorable fact that a time of war generally means a laxity of moral standards. The boy, or man, suddenly finds himself separated from home influences; he becomes homesick, and times of great mental and physical depression come to him. To the understanding man all conditions are alike: a gentleman is a gentleman always. But that is an ideal not reached by all.

We have been so carefully lax in this country about the freedom that we give our girls, we might as well get it into our heads that the greatest dangers for thousands of our young girls, and the sooner their parents realize this, the better for our country, our boys and our girls, but for the peace of mind of parents and our domestic protection. The proper parental caution now will save after-regrets and the keenest lamentations that can come to thousands of homes. An ounce of prevention now is worth pounds of cure, not forgetting that there are some things which cannot be cured!

UNIFORM LESSON FOR SUNDAY, JULY 29, 1918.

ONE GOLDEN TEXT SUGGESTION.

By Rev. T. S. Lindsay, D.D.

Obeying God.—Matt. iv: 18-22; John xiv: 22-24; James i: 22-27.

QUESTIONS FOR TODAY.

10. Verse 24. Would you say, or not, and why, that not loving Jesus is a sin in itself?

11. Does God make it possible, or not, and why, for everybody to love Jesus?

12. If a man truly resolves and, by the grace of God, is determined to "keep Jesus' words," how long will it be before the love of Jesus springs up in his heart? (This is one of the questions which may be answered in writing by members of the club.)

Golden Text.—If ye love me, ye will keep my commandments. John 14:15.

TRUE LOVE FOR HIMSELF IMPLIES ABILITY TO OBEY.

Love is not what one may call an effeminate virtue, or mere sentiment, which soft-hearted people sometimes have, but it is in itself a dynamic; it has power, and, indeed, we may say, with truth, that all the graces, or virtues, are included in love; it is the only compound grace; it is formed of every other sterling virtue, in fact it is the only perfect embodiment of God himself. The shortest and most forceful definition of God is that "God is love." Therefore when our hearts are filled with love for Christ, that itself gives us the ability to keep Christ's commandments; it not only gives us the inclination to keep his commandments, but also the power to do so.

LIPTON'S

It stands to reason that a firm that owns its own plantations and grows, blends, packs and sells its own Tea can guarantee its quality better than a firm that does not have these advantages.

For this reason, therefore, if you wish to get perfect quality Tea, buy Lipton's, because it is the only guaranteed quality Tea obtainable in Canada.

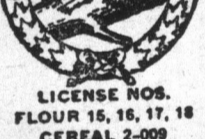

The very fact that "Lipton's" is synonymous with "Tea" is because we have made Lipton's worthy of this association of ideas.
