Events Which Led Up to the Resignation of Minister of Public Works.

CALGARY, Alta., Feb. 22.—(Special.)

-There is no doubt that Premier Rutherford accepted Hon. W. H. Cushing's resignation with great reluctance. Even after Mr. Cushing had received the premier's written acceptance, the latter spent some time closeted with his former minister of public works, in an endeavor to make him reconsider his resignation. He was asked to go with the evidence and leak over the plans his resignation. He was asked to go with the engineers and look over the plans and prints of the A. & G. W. Railway, a step which would afford a week's delay and enable the premier to round up and recover the backsiders. Cushing refused, but his silence afforded an opportunity to do some missionary work among the insurgents and now some of them are crawling back into the government ranks.

Foster's Challenge.

Resuming the stand after luncheon, Mr. Macdonald being re-examined by his counsel, Mr. Rowell, said he had received a letter from Mr. Foster on Oct. 10, 1908, inviting him to a public meeting to discuss his (Mr. Macdonaid's) charges, and the letters held to have been written by Mr. Foster asking for the surplus funds of the LO.F.

No Main Line Eastward

"In the case of the Alberta and Great Waterways Rallway it is contended that they have no main line connecting them with the eastern markets for steel and other supplies and are at the mercy of the other rallways as to freights and time of delivery which means a large outlay in railway construction. Being a new company they are not able to minimize their legal, surveying and other expenditures by charging them up to the established departments in connection with a main line under operation and are called upon to bear the brunt of these additional expenditures as well as those in connection with the ordinary work
of construction."

The revolt seemed at first to involve No Main Line Eastward

The revolt seemed at first to involve the very life of the government, as eighteen members showed a disposition to follow Cushing.

As a newspaper man he was aware that the royal commission investigation was a matter of public interest for months. He had read reports of Mr. Foster's several speeches containing uncomplimentary references to himself. Witness had delivered several speeches during the campaign, including one at Orillia on Oct. 20.

Reaffirms Charge.

Reaffirms Charge.

Questioned regarding his reported reference to Mr. Foster and his alleged charge that Mr. Foster liad asked for a rake-off in a deal with trust funds, witness replied: "I made those statements and they are true." When he stated in his speech that he relied on sworn extence, he had in mind the report of the royal commission.

Informed that no money would be info Mr. Hellmuth, distinguishing between the sworn testimony and the findings, contended that the report of the comhission was not sworn evidence.

Witness testified that in using the words about Mr. Foster, he had been which adverse from malice. His reference to Mr. Montague. Foster and the latter's dealings was prompted entirely by his interest in the plaintiff's acts as a public man.
"Do you now believe the statements which you made in your Orillia speech?" "The essential statements I believe," eplied witness. Counsel demanded a direct reply yes" or "no," but Mr. Johnston in-

Mr. Macdonald parried and the court ruled that the question was not proper one.

"Do you now think that Mr. Foster ought those lands for the syndicate?" asked counsel.

"I must accept Mr. Foster's statement that he at first bought them for the syndicate," witness replied.

Referring to a Globe editorial of Oct.

How Speech Was Reported. The report of the speech delivered at Orillia was sent to The Globe, are witness said, by a local newspape man who had obtained a copy of portion of the written speech previous to its delivery. One sheet of his speech accidently slipped from his hand during delivery, therefore, all that appeared in The Globe had not been spoken by him or at least not as pubspoken by him or at least not as pub-lished.
