Kilduff Succeeds.
Pete Kilduff, who has been in the big show for the first time in his career, the little fellow understudy Charley Herzog until he has gained a reputation that some day will carry him into position as a regular.
Pete did his first work as a regular for the Giants when Herzog tried to kick a piece of chewing gum for a goal and landed on the crown of his back in a Philadelphia railway station. He was out for several days. Kilduff went in, fielded and hit at high speed and immediately became a popular Giant.
Recently the Herzog has again developed a kink and Kilduff went back with such gusto and success that he is more solid than ever.
Understudying Charley Herzog with any degree of success is quite a little task, but Kilduff did it, but as soon as Herzog gets back in the game Kilduff is traded to the cubs for Al Demaree.
Leading Base Pilferer.
Merlin Kopp continues to lead the International League in base-running. He has swiped forty-two sacks, which is more than any player in the National or American Leagues has done. Thirty pilfered sacks mark the high line in the American League, and the great Ty Cobb is beaten in his former specialty by the Bison flash, forty-two to twenty-four. Kopp also leads the herd with the stick, with 288.
Phillies Release Byrne.
St. Louis, July 31.—Robert Byrne, an infielder, was released outright here today by the Philadelphia National League club. Byrne said he was through with baseball and would go into business in St. Louis.

Condie Mack May Land Bacon.
Word has been received from the south that Bacon, a young pitcher of the Chattanooga team, of the Southern Association, had been purchased by Condie Mack of the Athletics.
Manager Mack, however, stated that, so far as he knew, no deal for Bacon had been closed. Condie said he had a man scouting for him in that section and it was possible he had been looking for Bacon over, but had sent no word about signing him or making him an offer.
Pat. Fisherty, the veteran southpaw pitcher, who was with the Athletics pitchers at Fort Pierce last spring, is one of Mack's scouts in the south and it is likely he has been talking business with the Chattanooga star.

RING
Eddie McGorty Beaten.
Milwaukee, Wis., July 31.—Advises from Australia say Eddie McGorty, Wisconsin middleweight, was defeated on points in twenty rounds at "Snowy" Baker's Stadium in Sydney by Albert Lloyd. They were rematched but the bout was called off, as McGorty was taken to a hospital afterward and operated on for hernia.
Harry Stone, New York welterweight, defeated Lew Edwards in a twenty round bout at Melbourne.
Benny Palmer, American lightweight, stopped Jimmy Hill, featherweight champion, in a three-round bout. Stadium directors declare it was not on the square, and barred Hill from further contests in Australia for life.
Tommy Green, middleweight champion, knocked out Fred Kay, contender, in thirteen rounds.

TENNIS

BRITISH WAR CARS FILL RUSSIAN GAPS

Held up Teuton Advance for Hours and Inflicted Huge Losses on Enemy

Korniloff Stops Rout—Throws Three Divisions of Cavalry Across Line of Retreat to Shoot All Deserters
London, July 31.—The London Times correspondent, telegraphing from the headquarters of the Russian Seventh Army on July 28, gives a description of the part played by the British armored cars in stemming the enemy's advance when the Russian defections left great gaps in the line. He says:
"The Russian remained in the trenches as long as the armored cars stayed with them, but as the Austrians advanced and the Germans were crying out, 'Hurray, the Russians, of their own accord, flung down their rifles and ran for their lives.' The British armored cars, which we attempted to keep the enemy back in order to stem the retreat, but it was impossible. We had to give way, and the British armor was crowded out, breaking them down, so that we lost three, which we had to abandon."
"A similar state of affairs occurred with the other squadrons which checked the Austrians and managed to keep the advancing infantry back until their artillery arrived, rendering further resistance impossible. The Russian retreat became a rout, and though we went into action time and again during the day the effect produced was only local. A panic ensued at Kosova. Everybody ran away. We did our best to stop runaways."
On July 28 the British cars were transferred to another corps belonging to the same army and ordered to separate along the Bucevac-Tarnopol road. The correspondent writes:
"A section went into action with four cars. The situation was desperate. There were great gaps in the front corps caused by the flight of whole divisions. The Corps Commander had no information of the whereabouts of the enemy or of his own troops. Our cars were able to give him invaluable information, and, besides, they kept the enemy at bay. The hottest fighting occurred at the village of Pantallach and Darachow, about ten miles west of Trembowla. At the latter place we ambushed the enemy in houses and courtyards and destroyed them wholesale. During that night, thanks to the respite which we had been able to afford them, the Russians rallied and entrenched themselves, and even drove out the enemy from some of their positions.

On the 28th our cars operated on the highroad from Darachow to Bucevac. At four o'clock that morning the corps commander summoned Commander Locher Lampson to the village of Leskowce and told him that two divisions had bolted leaving a gap of fifteen miles north of Leskowce as far as Trembowla. Our cars were intrusted with the task of protecting this huge space. Working along the road between Chmelowka and Derschow, they did great execution among the advancing infantry, mainly Austrians.
Leut. Commander Smiles came up later with two cars which had been repaired. Commander Locher Lampson himself went into action. He spotted an Austrian officer standing on a knoll, drove his car in that direction, and came plump into a large force of the enemy's field guns. One car had its engine completely blown out by a direct hit and had to be abandoned. The crew removed the guns and material and withdrew in safety. Another car was struck by a shell which smashed a plate, wounding all the crew.
The correspondent adds:
"Some of our men were twenty hours in their seats in the armored cars. The corps commander said we had given him a respite of twenty-one hours by filling the gap, which otherwise would have afforded the enemy's cavalry motors, and mounted infantry a chance to cut our line of retreat. The extraordinary feature about these operations was that the British armored car divisions practically sent up the Germans on the whole army front. This exploit was rendered possible by excellent judgment in selecting such a splendid road for operations as the highway between Bucevac and Tarnopol. Our cars were repeatedly under artillery fire at a range

"On the 27th we continued to cover the Russian retreat, which was becoming more orderly, thanks to the stern measures applied by General Korniloff. The enemy evidently was unwilling to advance against our cars without the support of his heavy guns, which were slow in moving up."
Describing the drastic steps taken by Korniloff to stop desertion and prevent panics the correspondent says:
"Latest information from the staff is rather more hopeful. Panics among the retreating columns are suppressed ruthlessly. Three divisions of cavalry have taken up positions across the whole front of retreat. Deserters are shot. All attempts to spread panic are put down by prompt executions and all plundering is similarly dealt with. Deserters, spies and agitators who previously enjoyed complete immunity under the committee system, lie dead on the highways, and a piece of paper is pinned on the corpses notifying the retreating columns that 'Here lies a traitor to his country.' The infantry itself is now taking a hand in acts of retribution against deserters. I note almost a complete disappearance of red badges and other symbols which accompanied the demoralization of the army."
reaching the department of justice to the effect that thousands of men between the ages of 21 and 80 inclusive did not register in the draft of July 20. These thousands have escaped detection and prosecution. A national dragnet has been thrown out for them and when apprehended they will be prosecuted in the federal courts.
They will not escape the draft just because they have not been apprehended. In all cases where the names of these persons have been ascertained their names are being turned over to the local registration boards. The boards will register these men, assigning red ink numbers to them, and these numbers will be covered by the recent national lottery just as if the men had registered. Consequently, as pointed out by the attorney-general, the arrest and apprehension of these slackers has an importance in connection with raising armies wholly apart from the criminal aspects of the case.
Attorney-General Gregory's circular letter of instructions to every United States district attorney says:
"From reports received as of July 16, it appears that thousands of men between the ages of twenty-one and thirty inclusive did not register in time for the draft of July 20, and have so far successfully escaped detection and prosecution. The importance of the matter to the government is such that a prompt, thorough and country-wide search for these persons, followed by a vigorous criminal prosecution of all who are apprehended, must be made by this department."
"Though the draft has been made, these persons who are found and registered are not to escape the selective draft by reason of that delay. The local exemption boards have instructions to register these persons. They will be then liable for selection under the draft of July 20, just as if they had registered prior to that date. Hence, the discovery and registration of all persons subject to the conscription act is of importance to the training for the army, aside from the criminal aspect of the case."
