HOME RULE.

The great battle now being fought out in the English elections is for or against "Home Rule" in Ireland. Although Ireland has for centuries been suffering, groaning and rebelling against what the people deem oppression and their political disabilities in several important respects, (for example, until Catholic emancipation no Roman Catholic was allowed to hold a seat in parliament, be a Justice of the Peace, etc.), the Tory element has been so strong against any change, or Reform in Ireland, lest it yielding to the demands of the aggrieved nation should fall in pieces. The demand is now for self-government, and the ultra-Protestant cry of resistance is self-government would mean, if carried into effect, disintegration, and a breaking up of the Empire. The Roman Catholics would have the ascendancy in the local houses of parliament, and enact crushing measures against the Protestant minority as if England in granting the measure would not place safeguard around denominations alike, the Queen having the veto power as she has over Canadian enactments, so that no measure in Ireland would become operative without the sanction of the British Ministry, in other words—the Queen. But how has it ever been in Lower Canada, where three-fourths of the population are Roman Catholics? Has there ever been a simple complaint by the Protestant minority that they have been unfairly treated? Never! But after all, it is the old Tory, manifestation against every reform ever attempted, whether on this or the other side of the Atlantic. When the Duke of Wellington carried Catholic emancipation through parliament, the Catholics were bound to make sad havoc in England even the Crown itself was to be turned into a Roman Channel. Is it so? When Sir Robert Peel carried his corn law measure, the farming interests of England would perish and the nation itself, in time become the dumping ground of foreigners, and all the gold and bullion of the Bank of England would be swept across the Atlantic, and not enough currency left to prosecute the usual industries of the country. The Reform Bill was another of the blue devils that stirred the blood of the nation, through Tory investigation, to its very depths. The old rotten boroughs which enabled nobility to dominate the House of Commons, when attacked were looked upon by those vasalets as the very bulwarks of the nation. Curtail the power of the nobility as a ruling class, and the business of the nation will be left in the hands of the parvenues to manage and muddle and bring about destruction. With all her reforms does not England today occupy a higher position among the nations of the world than she ever did before—when the Tories had everything in her own hands? The same Tory brother resides on this side of the Atlantic. When responsible government was contended for, the advocates were met by these old rascals with the cry "treason," "traitors," "republicans"—the term "anarchists" was not then whined—this is a modern Tory invention, and came in with the "old flag" story, an adjunct of the silly imperial federation fad. If responsible government were conceded, Canada would become a republic, soon after, and form one of the stars in the American galaxy. Well, we have had responsible government for forty years, and where are all the geese to-day—on the same side as the old advocates, reaping all the rewards and emoluments due to the system they fought against, as governors, high parliamentary officials, to which under the old system they could never have aspired to.

ST. JOHN RELIEF FUND.

Some people have a strange idea of the properties. As an example, it was urged by several of the speakers of the St. John meeting for aiding the Newfoundland sufferers that the sum of nine thousand dollars (the amount which St. John, Nfld., sent to her namesake when in similar distress in 1877) should be taken from the surplus fund now in the hands of the

How the Rothschilds are housed at Ferrieres, near Paris, may be judged by their five establishments, worth $200,000, needing the services of 150 people. The stables contain 100 horses. When Louis Napoleon visited Ferrieres, the Rothschilds gave a grand breakfast in his honor, the cost of which was $50,000.

Adelina Patti says that when she has left off singing she will take to acting. There is little doubt that the fair songstress plays comely almost as well as she sings, and had she not possessed a voice of unrivalled brilliancy, would have become known in the theatrical circles.

The Indian attendants who now invariably accompany the Queen are a source of great trouble to the Court officials who have charge of the various arrangements. The Indians require to travel by themselves in a separate saloon, and their meals and all refreshments must be served to them in the train, at the stopping stations, instead of their going to the buffets with the suite and the European servants. Special arrangements have also to be made for the Indians at the hotels, which cause much bother and considerable extra expense. Yet they are perfectly useless except for show.

Her Father: 'But, my boy, surely you are too young to marry Aurelia. How old are you?' Her Suitor: 'One and twenty, sir.' Her Father: 'And she is twenty-seven—too great a disparity. Why not wait half-a-dozen years?' Then you'll be twenty-seven, and she'll probably be just about the same age as you.

A tenant has been imported so frequently for his rent that in a climax of exasperation the other day, he turned on the landlord with the cogent and conclusive remark: 'Now, you needn't press me so. Why, I love enough in this town to buy my own old house.'

A professor, whose pupils made too much noise, let the following naive slip out: 'Gentlemen, if everybody be silent we shall be better able to discover who makes the row.' This reminds us of a medical report, which began thus: 'There exists a great number of families in Dublin who have died of cholera.'

A thrifty and cynical old bachelor promulgates the following advice to those about to marry: 'Never marry a woman unless you are rich; that you would marry her if she were ugly, and so handsome that you would marry her if she were poor.'

Mr. Clark Russell, the novelist, entered the realm of fiction, like many another famous writer of to-day, through the portals of journalism. But the penchant for non-writing was so strong upon him, and after a brief experience of journalism he turned aside into the paths of fiction.

Mr. Russell having been a sailor himself does not write of the sea and sea-faring. He has sailed round the world, and was so good a sailor that, before his career ended, he held a mate's certificate. Mr. Russell produces copy with indefatigable industry under the most painful conditions. He is a chronic invalid, and is almost continuously in pain. Yet he holds out like a hero, and works far harder than many men in the flush of health and vigor would care to do.

That was a terrible blunder that Miss Gushington made the other evening and one that might have had serious consequences. Her arm had stolen round her friend, and she had laid her hand on his shoulder, and looking up in a way she said: 'Do you know, George, dear—' 'I'm afraid, Miss Gushington, I think, I interrupted.' 'Of course,' Miss Gushington assented. 'How stupid of me, to be sure! I was thinking this was Wednesday evening.'

MURDER OR MISTAKE?

Mysterious Death of Jonathan Glass in Chester.

A despatch from Portsmouth says: The country authorities are at work investigating the death of Jonathan C. Glass, of Chester, who disappeared on Thursday of last week, and was found hanging to a tree on Saturday. By some it is thought a case of suicide, and although there are no marks on the body, there are some circumstances that give the officers to think that a murder has been committed. During the past winter, a son-in-law of Glass has been confined in jail for stealing. During that time he sent a letter threatening Glass' life, which is in the possession of Sheriff Coffin.

The story told by Hoyt, the son-in-law, is this: Glass arose as usual on Wednesday morning at 4.30, milked the cows, built the fire in the kitchen stove, and then left the house. That night Glass returned, secured a bottle of liniment, a razor and a pocketful of doughnuts and went to bed. The next morning he was asked Hoyt to go up into their father's room and see if his razor was using. That he did, and the box in which it was usually kept was empty.

On a further examination it was found that Glass, who kept a strict account of all money which passed through his hands, had posted up his books and left them on the top of his desk, an unusual proceeding for him.

He believed that the old man had committed suicide, but made no attempt to find the body. His wife and the unmarried daughter, however, became worried and notified the officers. Among other things they were Deputy Sheriffs Towle and two members of the board of selectmen. Hoyt claims that he had trouble be-
