IN THE SALVATION ARMY.

Boots, in an "orders and regular for Salvation soldiers," says that our soldiers should avoid taking rom active service more time than is necessary for the purpose of courting, really necessary for the purpose of courting, either by conversation or correspondence, it is not to the interest of the parties nor of the army that marriage should take place without sufficient previous acquaintance." He further says: "No engagement should be made, and no marriage take place, between parties who have not a reasonable prospect of maintaining themselves and their families when married in decent fomfort. 'All right," was the analysis of the salvation of the God, our affection for our comrades, or our taithfulness in the army. We also promise always to regard our home in every way as a Salvation Army soldiers' or officers' quarters, and to arrange it accordingly, and to train all in it who may be under our influence or authority for faithful and efficient service in the army. Should either of us from sickness, death, or any other cause, cease to be efficient soldiers, we engage that the remaining one shall continue to the best of his or her ability to fulfil all these promises."—Pall Mall Gazette..

THE GIRL WHO WOOS.

Advice to the Girl Who Must not Woo for a Husband. I may as well be frank at once and say I do not like the maid who does the wooing. She is usurping the privilege of her knight, and if I were he f would turn and flee. "But," says Ethilinda, "he needs encourment!" Perhaps he does. But not much of it. When you want to give an invalid something to increase his appetite you do not offer to cat for him; instead you offer a dainty bit, a little spicy, or a little acid that quickens the taste and makes a great hunger come. Treat your sweetheart in the same way. Let him be conscious that you are pleased with his liking; but do not for a minute take away his prerogative and do the wooing. No man has a true appreciation for good things too easily obtained. Man is yet a little bit of a savage, and the hunt is always a delight to him. Your eyes may reflect his love, but to him. Your eyes may reflect his love, but they need not announce your's first, thereby sending an invitation. My dear girl, ask to make a spread out into the country, and farmers sent two dogs apiece by exflower is, and, after he has thought, he will press, tell you either the violet or the rose. One grows surrounded and protected by green leaves, and to get it perfect—that is, with a stem—you have to reach down and pluck it carefully, but in a determined way. The other is guarded by sharp thorns, and though it stands up in a most dignified tell you either the violet or the rose. One though it stands up in a most dignified way, it resists, except by its encouraging sweetness, the one brave enough to take it from the parent tree. You can learn a good lesson in a flower garden: you see the hollyhocks plant and know that they are the forward beauties of the world of flowers; you see the lilies with their bowed heads, and are convinced that beauty withheads, and are convinced that beauty with-out faith is of little worth; you are aware of a dainty perfume, and know that the little lady, whose qualities surpass her charms—the mignonette—is near; you can see the masculine girl in "Johnny-jump-ups"; you can see the positive one in the nflower; you can see the aggressive one in the scarlet geranium, and you can think of them all and conclude this, the one worth having, sweet of perfume and restful in color, are not the ones that protrude themselves on your vision, and say, as do some flowers and some maidens, "Take us."—Ruth Ashmore.
