GERMAN PRESS YARNS ABOUT INDIA FALSE

No Trouble There and Rajah of Bhalgalpur is Creature of Berlin Press Agent's Imagination.

London, Nov. 19.—The India office today made formal announcement that German press statements, circulated in foreign countries regarding disorders in India are absolutely unfounded. The announcement specifically denied the report that a revolt has broken out anywhere in India, or that Brahmins, Buddhists and Mohammedans have united to make difficulties for the "detested English," as stated from German sources.

Denial likewise is given to the assertion that the Rajah of Bhalgalpur has headed any uprising, or that grave disorders already have occurred in Bombay, Madras, Nagpur, Alahabad and Masapur, or that rebels have interfered with the departure of native troops, causing the British troops to retire and subsequently occupying their barracks and arsenals.

"There is not a word of truth in these statements," from the beginning, said the secretary of state for India, "There is no such person as the Rajah of Bhalgalpur. If the Nawab of Bahawalpur is referred to, he is a minor, eleven years of age."

ANGONA CAPTAIN SVYS LIFE BOATS WERE SHELLED

London, Nov. 20.—A despatch to the Daily Telegraph from Milan gives the deposition of Captain Massardo, of the Italian steamer Angona, which was recently sunk in the Mediterranean by a submarine. The deposition was taken by a commission for the Italian government on the arrival of the steamer Casigliari at Naples with survivors, who also were separately examined by the commission before they were allowed to land. The deposition of the captain says:

"Almost at the same instant the submarine was sighted a shell struck the sea twenty yards from my ship. The submarine was then several kilometres away. It steamed towards us, firing furiously, aiming especially at our wireless, which was soon cut and dangling.

"I ordered the boats lowered. The passengers were panic-stricken and beyond control. The first boat capsized and all the occupants were drowned. The second lifeboat had hardly reached the water when it was struck by a shell. The third was finally lowered, after an accident, which had caused several persons to fall overboard.

"The submarine kept shelling us until the Angona ceased moving, and only stopped firing when she was within two hundred yards of us. By then nearly all on board were in the boats, or had jumped overboard with lifebelts.

The shells had taken the Angona by enfilade from prow to stern, and had traversed the officers' saloon and several cabins. Going through I found about thirty people still on board, and gave the order for the last lifeboat to be lowered with the second officer, some of the crew and the rest of the passengers.

"The submarine then discharged a torpedo. I stood on deck waiting for the shock. The torpedo hit us forward, between the first and second watertight compartments. The terrific shock made a gaping hole, and the vessel began to sink."

The communication of the Belgian War Office says:

"There has been a slight bombardment on our advanced positions and of the Perreye region. Our artillery replied to the German batteries and brought about the dispersal of the enemy workers."

"At several points before our fronts during the two previous nights, our aviators have shelled the German encampments at Eessen (south of Dixmude)."

BULGARIANS THREATEN PRILEP FROM THE NORTHWEST

While the Serbian troops are barring the way to the Bulgarians advancing toward Prilep, through the Babuna Pass, south of Veles, the latter are making an attempt to turn the mountain passes on the northwest. They advanced to Tetovo (Kalkandelen), which they captured, but which the Serbians recaptured and where fighting is still proceeding. The French, Berlin despatches say, crossed the Cerna (Karassu) River, near its junction with the Vardar, but were compelled to retire to the eastern bank. Other accounts say the Bulgarian attempt to pierce the French centre in this region was repulsed.

WOMEN OF FRANCE KEEPING WHEELS OF FACTORIES MOVING

Have Taken Hold of Industrial Situation with Good Will and Thanks to Them Activity Reigns in Manufacturing Life of the Nation.

M. Berard, secretary of a prominent Paris commercial association, recently spoke of the adaptation of women to the task of carrying on the small industries for their own hands. He said, he had taken up the burden of continuing these industries, and actively reigns in every walk of the Paris industrial life. Even where a special knowledge has been necessary, the women have successfully solved the problem, having utilized the time between the declaration of war and mobilization for the study of their husbands' special work, and it is no exaggeration to say, declares M. Berard, that women have proved themselves veritable 'prodigies in this respect."

"This is another proof," he remarks, "of how wrongly visitors have always judged the real soul of the Paris woman. The boulevards are far from being the real Paris, and when it comes to love of home and family, the French woman knows how to defend them as well as our 'pollux' know how to defend their trenches."

The Temps publishes extracts from two letters written by Mr. Rudyard Kipling to a French friend during his recent visit to France, one just before and the other just after his visit to the French lines. In the first dated August 14, he says:

"How adorable Paris is now! It is the first time that I see and really understand its face. We knew its soul, but its visible form was weighted and overcharged with details and excrescences, and masked by the presence of too many foreigners. This vision of Paris will remain with me until I die. I thought my admiration for France could not grow. I was wrong. I am only beginning to understand a little what she is."

The second letter, dated August 24, is as follows:

"My visit to your lines was a revelation and an experience surpassing all that words can say, of which I am extremely proud, and which at the same time makes me want to prostrate myself before every Frenchman I meet; but this might be misunderstood."

In a postscript Mr. Kipling adds: "But I maintain that France herself did not know what she was a year ago."

The response of the Parisian women to the appeal to work in furnishing the soldiers with warm things for another winter campaign has been so spontaneous as to make one of the French generals predict that many of the terrible experiences of last winter will be easily avoided if the French women will continue to show the same zeal in aiding the soldiers to withstand the cold weather.

"A woman sitting in the alleyway of the Champs Elysees or in any other public park, without busily plying the needle or loom would be looked upon as a scandal," said a well-known Paris society leader. "I have heard myself how self-constituted women supervisors approached an idly sitting woman with the query whether she would not supply her with the necessary material for making underwear and socks. "Nor do the women who devote themselves to lace-making and embroidery fare any better, for one of these will soon discover that she is the subject of a letter ordering her to prove that such pastimes are to be reserved for after the war. At that neither idle women nor women with embroidery are to be frequently encountered."

Among the most heroic acts mentioned in the last general orders published in the Journal Officiel is the remarkable exploit of Aviator Sergeant Garner and his observer, Lieut. DAUM, on a biplane. While patrolling the air in front of Nancy, they saw six German war-planes flying towards the city. Despite the fact that each of them was only armed with a carbine, they attacked the hostile machines one by one, and, through splendid marksmanship, they prevented the German airmen from dropping their bombs with any effect, obliging them to fly back towards their own lines. The French war-planes were riddled with bullets, but neither aviator was hurt.

The resumption of racing in France in the spring of 1916 is under consideration by the Ministry of Agriculture and the turf authorities. According to the Petit Parisien, breeding establishments have been hard hit by the war, and owners and breeders of thoroughbreds and half-breeds having been deprived for more than a year of the stakes and premiums offered by the principal race meetings.

It is proposed to organize private meetings of several events, providing stakes out of the reserve funds of the associations which, while far from equalling in value to those attached to the Grand Prix and similar events, will permit breeders to continue their efforts to improve the breed of French horses.

The Minister of Agriculture has, by a stroke of his pen, banished game from the civilian's dinner-table for this autumn of war.

It was to be expected that in the zone occupied by the belligerent armies a civilian gun would not be tolerated; but in view of the excessive increase of game in the forests, and of the damage done thereby to crops, it was hoped that shooting within certain limits would be permitted, with the subsequent placing of the birds and beasts on the markets. But this is not to be.

As regards "fur," landowners are to be permitted to destroy those animals which, in the interest of the crops, must be kept down, by any means accepted by the laws of their department—with the exception of the gun. At the same time, within limits, and by special permission, battues may be organized, but only for days fixed and announced, beforehand, and in the presence of gendarmes and gamekeepers.

But while bear and badger, fox and otter, are thus disposed of, it is otherwise with game proper. Between September 15 and December 31, pheasants may be destroyed with the sanction of prefects of departments; but under no conditions may the birds be carried to market and sold.

They are all to be handed over to the manufacturers of preserved meats and will thus, apparently, be added to the daily menu of the men at the front. The hare is included in the same treatment as the pheasant.

ITALY GRAPPLES WITH 'U' MENACE

Sinking of Austrian Submarine in Mediterranean Beginning of Vigorous War on Enemy's Underseas Boats.

New York, Nov. 19.—A news agency despatch from Rome today says:

"Destruction by French and Italian torpedo boats of an Austrian submarine in the Mediterranean is reported here today. The incident is believed to be the beginning of a vigorous campaign to clear the Mediterranean and Adriatic of enemy undersea craft. Italy and France are said to have combined in formation of a flotilla of fast small vessels, which will patrol their own, the Austrian, Albanian, Greek and African coasts until the U boats have been exterminated."

Norwegian Steamer Sunk by Mine.

London, Nov. 19.—It is announced that the American schooner Helen W. Martin, which struck a mine yesterday and later was reported at anchor, is being towed from Aldeburgh, Suffolk, southward. The Greek steamer Athamas, which also struck a mine and was taken into Oase Deep in the Thames estuary has been beached.

London, Nov. 19.—The Norwegian steamer San Miguel, of 1,650 tons, gross, struck a mine in the North Sea Thursday and sank. The members of the crew were rescued and landed at Grimby today.

BELIEVES CANADA WILL NEED STANDING ARMY FOR FOUR YEARS YET

London, Ont., Nov. 19.—Brig-General Henry Smith, of Ottawa, who has been conducting the militia department's investigation into the 33rd Battalion grant cases, today expressed the opinion that Canada will require a standing army for at least four years yet, even though the war may be over considerably before that time.

London, Nov. 19.—The threatened order curtailing the sale of intoxicants in Greater London has been issued. After November 29 the trade will be confined to five and one-half hours on week days, and five hours on Sundays.

CANADA Berlin Reports Sinking Of 2 British Off South

Believed the vessels referred to are two small Egyptian gunboats.

Berlin, Nov. 19, via London.—Two British gunboats have been sunk in the Mediterranean, off the Egyptian coast, by a German submarine. Official announcement to this effect was made by the admiralty today. A British auxiliary cruiser also was hit out of action. The statement follows:

"A submarine on November 6 in Solium Harbor, destroyed by gunfire two Anglo-Egyptian gunboats, the Prince Abbas and the Abdul Menem, each of which was armed with two guns. The same submarine silenced with its fire an armed British merchant steamer and captured its guns."

"One of our submarines on November 5, on the North African coast, sank by a torpedo the British auxiliary cruiser Para."

Naval records contain the names of two Egyptian gunboats, Abdel Menem and Abbas, which are probably the warships referred to in the German announcement. The Abdel Menem, 598 tons, was built in 1902. The Abbas 288 tons, was built in 1902. According to the latest naval records, was armed with one 3-pound gun. The Gulf of Solium is on the north coast of Africa, at the boundary between Egypt and Tripoli. There is no British steamer named Para. The auxiliary cruiser referred to in the official German statement apparently is the small craft Tara. An official British report of Nov. 8 said the Tara, an armed boarder steamer had been sunk in the Mediterranean by a German submarine and that 34 men were missing.

CANADA COULD SUPPLY GREAT PART OF NEED FOR DOCTORS AND NURSES

Special to The Standard. Ottawa, Nov. 19.—"A great many more doctors and nurses could be secured in Canada for overseas service if a call were sent out, and with the great scarcity of doctors in England for military service it seems strange that no attempt is made to get more medical men from Canada," said Dr. D. B. Neely, M. P. for Humboldt, Sask., who is going over to join the Army Medical Corps. He added that there had been even talk of conscription amongst the medical men in England in order to secure the young doctors who are staying at home while older men went off to service. In Canada, on the other hand, he added, a good many doctors and nurses could leave without creating any undue scarcity in these professions.

BEST LIVER AND BOWEL LAXATIVE FOR FAMILY USE

"Cascarets" Regulate Women, Men and Children Without Injury.

Take When Bilious, Headachy, For Colds, Bad Breath, Sour Stomach.

WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP

Instead of nasty, harsh pills, salts, castor oil or dangerous calomel, why don't you keep Cascarets handy in your home? Cascarets act on the liver and thirty feet of bowels so gently you don't realize you have taken a cathartic, but they act thoroughly and can be depended upon when a good liver and bowel cleansing is necessary—they move the bile and poison from the bowels without griping and sweeten the stomach. You eat one or two at night like candy and you wake up feeling fine, the headache, biliousness, bad breath, coated tongue, sour stomach, constipation, or bad cold disappear. Mothers should give Cascarets to their children. Cascarets are safe for the little folk.
