Foreign Exchange is weak and quiet. The easier tendency of the London Money Market encourages the drawing of bills, and a considerable amount remains to be drawn against various loan negotiations in London, while there is still a liberal supply of Commercial Bills; the supply of Exchange in the hands of Gold speculators, also, has a depressing effect on rates.

Warning in a dream or a spectral voice, or a vague presentiment, is followed by an apparent fulfilment we are sure to hear of it; but in the numerous instances in which it is followed by nothing in particular, it is not apt to be talked about. We are refreshed, however, with one instance in which the tulfilment did not come. Mrs. Hartwell, of Columbus, Ohio, lately heard a voice in the night cry out "Your brother William is dead" and woke the household with her screams.
