A Broken Wedding Ring

By Bertha M. Clay

Sir Basil, too, looked at her in wonder. He had been attracted by her appearance as she stood on the terrace but now the sense of her great loveliness came over him and struck him almost dumb. He took her down to dinner, wondering that he had not been more impressed before, and he talked more to her than he had previously.

The dinner-party was a pleasant one. Leah was a charming hostess and among agreeable, hospitable, entertaining host than General Hatton it would have been almost impossible to find.

When the ladies returned to the drawing-room, the duchess took up a book, with some little hope of disguising the fact that she was going to sleep; Leah, who had several secrets to talk over with pretty May Luson; so that Leah was alone. She tried to steady her thoughts but she could not—they were all chaos. She tried to still her throbbing of her heart; it was impossible. The girl's every nerve was strained. The long French windows were wide open. She stood near one of them to see if the fresh evening air would drive away the thick crowding thoughts and fancies from her brain, and presently a voice came.

"How plainly you can see the river from here, Miss Hatton!"

She raised her dark dreamy eyes to Sir Basil's.

"I often wonder," she returned, "what I should do if I had to live where there was no river. I should miss it so much. I look as if it always the first thing in the morning and the last at night. It is a friend and companion to me."

"I am of your opinion; no landscape is perfect to me without water. I have a childish love of water from the great wild tossing ocean down to the tiniest lakelot. The sound of its falling or dripping or rushing, as the river rushes there, is the most charming music in Nature. While I was in Italy, I had a terrible fever, and for many days I was quite delirious—I may say mad; and during the whole time what did you think my fancy was?"

The face raised to his was full of interest. "I thought I was lying by a beautiful waterfall, under the shadow of great trees with spreading boughs. I could hear the dripping of the water and the soft splash as it fell into the rock basin below; but when I stretched out my hands to touch it, it was boiling when I bent my head over the rocky basin and tried to drink it with my hands, it sealded me. Was it not a most uncomfortable delirium?"

"Yes, I should imagine so; but hardly understand what delirium is like."

"Have you ever indulged in a strong fancy," he asked—"so strong that you hardly knew the fancy from reality?"

Before she had time to answer him a flood of crimson overpread her face and he wondered to himself why this proud young beauty blushed so deeply for nothing. Even had he known her fancies, he would not perhaps have understood them.

"Yes," she replied slowly, "I know what a very strong and vivid fancy is. I have been into a belief."

"All delirium is belief for the time," he said.

Then he made way for the duchess who roused by the entrance of a gentleman, had come toward the open window in search of fresh air.

"We shall have a beautiful moon to-night," she said looking up at the rosy sky, over which the grey shades of night were beginning to steal. "I like a full bright moon Leah, you look like a poem, with all those passion-flowers. Does she not Sir Basil?"

"Miss Hatton is a poem," he replied.

The words were earnestly spoken, although he meant nothing by them. They made the heart of the girl by his side thrill with happiness.

"People have such different tastes," continued the duchess. "I do not like passion-flowers; they always seem to me mysterious and melancholy. I like the smiling beauty of a hundred leaved rose."

DON'T SPOIL YOUR HAIR BY WASHING IT

When you wash your hair, be careful what you use. Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else that contains too much alkali, for this is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain purified coconut oil, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.
