

by the tribe assembled in Council, as the original Regulations were passed.

He, however, calls attention again to the suggestion contained in the report above referred to, namely; that the Regulations should first be prepared in draft and submitted to the Superintendent General of Indian Affairs for his approval before being adopted by the Indians in Council.

Unless this course is adopted it would be almost impossible by correspondence and objections