

THIS IS THE SHEET METAL AGE

Fire or lightning are no menace to the safety of a structure protected by the new "Galt" Steel Shingles and Galt "Art" Sidings.

The "Galt" is not the first shingle—but it's the first perfect shingle. Why shouldn't it be—haven't we the weaknesses of all others to warn us?

The hercest gale can't drive rain or snow through the Gale-proof, Closed-end, Side-locks, or the continuous overlapping and interlocking bottom lock of the "Galt" Shingles.

Covered nailing flanges both top and sides—no wind can loosen them. No openings or cleats. Easiest and quickest to lay. Handsome Bold Gothic Tile patterns—fit for a palace. Best British Galvanized Steel Sheets—Guaranteed to last a life time. Ask for Catalog "B-3"—it tells all about them.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS. Veterinary.

FATALITY IN SOW.

Sow, within a week of farrowing, and fed slush from kitchen, potato peelings and a quart of mixed oats and buckwheat, and allowed to run about, was all right when I went to dinner, and when I came out of the house again she was dying, and died in a few minutes. A couple of days before she died I saw her lying in water; the day was very warm. A post-mortem revealed ten pigs in the womb, and all organs apparently healthy. J. P.

Ans.—I do not think lying in the water had any injurious action. It would have required a careful post-mortem by a veterinarian to determine the cause of death. Pigs sometimes die suddenly from acute indigestion; from foreign matter getting into the windpipe; from obstruction of the small intestines by worms, or other substances; from rupture of an internal blood vessel; from poison, etc., etc., but, as stated, it requires a careful post-mortem to ascertain the cause of death. Cerebral apoplexy sometimes causes sudden death. V.

LAME COLT.

Three-year-old colt was born with crooked fore-legs. The legs are now straight, but the pasterns set back too far. There is a hard lump on the inside of leg, just above the fetlock joint. It is about half the size of a hen's egg, hard, and not sore to pressure. He has been lame for a year; sometimes quite lame, and at others almost sound. When the hoof is allowed to grow out the lameness is worse. He has not been worked, and driven only enough to make him handy, and has never been shod. A. H.

Ans.—I don't think the lump mentioned causes lameness. He has weak pasterns, and their position causes too much stress on the back tendons. He may get over this as he grows older. I would advise keeping the feet trimmed to the normal shape, and, if driving him, get him shod. Shower the fetlock and pastern with cold water, and apply bandages soaked in cold water for a few hours each day. The repeated application of a blister will have a tendency to strengthen the parts. V.

BREEDING MARES.

1. Mare, now 12 years old, has bred four times. She produced three colts by a Coach horse and one by a Percheron. These foals were produced in successive years, the last when she was ten years old. I bred her several times that year, but she failed to conceive. Last year she was not bred. I am told that if I breed her to a light horse, the prospects of conception will be greater. Is there any particular class of light horses that is more sure than others? I would like to breed her to a Hackney.

2. Her last filly by the Coach horse is a nice Coach mare, but has little action. Would it be wise to breed her to a Hackney? L. A.

Ans.—1. A Hackney is as potent as a horse of any other breed, hence there is no reason why you should not follow your tastes in this respect. As the mare has only failed to conceive one year out of five, it is not probable you will have trouble this year.

2. As this half-bred Coach mare has size and quality, your idea of mating her with a Hackney is quite correct, as he should impart action to the progeny. V.

GOSSIP.

J. H. M. Parker, Lennoxville, Que., breeder of Chester White swine and Shorthorn cattle, whose advertisement runs in this paper, has received from A. H. Boswell, Marshfield, P. E. I., the following letter: "Received pig all right. It is a nice one, and I am well pleased with it."

"Stockmen assert," observes the Breeders' Gazette, of Chicago, "that the day is at hand when Holstein calves will find favor with beef-makers, as they make decent beef cattle and cheaper stockers are the need feeders are feeling most now." Unless the stockers are produced by a superior breed of truly dual-purpose cattle, this prophecy will unquestionably come true.
