Best Off Highwaymen.

Chatham, Sept. 30.—William Stedman, a local butcher, who boards on Edgar street, was the victim of a couple of hold-up men while crossing a dark lot near the G. T. R. depot.

Stedman had been in Toronto with some cattle. He was waylaid by two unknown men, one of whom struck him on the head with a short stick.

Stedman, however, swung out and hit the nearest of the men with all the force of his strong right arm.

The men decamped.

Stoney Creek Hotel Burned.

Hamilton, Sept. 30.—The Elkino Hotel, Stoney Creek, was burned to

It is believed that it was set on fire by a man who was in the hotel.

The hotel was a two-story building and contained, with the exception of a piano and some other articles, were destroyed. The loss is placed at about $3,000. Frank Chapman was the proprietor and William Sutherland owned the building.

Barn Burned.

Comber, Sept. 30.—The barn and cattle stables of Hugh Lindsay, a few miles south of this village, were destroyed by fire Saturday evening.

THE GAMBLER IN HADES.

Father Vaughan's Story of His Strange Dream.

Speaking before a large and fashionable audience at the Mansion House, Dublin, the other day, Father Vaughan said that going the round of the clubs in London was the story that a certain noted gambler had found himself, by some good luck, in heaven. Being out of place there, he asked leave to go down to his own quarters, and there he gambled away his return ticket, the lady cheat who won it getting thereby to heaven.

Father Vaughan said that he, too, had had a dream about the subject. As he lay awake in Dublin one night he fancied he saw in one of the outer courts of heaven the well-known London gambler referred to, pacing to and fro in search of a pal, but none such came. At last, being able to stand the lonely situation no longer, he went to St. Peter at the Golden Gate, and, confessing that it was by cheating that he had passed through, he begged for a pass-out ticket to see how his old friends were doing down below. There he found an enormous crowd of well-known betting men and women in low and slovenly dress, all being forced to play bridge with no stakes and in dead silence. For some time he watched at the various tables the faces of the players, in which rage, despair, and hatred were depicted in every feature. At length the passion to play awoke once more in him, he drew forth his return ticket to heaven, he played, and he lost.
The return ticket was secured by a noted and fashionable society woman, who was known to be a confirmed cheat. She dashed with the release ticket from the gambling saloon, making for the iron gates. There she was met by Satan, who, after congratulating her on her luck, pointed to the words, "Not transferable."

She screamed, and tore to shreds the ticket, when the devil led her back to the tables to resume her everlasting play. "See, he exclaimed, "these letters of fire." All hope abandon, ye who enter here."

Death or Lunacy seemed the only alternative for a well-known and highly respected lady of Wingham, Ont., who had travelled over two continents in a vain search for a cure for nervous debility and dyspepsia. A friend recommended South American Nervine. One bottle helped, six bottles cured, and her own written testimony closes with these words, "It has saved my life."

Sold by C. H. Gunn & Co., and police to arrest an Indian at Otter Lake, some 30 miles back from Hull among the Laurentian Mountains.

The Indian shot Ballif Seguin of Hull, who was sent to arrest him for violating the game laws. Seguin is dangerously ill, but may recover.
