THE IDEAL HOME.

Man's Ideas Constantly Change as He

As the male member of the human pecies advances in years his ideas as o what constitutes an ideal dwelling change so absolutely that there is between the different places he would select almost no similarity.

At three years old his ideal is a tent formed from a table cover, a blanket. a spread, a piece of carpet, or any other material that can be so arranged that it will form a little place into which to crawl.

At six the best possible dwelling is hut built of barrel staves, boards and planks, and unknown to persecuting dults, and especially to policemen. A boy of ten would select a spacious

A boy of ten would select a spachula-cave, with a marvelous secret entrance, preferably with the entrance under water at flood tide, with the floors cov-ered with heavy costly carpets, the walls decorated with deadly weapons inlaid with gold, silver and precious stones, and with enough food stowed away to enable the inhabitants of the place to live for a year if necessary.

At twenty the heart's desire is a room in a large hotel where the cost would be at least $3 a day and where there would be a dinner at 7 o'clock. with lots of pretty and rich women present, a big smoking room and plenty of stationery with a heavy gold monogram or crest stamped on it. At twenty-five the best possible home is a neat, comfortable modern flat in some respectable neighborhood, not too far from the cars, theaters and shopping district, and with asphalted streets so there will not be too much noise.

At thirty-five the only proper dwelling is a town house, preferably situated near houses of men whose wealth reckened in the tens of millions of dollars and who really have considerable money, said house to have a mammoth ballroom, music room and art gallery, and in addition to this house another country house within easy distance of the city, and still again, in addition to these two houses, a modest but quaintly elegant cottage at some popular seashore resort.

At fifty a man's tastes have toned down, and he longs for a little cottage in the country, where all is quiet, where birds sing and there are chickens in the yard, a cow in the stable, a goodly plot of ground that continually yields an unfailing supply of fresh vegetables and where all is modesty, sweet content and freedom from the usual annoyances that make life a

At sixty the cottage has grown smaller, and the man would be con-tent with less ground, fewer chickens and vegetables and could get along quite nicely without the cow.

At seventy any place will do so long as a man is not disturbed and has reasonable assurance that he will not be. -Exchange.

Victims of Old Jokes

A hospital surgeon says that there is more facial paralysis among bank paying tellers, photographers and elevator operators than in any other classes. He accounts for it with the words, 'Old jokes."

"Jokes! How so?" Whenever a bank clerk hands out fresh, crisp bill, the man on the other ide of the window says: 'New money ch? Made it yourself, I suppose?' It s up to the teller to force a laugh. The man on the chair says, 'Ain't you afraid I'll break the camera? would be mortally wounded if the operitor did not laugh. One man out of every ten will enter an elevator and say to the boy at the rope, 'Lots of ups and downs in your life, ain't here? The boy forces a smile.

"Year after year of this sort of busi-ness tells in the long run. The victims come here for treatment, and we can out no hope to them unless they get into another line of labor?

Medford and Its Rum.

The American Gazeteer, published in 1810. has the following: "Medford, a pleafant, thriving compact town in Middlefex county, Maffachufetts, four miler north of Bofton, fituated on the Myftic river, three milef from itf mouth. The river is navigable for fmall veffels to this place, where it meet the Middlefex canal. The towhole was incorporated in 1620 and confhip was incorporated in 1630 and con-tains 1114 inhabitanti, who are noted for their industry. Here is a postoffice. Mamma's Baby.
"Pretty? No, I won't say baby is pretty," declared a young mother, "for I can speak of him impartially even though he is my own, and that's more than most mothers can do. He has lovely blue eyes, perfect in shape, hair like the morning sunshine, mouth-well, no rosebud could be sweeter; com-plexion divinely fair, nose just too charming for anything—in fact, he's faultless, but I won't say he's pretty."

"Oh, yes, he's a very intellectual

"What makes you think that?" "I judged so from his talk."
"What does he talk about?"

"He's always talking about how tellectual he is." How He Won.

How He Won.

How did you get along with that mining proposition that fellow wanted you to go into?"

"I made $5,000 out of it."

"You did! How did you do that?"

"By not going into it."

"With a heart overflowing with gratitude will endeavor to write you. It is nearly two years ago since I first wrote to you for advice regarding my health which was then very bad, writes Mrs. L. Poore, of Hinesdale, Ky., to Dr. R. V. Pierce.

Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y. "I have described my sufferings in other letters to you. After receiving your advice and the 'Common Sense Medical Adviser' I bought some of your 'Favorite Prescription,' and to day am a well woman and the proud mother of a dear little boy."

Backed up by over a think of the production o am a well woman and the prond mother of a dear little boy."

Backed up by over a third of a century of remarkable cures, a record such as no other remedy for the diseases and weaknesses peculiar to women ever attained, the proprietors and makers of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription now feel fully warranted in offering to pay $500 in legal money of the United States, for any case of Leucorrhea, Female Weakness, Prolapsus, or Palling of Womb which they cannot cure. All they ask is a fair and reasonable trial of their means of cure.

Their financial responsibility is well known to every newspaper publisher and druggist in the United States, with most of whom they have done business for over a third of a century.

How to live in health and happiness, is the general theme of Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser. Light and Sound.

Light travels so vastly much faster than sound that there is no comparison between their velocities. The velocity of light is about 190,000 miles second. At this speed light will travel about eight times around the earth in second, and light starting from the sun will traverse the 93,000,000 miles of space intervening between the sun and the earth in eight minutes. So it is seen light flashes from one part of the earth to another, even the most remote, instantaneously, or practically so. Sound travels worse than a snail's pace as compared with light, going only about 1,100 feet in a second, or about a mile in five seconds, or twelve miles in a minute. These facts are no-ticed, though not always understood, by any one who sees a gun fired only a few hundred yards away. The flash and the puff of smoke are seen instantaneously; the report of the gun always comes perceptibly later, the time intervening being greater or less, according to the distance.

Catching the Early Spider. One must be an early riser if he would photograph a spider's web, for the delicate fabric must be taken when the dew is yet on it, so that the outlines will be in sharp relief. The best success is obtained when the webs are on pine trees, and spiders seem to favor these trees because of the shelter they afford. Look on the least exposed side of the tree for your web, for instinct teaches the little creatures to make their homes where the strong winds do not strike. In taking the picture the lens should be brought very near the web, in order to make the threads as large as possible. I have photographed a spider's web with a 4 by 5 camera and with a 61/2 by 81/2 instrument, having equally good success in each case. It is well to have a rubber focusing cloth and to keep it over the camera all the time, for the person who hunts spiders' webs early in the morning must be prepared for

WE SHOULD READ POETRY.

The Need to Keep Alive Faith In Spiritual Literature.

Analysis is encouraged by our civili-sation more than the sense of beauty. It is a scientific age, and we are all in danger to some extent of that atrophy of the imagination of which Darwin is the most famous case. Poetry is in literature that branch which appeals primarily to the imagination and helps to keep it alive, as exercise helps to preserve the body. As we do not preduce much poetry or other imaginative art we are thrown back upon the past, and this increases the necessity of education in poetry, for forms of expressien which are not centemporary are seldom entirely appreciated without training. Often people of the best nat-ural taste are less open to certain beauties than others less naturally appre-ciative, but with more mental and aesthetic exercise in youth. The most sincere minds reject most emphatically any pretense of caring for what they really do not enjoy. Thus among the truest natures of our acquaintance one sees nothing in early painting, another in poetry and a third in the higher music, all from lack rather of training than of eye, ear or fancy. In the circumstances of our day it is more important in a child's education that he should be prepared to like and understand Spenser and Werdsworth, Milton, Burns and Shelley than that he should early acquire a realistic mode of thinking or a start in scientific in formation. Exact knowledge and logic in this age will take care of themselves, but it requires more care to keep alive that

FIRE WORSHIP.

Reminiscences of It Are Still to Be Found in Scotland.

Reminiscences of the pre-Christian days of Baal worship and fire wership are still to be found occasionally in Scotland. A few years age a traveler wrote: "On the last day of the year, eld style, which falls on Jan. 12, the festival of 'the clavie' takes place in Burghead, a fishing village near Ferres. On a headland in that village still stands an old Roman altar, locally called the 'deuro.' On the evening of Jan. 12 a large tar barrel is set on fire and carried by one of the fishermen round the town, while the assembled folk shout and halloe. If the man whe carries the barrel falls it is an evil omen The man with the lighted barrel, having gone with it round the town, carries it up to the top of the hill and places it on the 'douro.' "More fuel is immediately added. The sparks as they fly upward are sup-posed to be witches and evil spirits leaving the town. The people, therefore, shout at and curse them as they disappear in vacancy. When the burning barrel falls in pieces the fisherwives rush in and endeavor to get a lighted bit of wood from its remains. With this light the fire on the cottage hearth is at once kindled, and it is considered lucky to keep this flame all the rest of the year. The charcoal of the 'clavie' is collected and put in bits up the chimney to prevent the witches and evil spirits from entering the

There must be more vitality in French art as a whole than you would guess from a visit to the salons. Nay, there is. I do not say that it is healthy anywhere. The great days are gone, but still, out of doors—in posters, in illustrations for the journals, in bijouterie, in the ornamentation of shops, even in the pictures in railway termini—there are still signs that the plastic arts have a vitality in France, more vitality than with us. It is often vulgar enough, but at least it is bold.— London Outlook.

Sea Birds.

Sea birds frequently spend weeks at sea and are believed to quench their thirst partly from the fat and oil which thirst partly from the fat and oil which they devour ravenously when oppor-tunity puts them in their way. The keen eyesight of birds is well known, and sea birds have been observed flocking toward the storm cloud about to burst from all points of the com-pass, and apparently drinking the water as it descends from the skies.

PLAYING CARDS.

Relationship Shown Between Them It is an old saying, and it may be true, that there is nothing new under the sun, but J. B. Schmalz has just discovered a remarkable relationship between playing cards and certain scientific records of the pyramid of Cheops. The system by which cards were originated and the theory of their inven-tion has ever been a mystery, but now Mr. Schmalz has evolved a theory which is so convincing and capable of mathematical demonstration that every lover of cards will be interested.

Not all the discoveries can be dis-closed here, but an inkling can be derived from the statement that the card values are based upon the solar year and its divisions into days, months seasons and lunar circuits-viz, the fifty-two cards in the pack represent the weeks in a year, the twelve picture cards represent the twelve months in the year, the four suits the four seasons and the thirteen cards in each suit the thirteen lunar circuits in the year. This has great significance when we consider the fact that the perimeter of base of the great pyramid incorpo rates the days in a solar year (365.24 a hundred times in inches, or 36,524

Mr. Schmalz takes up the dimensions of the pyramid and then by calculations based on the cards and the known mathematics relative to the pyramid proceeds to show that cards are the original book of record of the pyramid of Cheeps. He comes to the conclusion that cards are written in universal language of symbolism and are therefore the oldest and most remarkable book in man's possession. The author claims to have solved what has hitherto been called an unsolvable mystery.-Boston Globe.
