THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS AFTER TWO YEARS

In the August Atlantic Monthly, Raymond B. Fosdick has an interesting lengthy article in defense of the League of Nations. In part, he says:

To its enemies in the United States the League of Nations must seem an unconscious time a-dying. For more than two years it has tenaciously clung to life despite repeated prophecies of approaching demise. Occasionally, indeed, its actual death has been announced—once by the President of the United States—and preparations have been begun in high places to celebrate the obsequies.

But somehow the League of Nations still lives. More than that, it shows a surprising vitality. In spite of hard treatment and some neglect it seems to gain in strength and purpose.

Certainly the League, as it is today, with all the manifold activities which it is initiating and guiding, is a far different creature from the feeble offspring which the Treaty of Versailles so laboriously brought into the world.

For one thing, it has more friends. Only a handful of the larger Powers stood sponsor for it at its birth. It was eyed with suspicion by the smaller nations. Today these smaller nations are its warmest supporters, and fifty-one countries are now enrolled under its standard, representing, in all, more than four fifths of the world's population, and nearly three fourths of its area.

The list of absentees among the supporters of the League is more easily called than the roll of its membership: Abyssinia, Afghanistan, Ecuador, Germany, Hungary, Iceland, Mexico, Russia, Turkey, and the United States.

But it is not size alone which gives the League significance or which has brought it increasing vitality. With no precedents to follow, with no traditions to bind it, the league has struck out boldly in a new direction. On the theory that, if the nations of the world can get together for discussion around a common table, many of the conflicts of interest and misunderstandings of purpose can be reconciled and smoothed away, and many of the outstanding problems which confront all nations alike can be overcome, the League has built up machinery for international conferences such as no previous generation has possessed. And the machinery is working. However the enemies of the League may scoff at its impracticable purposes, the fact remains that, through the machinery which the League has brought into being, the nations are today sitting in conference on their common problems to a degree undreamed of a decade ago. Whatever mistakes may have been made in the formation of the League, and they were not a few,—within two years of its birth it has proved itself successful as an instrument for drawing the world together in common counsel.

A VALUABLE DOLLAR

Robert Dollar head of a great trans Pacific steamship line, business magnate, and Christian statesman is one of the striking instances of the triumph of industry, honesty, and pluck over many obstacles to success. Like Dr. Graham Bell, he was born in Scotland (Falkirk), in 1844, so that he is now 78 years of age. In the World's Work, in giving some account of trade across the Pacific he tells some interesting things about himself. He says "I was fourteen when my father brought his family from Glasgow to Quebec on the sailing ship Anglesia, a passage that occupied five weeks. Two years earlier I had taken my first job in a machine shop feeding a lathe, at the rate of half a crown or about sixty cents for a week's work, and sixty-five years after that job, I find the following note written on the last page of my 1921 diary:

"I closed this year by putting in a full day's work, and went home satisfied that I had done my best during the year. Not that I have done well nor that I have accomplished all that I might have done, but by persistent hard work I can safely say that I have given the best that was in me for the cause of Christ, and in my business I have striven to increase and develop American foreign commerce."
 "From 1858 (when 14), when I secured a job in a Canadian lumber camp—or shanty, as we called it then—at ten dollars a month until 1888. I was continuously engaged in lumbering in various parts of Canada and Michigan. By the late 'eighties good, large timber was getting scarce and hard to find on the upper peninsula of Michigan, and the profits were diminishing every year, so I moved to California," etc.
 "On the way to New York and England a year or so ago I stopped off at Ottawa. Senator W. C. Edwards took me up the Gatineau to see the places where as a boy, I started work in the lumber shanties. To say I was intensely interested does not express it, as I left there fifty-seven years ago. Many of the places came back to my mind, but I had known the country as an unbroken forest with no one living near, and at that time it was certainly a wild country.
 I visited the site of the first shanty I worked in. The lake I used to carry the water from was there, and the ground on which the camp was built where I washed the dishes and did the chores. But instead of the unbroken forest there was a beautiful cultivated field. The forest had disappeared and it was difficult for me to realize the tremendous change that had taken place. The country was dotted with farmers' homes. There was an automobile road where when I was a boy we carried our bags of clothes on our backs and marched Indian file through the woods trail."

Grain Harvest Under Way In Many Sections

The grain harvest is under way in parts of New Brunswick. In other sections the harvest will not begin for some days. Carleton and parts of York County are well along with the harvesting of oats, wheat and barley. All grains have been heavy crops and harvesting unfavorable weather will be harvested in excellent condition.

August 15th is generally taken as the beginning of the harvest season which is about at its average state for the time.

Harvesting Hay
 In Westmorland County the haying season has been delayed beyond that in the rest of the province. The upland hay there was cut in fine condition and the farmers are now at work on the marshlands.

Root Crops Promise Well
 With grain in great condition root crops also promise well. Potatoes have escaped rust or blight except in isolated places. The cool nights are responsible for escaping the blight which made a sporadic appearance some weeks ago but has done little damage. Turnips are looking well in all sections. The present year should be one of the best for agricultural production ever experienced in this province.
