We meet a case of pitiful distress upon the street, or one comes to our door, or we read of one in the paper, and we put our hands down in our pockets and out comes a coin, and then we go off, you and I, with consciousness of a worthy act of charity that keeps our hearts warmed all day with a fine glow of self-gratification. We call that charity, don't we? Pshaw! there isn't a touch of charity about it. Money is the easiest thing in the world to give. If the petitioner had asked some of that precious time of yours, which you can spend so readily for your own good pleasure, or if his comfort were to be secured only at the expense of yours, how greatly inclined would you be toward the self-sacrifice? Money is such a cheap thing to give for those who have it. It is the only the way very poor who can get the deepest blessedness of giving out of a gift of money-when the pennies are so scanty that the sharing of them means a sharing of the bread the givers put at their lips. A few days ago the Sun told the story of the sad fortunes of Patrick Shields, whose wife died suddenly on New Year's night, and left him with two year-old babies. The Shieldses had reached the last penny of their savings, and now here were death and two hungry half-clad babies. In the next room to the Shieldies lived an English woman with four children of her own to care for and no husband to help. She was poor, too, desperately poor, and she had known the Shieldses only two weeks. But when death came to them, in she stepped and carried the two sickly, crying babies to her own little room. For four nights they slept in her bed, and she slept on a bed on the floor, what time she was not pacing the floor with the children in her arms. Her last pennies went for milk to put into their mouths, and then her one good dress went to the pawnbroker's for money to put shoes and stockings on the little bare feet. She housed them and washed them and dressed them and mothered them as their own mother would have done, and for the four days that they were given her she gave up all her outside work that she might belong to them alone. When their father finally found a place where they could be cared for, she said, with tears rolling down her face. "Take them away, at once. If they and I can't work for so many." And yet there was nothing especially attractive about these children—they were sick and ed being hungry long enough to smile. It's easy to give a dollar to a starved looking wretch, and it's pleasant to give a overboard, with the hope of being rescumoment's caress to a rosy, laughing, well- ed by their boat, and who had failed in knees for mercy. A VORTEX OF DEATH.

A Steamer's Side Rent by an Ironclad's Ram—The Maddened Emigrants Fight for Their Lives. GIBRALTAR, March 18. - It has not been ossible till now to give an authentic account of the "Utopia" disaster, the failing light making it difficult to see from the shore what was going on at the scene of the disaster, and the terrible gale making it almost impossible to communicate with the vessels until a late hour to-day. Early last evening the "Utopia" was seen steaming into the bay in the direction of the anchorage. When abreast of the British ironclad Ansoa the Utopia staggered, as though unable to make headway against the terrible current. Suddenly the strong gale, combined with the current, swept the ill-fated vessel across the bows of Anson, and in a moment her hull was pierced and cut by the ram of the ironclad. The Utopia, after pulling clear of the ironclad, drifted about before wind and sea. The through the rent in her side caused her to
