The Message of Easter Morning.

REV. F. R. MATTHEWS, Pres. Methodist Conference.

Following the Christmas season we all read cheering stories of the cessation of hostilities on certain portions of the firing line between the Germans and English. There was only one Name in that hour could summon men to peace and it is our wonder if we shall read the same concerning Good Friday and Easter. No one questions the relative importance of Xmas and Easter. The Epistles as well as the faith of the church have settled it. The birth of Christ is only mentioned by the Apostle Paul from a doctrinal standpoint on occasion, the death and crucifixion of Jesus Christ are ever before his vision. Why then did hostilities cease at Xmas? Because the soldier thought of the past, his home-like children and the Babe of Bethlehem. We can appreciate a babe. Why then will we probably not cease on Good Friday, because the world does not understand the meaning of "reconciliation by the Cross." If we did, out of this struggle would come lasting peace, the peace of submission to God through the atoning blood. We could be assured this was "war against war." We would know a new righteousness was coming to men and we would not look for another treaty at Berlin or Paris or London, but a peace in the name above every name.

the dead and remained for some time, intermittently visible to his friends, holding conversation with them, even eating in their presence before He ascended out of their sight. This scriptural narrative is absolutely without parallel in the world's records. It transcends in interest and significance any series of facts known to man. Failing this it is the most speaking exploit of human hopes and leaves the future in a darkness unveiled to the world still.

There is no need of argument for the authenticity of the witness of the Resurrection on this occasion, save to note, men of most subtle intellectual genius have tried to explain it away. The very blossoming of their mind lies wrapped amongst the living, thinking of men, and their very purpose has been, ultimately, a stain on their thought if not their character. Dr. Grenfell bases his belief in immortality on the thought of his desire for it. Prof. James, of Harvard, used the same idea for the same purpose by telling us men longed for life everywhere, even in China. That to him at least was a proof of immortality. "Easter" gives us all we can ever know here, and the experience of the Easter faith has left "human kind" with a conviction of certainty that has brought peace. The intimations of a future life are an integral part of the equipment of universal man. In our highest moral moments we are conscious of our relationship to a higher and fuller life. We are conscious of it now as we look into the faces of the finest sons of our Empire who have so freely and splendidly if not sadly, laid down their lives for us all. They loved life as we do, they left their homes and their lovers, the tales and tragedies of their last moments have stirred us to the depths. What an utterly inexplicable thing is life if there be not a moral and spiritual universe. They are helping to redeem the world even though we may not see it. The Resurrection of Christ seals it all. It is a revelation of a wider life than is possible here, not wider perhaps than we have the longing for, or than we sometimes conceive as the completion of our imperfect lives. Those who have gone from us claiming the mercy of Jesus have only entered on that life the sooner.

We are called anew as we look over the world of death, the world's dead men in unknown and unmarked graves on land and sea, to think of Jesus. The record is He arose from the tomb.

There is no telling how quickly Nerviline breaks up a hard racking cough, eases a tight chest, relieves a pleuritic pain. Why, there isn't another liniment with half the power, the penetrative qualities, the honest merit that has made Nerviline the most popular American household liniment.

The Congestion From a Bad Cold Loosened Up in One Hour.

If Rubbed on at Night You're Well Next Morning.

NERVILINE NEVER FAILS.

When that cold comes, how is it to be cured? This method is simplicity itself. Rub the chest and throat vigorously with "Nerviline." Rub it in good and deep. Lots of rubbing can't do any harm. Then put some Nerviline in the water and use it as a gargle; this will ease the cough, cut out the phlegm, assist in breaking up the cold quickly.

In Jesus we have more than the case of one being brought back to life who had lain in the grave three days. That would not be unique in the world's record. Jesus, however, is unique. He did not return to the former life. He was raised in glory. He came in bodily form but he was altered utterly. A study of the narrative will reveal what was a miracle to the natural body was of ordinary occurrence to the spiritual body. There were no limitations of matter and space. He is an occasional visitor to His disciples not an abiding companion. He is no ghost. He eats as a guest but acts the part of host and in a higher sense than if He were human. In Christ we have one who is human in His love and interest, "Go tell Peter," "lovest thou Me more than these," yet the Christ we think of now is superhuman in His power and the extent of His interests.

It is our duty to attend our churches for the spirit of a stranger faith: "if you then be risen with Christ seek those things which are above." If we have not done so before let us regard death and life in a new way. Life here is but a stage in growth, into the new life will go what is worthy in this, our passing is but a change not an ending. What purifying hopes we have in Christ! Easter we must remember does not supersede Good Friday. "Christ died for us the first for the unjust to bring us to God." "He was raised again for our justification," not merely theological but a justification for our present order of being. "Once in the end of the world Christ has put away sin by the sacrifice of Himself." May all your readers be happy in the Easter faith of hope.

—F. R. MATTHEWS.

ORDUNA TAKES TWO 15-INCH GUNS.

Six steamships sailed from New York last Saturday for European ports laden with guns, ammunition, food, and clothing for the Allies. The war material shipments were worth, at a conservative estimate $2,000,000.

Interest among the throng on the Cunard pier centred upon the two 15-inch guns lashed to cradles on each side of the main deck of the Orduna. They came from the Bethlehem Steel Works. The guns were 53 feet long, 43 inches through the breech, and weighed 73 tons. They were heavily coated with brown paint to prevent the metal being damaged by salt water on the way over. They were consigned to Newcastle-on-Tyne, and there was no attempt at concealment, as the guns could be seen plainly from the pier.

Smaller pieces of ordnance, cases of shells and machinery were lowered into the hold of the Orduna, which was already nearly filled to the hatches with canned food and barrels of pork and beef.

The White Star Liner Adriatic was delayed five hours sailing for Liverpool to take aboard 150 armored motor trucks, consigned by American manufacturers to the British Government.

An Egotistical Tale.

By RUTH CAMERON.

I'm going to be very egotistical and tell you a story about myself to-day.

The reason I do it is because I think it may also be a story about you. It is about a young girl and as it has a happy ending which I've reached and you may not have, it may make you read your story with a more optimistic eye.

Four months ago to-day I went to the place which was to be my home for the winter.

Homelessness, The Seasickness of the Heart.

I don't think I was ever more unhappy in my life. In the first place I was homesick and anyone who has ever had that seasickness of the heart knows how it makes our blood feel like dishwater and your heart like something rather heavier than lead.

In the second place my new home presented several unexpected problems which the homesickness helped make me feel physically and mentally unable to face.

I was on the verge of tears about half the time and over the verge about a quarter.

I didn't see why I ever came and I never would have stayed if I hadn't had to. Five months looked like an eternity to me. I used to turn over the leaves on the calendar and look longingly at the month marked April and wonder if it would ever come, and positively ache with longing to have the power to tear the intervening months off the calendar and out of my life. I would certainly have

Halibut Fishery

SKIFFS DOING POORLY.

According to late reports from the Halibut fishing section, the halibut fishery has been as good this season as in any previous years, and some fishermen with fair wages, principally because of the high price of the fish. Halibut are now practically closed by the boats and skiffs coming around Burgeo and L. but doing anything in the way of the boats are the reason for the falling of catch this season, the boats tend that they are hand the large fleet of schooners in that neighborhood.
