BASEBALL

BRANTFORD'S DEBUT. Brantford boys will no doubt long remember their debut in this city as ball twirlers, and if they don't London will. As soon as they made their appearance on the field the spectators surmised how it would end. It was painful to watch them vainly endeavoring to stop ground balls, muff flys, strike out, and go to sleep on the way to the bag. Lyle stepped to the rubber and was presented with a base on balls. Davidson flied out, and the next seven batters dodged the ball with the bat as fast as they came up. The only redeeming point of the Brantfords was Bond's work in center field. He gathered in everything around him, and made a pretty catch of Strowger's hard drive. It was a funny game, and many were the players tnat made the people laugh heart-ity. Burton, the old Alert player, helped the Brantfords out, and after he had endeavored to smash the cover off the ball, but without success, was asked by Snyder as he stepped up for the third time, "Where are you going to hit it now?" Thorpe did fairly good work behind the bat, but Joy's work would have looked a little better if he had been given some kind

The game was an excellent illustration of what it is to play ball and whether or not the Alerts know how. 'imeir tactics were clean, pretty and always effective; and those who think the Alerts can't play might yesterday have been convinced that they have the material and know how. There is a difference at once perceptible in the work of experts and novices, and the Brantfords are evidently in the latter class. Joy was hammered un-When the Brantfords did spoil one of Fisher's shoots they hit it at the grand stand or back of the foul lines, and got as far as third

The work of Fisher and Snyder was exceptionally good. Wood was a stone wall at first, and as pretty as a picture in his plays. They came home in pairs on several occasions, walking from third to the plate two feet apart. Many chances were given Brantford to score, but they didn't get there, and as each inning came to an end down went a goose egg to their credit. Peter Wood was put in the box in the sixth. Joy received the rankest support and struck out London's sluggers, Delaney and Strowger.

When Pitcher Fisher couldn't hit the bat in yesterday's game, he took an effective shot at Farnsworth, who got too far off the bag. Brantford man even tried to steal a base on Snyder. Score:

The effects of yesterday's game may prove fatal to the existence of the Canadian League. If the Brantfords can secure sufficient talent to fortify against such another themselves crushing defeat, they may remain in the league. An effort was made to secure some of the Galt players, but they had all left. There is a feeling that things will dwindle down to a series of games between Guelph and London. If the league disbands, it means that Hamilton is practically shut out. This is the opinion of many of the players would not be alto-gether desirable, but as it is impossible to schedule games for the three clubs, they are reconciled to the fact that what can't be cured must be endured. As Hamilton always made a good showing here, it is likely that some arrangement will be made with them acceptable to the other teams. NATIONAL LEAGUE SCORES-WEDNES-

Cleveland, O., Aug. 13 .- The second day of the international yacht races off this port dawned clear and pleasant. Most interest surrounded the race of the 46-footers. Three and one-half miles from the start the Puritana, of the 40-foot class, carried away her topmast and was out the the race. The Zelma at that time led in the 46-foot class. Of Frank Robinson, a Grand Trunk Teamster.

Thrown From His Wagon on York Street and Almost Instantly Killed-His

Francis Robinson, of 351 Hill street, a teamser on the G. T. R., met death in a tragic manner about 7 o'clock tast night. He had driven to the freight sheds with a load, which he got at D. S. Perrin's establishment, which, as usual, was his last calling place. He unloaded, and then started for the stable to put his horses up for the night. He was seated on a bex, and when near the corner of Waterloo street on York, the box tottered, and Mr. Robinson fell from the wagon over the right side, alighting on his head with sufficient force to break his neck and fracture his skull. The unfortunate man was picked up by Ald Skinner and James Shand, foreman of the Shedden Company, who saw him fall. They carried him to the lawn, bolstered him up on a chair, and sent for Dr. Drake, the company's surgeon.

The doctor pronounced life extinct upon his arrival about five minutes later. Over the left temple there was severe scalp abrasion, as though he had fallen on a stone. The body was removed to Ferguson's undertaking for burial and taken to the family residence about 9:30.

Mr. Shand says after Robinson had fallen he tried to rise on his hands and knees, but sank down again. On Wednesday last deceased had a sunstroke, and only started to work again the following Monday. He was not altogether able to work, and about 4 o'clock on Monday he thought o giving up again as the heat was in-tense, but would not yield.

The horses know when their day's work is done and are apt to start off with a jerk. It may have been this sudden starting of the horses that caused Mr. Robinson to fall, or it may have been a fainting spell brought on from the effect of his re-cent sunstroke. This latter, in the opinion of the doctor, is more probable, because he had been too used to horses and their actions. The deceased man had been in the employ of the company for fifteen years, and was highly thought of by his employers and fellow-workmen. He came to this city sixteen years ago and started for the G. T. R. the following year.
The news of Mr. Robinson's tragic death prostrated his wife and family with grief, and many sympathizing friends called at the house last night to console the bereaved ones. Mr. Robinson had always been a hale and strong man up to a year or so ago, when he became a little feeble. He was 54 years of age, and a native of Durham, England, where he had nine brothers and one sister. Deceased Deceased leaves a wife and four children-two sons and two daughters.
