

KINCARDINE'S OLD HOME WEEK ENDS

MAYOR DEFEATED
IN HIS CONTEST
FOR OPEN POOLSPublic Utilities Commission
Reaffirms Its Order For Sunday Closing.

SPRINGBANK DAM

The mayor arrived at the special meeting of the Public Utilities Commission yesterday with a brief containing over five thousand names, signed on a petition to have the swimming pool at the Thames Park playground open on Sunday.

Counter resolutions and demands from the churches carried their weight with the commissioners, who to a man, opposed the mayor, and consequently his desire to have the pool opened met with defeat. The churches and clubs seeking the intervention of the commission in lighting the mayor were St. Andrew's Presbyterian, Wellington Street Methodist, Centennial Methodist, New St. James' Presbyterian, St. James' Anglican, London South, the Ministerial Alliance, the Union Mothers' Club, and the Local Council of Women.

The mayor's motion that the pool be opened met with a chill reception and a quick defeat, the show of hands opposing the motion ascending to high heaven with military precision. As the mayor proposed his motion he was without a second, and when Mr. Vining, the chairman, asked him about it he replied, "I hardly expected to get a second here for a motion like this."

"Well, that disposes of that matter then," answered the chairman, with a sigh of satisfaction. "It disposes of it as far as this board is concerned, that's all," quoth the mayor.

Police Protection.

Mr. Vining then pointed out that in view of an attempt being made to break into the pool next Sunday some police protection should be arranged. Mr. Buchanan stated that the gates had been cut through last Sunday morning, and that men had been seen bathing in the pool after midnight, and at six in the morning.

A motion by Commissioner McFarland, to the effect that the chief of police be asked to give the protection asked for, was carried, the mayor only dissenting.

The rest of the meeting was taken up with minor business of the commission. The purchase of five thousand water metres was authorized on the report of the general manager that they were needed immediately. The $20,000 authorized by T. A. McMahon for the purchase of playground space within the city limits, was accepted, and it was decided to hold the money in trust until such time as the commission was in a position to make a good buy of a site.

Springbank Dam.

On a motion of the mayor, Manager Buchanan was instructed to prepare plans and estimates as to the cost of erecting a dam across the river at Springbank. The commission was unanimous in supporting this proposal, and will assist the council in placing the idea before the citizens.

Mr. Buchanan reported that the newly-dredged area of the Thames Park is now in working order, a day's pumping over 500,000 gallons of water. Commissioner McFarland, in his report of the Springbank dam, stated that there were seven new deer, two owls, five hawks, a new peacock, and baby buffalo in the gardens this year. No action toward closing Victoria Park was taken, and the mayor was advised that he would have to get the existing laws changed if he wanted to have gates placed there.

MAYOR EXPLAINS WHY
HE CALLED MEETING

Says Ald. Judd Is Merely the
Nominal Head of Finance Committee.

Ald. Albert Judd has only been a nominal chairman of the finance committee for several weeks past, Mayor Wenige opined today.

"He need not be upset because I called a special session of the committee yesterday," his worship declared. "Why, he hasn't been chairman for a good many weeks. He hasn't been around."

"It was imperative that we have a meeting yesterday. The council meets Monday to consider salaries. All along, the aldermen have been urging haste in this matter, and then they kick if a meeting is called to hurry things, or else they do not attend."

"If we did not have a meeting yesterday, we would not have been able to take up the question on Monday. The question had been referred back to the committee, and if no recommendation had been forthcoming, they would be registered objection. In past years, the councillors have been in the habit of adjourning for the summer, and allowing city business to go without their attention. This should not be."

WON THIRD PRIZE.

Robert S. Callender of Windsor took third prize in the marches held at the Caledonian Societies' picnic last Wednesday. There was some mistake in the name of the third winner, and it was not until today that it was known Mr. Callender was the third man.

DANCE ON STREET
ALL NIGHT LONG
IN KINCARDINE

Thunderstorm Dispersed Revelers at Old Home Week's Last Night.

ONE GREAT WEEK

Special to The Advertiser.
Kincardine, July 21.—Thousands of old boys, old girls, and citizens of Kincardine lined the streets last night to make merry on the last evening of their eventful Old Home Week.

Clowns, Jiggs and Muggie and other comedians occupied the roped-off part of the main street and with their antics, gestures and witty sayings brought forth rounds of laughter and applause from the people who crowded outside the ropes.

Following this entertainment the Old Boys selected partners and danced in the streets until early morning when a thunderstorm came up and dispersed the merry makers. Dancing the old fashioned dances, encore after encore was asked for by the light-footed ones. And the Detroit orchestra, which had been brought over for the occasion, played as often as they were asked. Old people as well as young danced to the strains of the old folk music as if inoculated with the elixir of life and exuberance. The Scotch reel, the square dance and other old and popular steps were performed.

Miniature Coney.

Several blocks farther down the street along the Huron beach, the younger generation were also indulging in the dance. Hundreds of the youth of Kincardine and district celebrated the return of their big brothers and sisters to their homes for the week's short visit. The beach was a miniature Coney Island, and shows lined it for over half a mile. Ferris wheels, merry-go-rounds, picture palaces, and fireworks were included in the beach program, and it was long after midnight before the shooting of fireworks into the air ceased. The dance hall kept on despite the threatening storm, and youths and maidens "shook the light fantastic" to the strains of an imported jazz orchestra.

A Night of Midway.

Daylight did not see the end of the celebration, songs and more songs floated through the air from all parts, and all corners of the city. When daylight did come many of the Detroit Old Boys had to catch the early morning train, and farewells were made. "Well, you gain several in the week's visit. The beach was a miniature Coney Island, and shows lined it for over half a mile. Ferris wheels, merry-go-rounds, picture palaces, and fireworks were included in the beach program, and it was long after midnight before the shooting of fireworks into the air ceased. The dance hall kept on despite the threatening storm, and youths and maidens "shook the light fantastic" to the strains of an imported jazz orchestra.

No Accidents.

No accidents have marred the week's joyousness, and to date the Kincardine Old Boys' reunion of 1923 has been the most successful one ever staged. Old Boys have come from California, Michigan, Quebec, and from all parts of Ontario. The completion of this year's reunion's races will see the close of the most eventful week of Kincardine's career.

SEEKS OWNER OF PURSE
FOUND NEAR CITY MARKET

The chief of police wishes to draw the attention of the public to a purse which was lost some time ago on King street near the market, and for which no owner has yet been found. The purse was a small one, and contained a small sum of money, and brought to the police station, where the owner can get it whenever he or she proves ownership to the satisfaction of the police. It is thought that it belongs to a country man or woman, who believes the purse was lost on the road somewhere and does not know that it has been found.

MANY OFFERS FOR HOUSES.

The London board of education anticipates no doubt the disposing of the two houses and the old racing stable that stand on the school property beside the Trafalgar Street School. Applications are reaching the secretary every day for these two houses. MAYOR DEMANDS
STRICT COURTESY
FROM THE POLICEComplaint Is Registered by a Citizen Ordered To Move Car.

WILL INVESTIGATE

As chairman of the London police commission, Mayor Wenige insists upon strict courtesy from members of the police department, and he stated this afternoon that he will again bring this to the attention of his colleagues and the police authorities next week.

Complaint was registered with his worship at noon today by one resident who claimed that he had been ordered to remove his car from the butchers' pavilion on the market square.

"Other cars were there," the man explained to the chairman, "and I asked the officer why I should be removed while they were allowed to remain. He did not give any explanation, but said, 'Go on now, I told you to move, and that settles it.'"

"I am willing to accept the decision, only I felt that as a taxpayer of this city I was entitled to an explanation."

Mayor Wenige is particularly aroused. "I have been urging courtesy all this year from civic employees. I will take this matter up at once. No doubt the officer was quite within his rights to order your removal from that section of the market, as there are those who pay rent for parking on market days."

"If the other cars were there under that regulation, good enough. But I do object to the officer's manner of approach, if he actually acted in that manner. We'll see about that next week."

The complainant stated that, while he was told by a policeman on the beat that it was perfectly within the law to park on the market, he was subsequently ordered to leave by a sergeant of the police.

"He took my name and address, and said that I would hear about this on Tuesday," stated the ratepayer to the mayor.

"Yes, and the market and police authorities will also hear about this. I am sending the chairman of the police commission. Officers of the law must be respectful to the ratepayers in this city."

BELGIANS THINK
POINCARÉ FORGETS
FOREIGN OPINIONBelieve Brussels Big Factor in Ultimate Fate of the Entente.

MAY ISOLATE FRANCE

By WILLIAM E. NASH.
Special Cable to The London Advertiser and Chicago Daily News. Copyright.
Brussels, July 21.—The Belgian mind that the fate of the Entente is being decided quite as much in Brussels as in Paris and London. Premier Poincaré of France can modify the view enough to keep in touch with certain only through mediation with Belgium. It is believed here, because of his personal character, his following in Parliament and the strength of his position in the Ruhr make it difficult, if not impossible, to yield directly. When a statesman has the support of the public at home, such as Poincaré has in France, he often underestimates the value of public support abroad, the Belgians say.

Helps French Prestige.

In reference to this country, however, the French premier cannot adopt a stubborn and suspicious attitude. They believe he knows Belgium is disinterested in friendship for France, and realizes Belgium's presence in the Ruhr area helps the prestige of France enormously abroad.

If Belgium should withdraw from the French camp, as she is at liberty to do, Poincaré would go down in history as the man who succeeded in bringing about a complete isolation of his country in European politics.

Consequently the Belgians think, he will be willing to go to considerable lengths to retain the support of Belgium and mollify the support of Belgium if they insist on concessions during their trip to Paris next Monday.

Similar arguments apply to England and also. Premier Baldwin is quite much convinced as to the righteousness of his view on Poincaré. It is stated, but he understands, the other hand, the importance of the key position occupied by Belgium and the desire to retain the support of Belgium and mollify the support of Belgium if they insist on concessions during their trip to Paris next Monday.

Isolate Poincaré.

He, as well as other British statesmen, is supposed to realize how advantageous it would be for them to have Belgium on their side. In addition to these arguments, every one knows the extent of the role played by Belgium in the diplomatic history of the world, and French leaders might be inclined to yield more than they indicate on the surface if they could save their faces by doing so gracefully and without contradicting assertions.

If outside observers realize the existence of this factor, the ministers of the Belgian cabinet also must realize it and know how to take advantage of it. Belgian public opinion realizes fully the gravity of the role played by Belgium in the Franco-British reparations contest. There is a feeling of uneasiness in the air. People who ordinarily show no interest in politics now talk about it with eagerness.

The sedate newspapers of Brussels come out daily with long articles explaining what Belgium's conduct must be and if they are not satisfied with the French position, they demand the maintenance of safeguards in the Rhine and the Ruhr to protect against the danger of another German invasion in the future. It is not our fault if Belgium lies on the border of Berlin to Paris, and if Belgium through no offense of her own has become the enemy of Germany.

Because of Reason.

It says: "Not because of sentiment, but because of reason, Belgium must remain at the side of France. The interests of England in the reparations dispute are primarily commercial, and demand the restoration and reconstruction of Germany to act as an outlet for English exports. The interests of France are primarily political, and demand the maintenance of safeguards in the Rhine and the Ruhr to protect against the danger of another German invasion in the future. It is not our fault if Belgium lies on the border of Berlin to Paris, and if Belgium through no offense of her own has become the enemy of Germany."

"It is true that Belgium, like England, is an industrial and commercial nation. France, however, is more an agricultural than an industrial nation; hence she can afford to open her frontiers and those of her colonies to Belgian products without harming her own industry. France is one of the best customers we can find in post-war Europe, and new customers we must find to keep alive our over-industrialized and over-populated nation."

MANDATE COMMISSION
PROCLAIMS ATTITUDE

Maintains Right To Criticize
Governing of Smaller Countries.

Associated Press Despatch.
Geneva, July 20.—The mandates commission, which supervises the welfare of 16,000,000 people governed under the mandates of various powers, will insist on its prerogative of criticizing the handling of these territories by the mandatory nations.

This was made clear at today's session of the commission, when Mr. Marquis, its president, protested against the assembly's criticism of the commission's policy of publicity. He insisted that the commission's policies should always be freely voiced, and that otherwise abuses might develop.

Japan, reporting to the commission, claims her administration of the South Sea Islands north of the equator for 1923 has been liberal and progressive.

TEMPERATURE FRIDAY

CAME NEAR TO RECORD

Thermometer Registered 94

Degrees, Approaching

June's High Mark.

Yesterday came within 2 degrees of equalling the high temperature record of June, which will be long remembered as one of the hottest months in years. The thermometer registered 94 in the shade, and held that level late into the afternoon.

Heat ordinarily is not hard to stand this late in the summer, when people have become more or less used to it, but yesterday's heat was accompanied by a humidity and closeness which made it severe. People everywhere complained, and even the farmers, who are glad of heat and clear days at this season of the year, felt that they could do with a little less.

Ice cream parlors did a thriving business, and next to the thermometer the ice cream parlors are the most reliable indicator of high temperatures. The swimming pools about the city received their full share of appreciation, and the younger people splashed through what would otherwise have been a tiresome day.

Port Stanley and Springbank proved a great boon to the city folks, and both resorts had many visitors.

Those who profess to understand the weather and its moods predict heavy rains in the near future, but the farmers at least will not worry as long as each rainfall is followed closely by a slow start. As one farmer on the market said this morning: "It's great grown' weather."

TRAIN STRIKES TRUCK

Not Working At New
Glasgow.Canadian Press Despatch.
New Glasgow, July 20.—George Fraser and Frederick Geddes, ice men, were both instantly killed this afternoon when their motor truck was struck at the level crossing on Kemp street by a slow moving freight train. The truck was demolished, dying instantly. The two men were killed. The train was stopped by the signal, and the men were attempting to jump when the train was upon them. An electric signal bell guards the crossing, but there are rumors that it was not working at the time of the accident.

John McKay, a New Glasgow street foreman, was killed in the same spot some time ago. Both victims of today's tragedy were married.

The Brownings were married in 1915 and have no children.
