Local Market

Unlike other Tuesday mornings, even though the weather is a trifie blussery, little or no produce was offered on the local market this morning.

A slow demand continues to prevail for hay, and this situation is likely to outlast the week. Easily 50 loads were disposed of on the market last week, and buyers now report that practically all their orders for immediate delivery are now filled. From $14 to $15 a ton is being asked. A few exceptionally fine loads have brought $15.50 a fon.

The keem-demand for oats and wheat remains, but available supplies are very meagre.
