

Lord Rosebery's Consultation With Him is Regarded as Significant of the Fact That the Sage of Hawarden Has Not Altogether Retired From Political Leadership—Banks Causes Trouble.

London, Nov. 18.—That the influence of Mr. Gladstone, despite his retirement from the Liberal leadership, is still paramount in the guidance of the affairs of that party is plainly visible in Lord Rosebery's latest proposal touching the House of Lords. A division of opinion among the members of the Cabinet as to what form the resolution for the abolition of the veto power of the House of Lords should take, and regarding the most suitable time for the introduction of the question in the House of Commons, led to Lord Rosebery's visit to Hawarden. Acting under the inspiration that obtained the Premier forethoughted the resolution in Glasgow for a second chamber, with a system of conference in disputed matters between delegates from the two Houses, in which the delegates from the House would largely over-balance those from the Lords. Obviously the Ministers have under consideration some plan which is still too shadowy to permit of its being disclosed. Sir William Harcourt, Chancellor of the Exchequer, and Mr. Henry Campbell-Bannerman, Secretary of State for War, opposed Lord Rosebery's desire to propose the question of reform of the House of Lords early in the coming session of Parliament. They argued that the best course to adopt will be to hold the resolution in reserve until the Ministry shall be ready for a dissolution. It is improbable that the Conservative leaders will be willing to wait the convenience of the Government. Lord Salisbury, it is known, is determined to force their hand by passing in the House of Lords, immediately the session shall be opened, a motion affirming the possession by that body of Executive privileges. This will necessitate the introduction in the session of a counter-resolution, and will cause a crisis which will make a dissolution imperative. Mr. Henry Labouchere voiced the unanimous conviction of the Liberal party when he declared that the coming election would be lost unless the resolution of the House of Lords should be a mixed British-Turkish compromise. The second chamber, Mr. Labouchere declared, must be chosen by a free and unrestricted vote of the electorate.

Mr. Macleod's Statement. The statement made by Hon. Edward Blake M.P. for the south division of Longford, during his recent visit to America, that Baron Tweedmouth had offered the McCarthyite section of the Irish Parliamentary party £200,000 to be taken notice of by Parliament as an attempt at corruption in the purchase of votes, the members of the Liberal party had the most serious concern. The offer was a legitimate contribution to the Parliamentary fund. The parties, however, were able to show close hands, and the offer was rejected, and will not afford Mr. Blake any ground for scandal, but Mr. Blake's reputation for probity and reticence has suffered severely.

England's School Question. A fierce campaign against the London School Board exists, which involves issues that the religious press speaks of as among the gravest in the history of the metropolis and the country. The vote, which will be taken on Thursday, will decide whether the religious, but not the secular, element on the board shall be able to exercise their right of electing a majority of the board, or whether they shall be reduced to a minority, and the secular element shall be able to elect a majority. The English High Church and the Catholic clergy are united in their work among the electorate, and denounce their progressive opponents, though the latter are not non-conformist. The letters and a section of the English Church clergy as enemies of religion in their intent to secularize the schools. As the result will have a very great effect upon the whole national system of public instruction, the Queen's Veto Failing. Observers of the arrival at Windsor of Queen Victoria noticed that Her Majesty's general weakness and lameness had visibly increased. She required assistance in passing up the slightly inclined gangway from the landing to the train which was in waiting.

Princess Claudine of Teck Dead. London, Nov. 18.—Princess Claudine of Teck, sister of the Duke of Teck and aunt of the Duchess of York, died suddenly to-day at Gratz, Austria. The Duke of Teck has gone to Gratz to attend the funeral. Princess Claudine was born Feb. 11, 1856.

Whole Villages Destroyed. Terrible Earthquakes Shake Southern Italy and Kill Many People. Rome, Nov. 18.—Reports from Southern Italy are still meagre, but they suffice to show that there has been great loss of life. Procopio, a village of 1200 inhabitants, in Reggio di Calabria, has been obliterated. Virtually all the buildings were thrown into ruins. The number of deaths is not known, but in one church 47 persons were buried under fallen walls. The last authoritative report was that the list of dead was above 60. In another village of the same province eight persons were killed by falling buildings. The damage to property has been enormous. Troops and officials are going to the help of the suffering districts. King Humbert has sent several donations from his private purse.

A COUNTERFEIT TEN DOLLAR BILL.

How a Civil Service Candidate Paid His Fees—Impersonation Charged Against Several Other Candidates.

At the civil service exams last Wednesday Government Detective Wasson, who collects the fees in connection therewith, had a bogus $10 bill passed upon him. The student was about 30 in number, and in going round among them to collect the cash the detective took in the money so fast that he did not notice that he gave him his bill. There were only three ten dollar bills given to him, but a rigid investigation failed to reveal who was the guilty party. This was not the only incident in connection with the examination which required investigation. Both the Hon. Charles D. Thompson of Ottawa, who presides over the candidates, and Detective Wasson received anonymous letters three in all, that a bold effort would be made at impersonation. It was said that two candidates, one of whom was a man who did not need to pass the examinations, and the other, an incompetent, would sit together and write and copy the answers on every subject. The names of the two men were given, and they were sitting near to one another as described. In the holding of these examinations the Hon. Charles D. Thompson was given unusual powers by the Government. He is a man of unusual talents like a judge and a counsellor. The two men were summoned and tried in Detective Wasson's office on Friday, but he had no proof against them. They were two Xenotomians of respectable standing.

A HORRIBLE FAKE.

Such Were the Stories of Armenian Massacres According to Harold Frederic. New York, Nov. 18.—Harold Frederic has been very busy with his new novel, a concerted outbreak of Armenian atrocities. The novel is a masterpiece of fiction, and is full of the most stirring and dramatic scenes. It is a story of the Armenian people, and of the terrible massacres which have been committed against them. Clashes the Reports are True.

London, Nov. 18.—The Daily News correspondent in Constantinople says in a cablegram that the massacre of Armenians in the Caucasus is continuing. Sir Philip Currie sent Consul Hamilton to the Porte in connection with the serious nature of the events. The British Government is taking a friendly manner, brusquely rejecting the Armenian claims to revivify this was, of course, a serious effort to help him pay down the Socialist. Barred in Berlin.

They Courted in Switzerland and Were Barred in Canada. Berlin, Oct. 18.—A courtship which began in Switzerland ended happily in this town on Friday last. The bride, Miss Maudie, was the daughter of Edward Haukech of Pueblo, Col. Mr. Haukech is a mining expert or assayer, who was born in Canada. He was in Switzerland some 80 years ago, left the Alps of his native land quite a number of years ago, and came to Canada to make a name and fortune for himself. If possible, in the New World, he succeeded in obtaining a good situation in the silver mines near Pueblo, Col., and he got along well. After a number of years he made a trip to his native land, and there met and fell in love with Miss Maudie, a niece of Mr. Frederick Kettle of Berlin, Ont. His affection was reciprocated, and he left Switzerland, and he was later arranged, during a visit to Berlin, to marry Miss Maudie. The wedding took place on Tuesday last, and the bride and groom were accompanied by a large party of friends. The bride is a very attractive young woman, and the groom is a very capable and successful man.

Not a Dollar's Worth of Furs Will Be Left If Low Prices Count.

Messrs. W. & D. Dineen are now conducting a sale which has never been equalled in quantity, in style and quality of garments and in lowness of price—prices are lower by a very large percentage than ever before quoted in Toronto. The large stock—$150,000 worth of high-quality furs is composed entirely of new style garments, manufactured in the prevailing fashions in Dineen's own factory, and is of the very best workmanship and finish. The stock is now much larger than that of any other dealer in the fur trade, and is of the very best quality. The prices are so low that it is a rare opportunity for the public to obtain such high-quality furs at such low prices. The sale will continue until the stock is exhausted.

A FRANCO-GERMAN ALLIANCE.

OLD ENEMIES COMING TO FRIENDLY GREAT BRITAIN.

Englishmen are beginning to look with distrust upon Germany's youthful and warlike Kaiser—The Dismissal of Caprioli Regarded With Little Favor—Bismarck's Policy Triumphant.

New York, Nov. 18.—George W. Sanklin cables: There is in portion, and a very important portion, of the English press a very marked change of tone toward Germany on the one hand and France on the other. The dismissal of Chancellor von Caprioli by the German Emperor has left a mark on English public opinion. Not sure of the long and circumstantial accounts for the motives for that act given at the time was thought satisfactory by students of German politics. Something was left unaided; there is a secret yet to come out. Whatever it be the manner of the dismissal made a bad impression. Englishmen ever since the dismissal of Prince Bismarck had planned their faith in his successor seem reluctant to accept the successor to Prince Bismarck, and Englishmen who have long looked upon the Emperor as a man of high character and high ability, are now looking upon him as a man of low character and low ability. The note of adulation is no longer heard; a note of alarm is sounded instead. The Emperor's domestic policy, it is said, is a failure. There is something that almost amounts to a crisis about his foreign policy. If his domestic policy concerns Germany, primarily his foreign policy concerns all Europe, and England least of all. England thinks she has had a shabby return for her good will to Germany and for all the moral support she has lent to the Triple Alliance. She is not likely soon to forget the attitude of Germany in the Congo business. It is now believed that Germany and France had acted together and probably in direct diplomatic concert, to humiliate England.

The rebuff of the other day when England suggested intervention between China and Japan was thought wounding. Lord Rosebery says there was no rebuff. He is entitled to clothe the word in his judgment but denotes the effect of Germany's refusal to have any part or lot in the Turkish question. In England then, whether heedlessly or not, entered. These and other evidences of coolness are treasured, at any rate, are traced to the German Emperor himself. That is one reason why the cup now offered to English lips so bitter. England has flattered this young Hohenzollern who plays divine providence to Germany in terms which were fitting until his incense. He is in his turn has flattered France, and he now flatters Russia, and his language and conduct are such as to leave it doubtful on which he wishes to lean. What is not doubtful is his conviction that he can do very well without England.

It is thought ominous that Prince Hohenzollern, should have been so very friendly before the Emperor could be willing to appeal to the statement of the Emperor's own words, he kicked out of office. That, however, is a matter of sentiment. As a matter of fact, Prince Bismarck is known to favor a close alliance with Russia, and it is equally significant if the new Chancellor, with Nicholas II, why is Prince Hohenzollern going to Russia? It is almost equally significant if the new Chancellor wishes to consult the old about domestic affairs, in other words, about socialism. Low must have fallen the Emperor's faith in Prince Bismarck was a mistake, and to his discharged successor to help him pay down the Socialist. One thing will go with the other. If Prince Bismarck triumphs at some time in the future, it will be a serious effort to help him pay down the Socialist.

nevertheless, still but ill content with a second chamber. He was somewhat surprised against a single chamber liable to gusts of passion and certain to legislate upon impulse. He declares himself wholly unimpressed that the Radical friends are wrong, and puts on record a solemn pledge, at any rate, could count on the Emperor's leaving the country to the sole disposition of a single chamber. He listens against. This pledge cuts the ground from under their feet. It goes very far beyond the mere expression of an academic preference for a second chamber; it binds Lord Rosebery, now and hereafter, to a specific course of conduct. It is a declaration of action against the House of Lords. He speaks, of course, as a responsible statesman, and when he says he will never leave the country at the mercy of a single chamber he enters into an engagement with the country not to abolish the House of Lords, nor to destroy its legislative efficiency till he is ready to put something in its place. He is bound in honor to produce a substitute for the existing second chamber before the abolition of the existing one. SHOT BY A MARKED BULLDOG.

An Attempt at Murder and a Successful Robbery. Belleville, Nov. 18.—A daring and partially successful attempt at murder and robbery was made at the residence of Mrs. Adam Saunders, who lives about a mile west of Belleville, near the front of St. Louis, near Jones' Creek. Mrs. Saunders, who is a widow and well-to-do, was sitting in her room at 2 o'clock in the morning when she was aroused by someone in her room. She started up and saw a man, who she recognized as a burglar, who had entered her room. She called out, and the burglar fled. She followed him, and he was shot by a marked bulldog. The burglar was wounded, and the dog was killed. The burglar was taken to the hospital, and is expected to recover. The dog was buried.

DR. LANGTRY AND THE UNEMPLOYED.

The Rev. Gentleman Unfolds a Scheme Which He Thinks Would Be Beneficial to the Unemployed. The subject under discussion at the meeting of the Union for Practical Progress yesterday afternoon was the question of the unemployed. Dr. Langtry was the principal speaker of the day. He proposed a scheme which he thought would be beneficial to the unemployed. He proposed that the unemployed should be organized into a union, and that they should be given the opportunity to work on public works. He thought that this would be a good way to help the unemployed, and that it would be a good way to help the community.
