MR. SAM JONES.

We make another departure from the political pathway in presenting the above gentleman as our next notable. Mr. Jones is not known as a politician, though he takes a rather intense interest in politics. It is not, however, the current party politics of tweedledum and tweedledee as between Grits and Tories, but the broader issues now being discussed in the world at large. He is a Radical in opinion, and is able on all occasions to give a reason for the faith that is in him. And he is pretty sure to adorn that reason with an ornamental fret-work of puns of the most ingenious and elaborate sort. It is as a colloquial humorist, in fact, that Mr. Jones is locally famous—though to be sure GRIP has made his name known far beyond this locality. The standing trial of his life is his being constantly confused in the public mind with another Sam Jones—also somewhat notorious—but about as unlike the subject of our sketch as could well be conceived. This Sam is by no means evangelical in his views, nor orthodox in his political opinions, nor does he use such slang as the other. By profession our Sam Jones is an artist, his special line being the designing of subjects for stained glass windows. That, in fact, is about the only connection he has with the Church.
