

Pay Good Teachers.

(John S. Roeseler in N. E. Journal of Education.)

Good teachers deserve liberal wages. Poor teachers are dear at any price. I would not have a poorly qualified teacher teach my children even if she agreed to do it for nothing, no, not even if she were willing to pay me money for letting her get the practice. I hold the minds of my children too sacred to allow them to be experimented upon by bunglers. I know too well that it will dwarf their minds, give them a distaste for proper study, and fix bad habits that a lifetime of proper teaching cannot eradicate. I would not place a costly watch for repair in the hands of an unskilled, every-day laborer, much less the mind of my child, the most complicated machine, possibly, in the hands of an unskilled teacher who knows little or nothing of the workings of the human mind. Teachers who have finished a high school course at least understand a little of the A, B, C's of the human mind, but it requires normal school instruction to learn to understand something of the necessary combinations.
