

capital to make large or long-term investments in product and staff development. In addition, the sector tends to have little expertise in business, marketing and distribution.