Turkey Has Dug Own Grave, Says Asquith—Naval Blockade Sounds Germany's Doom.

Canadian Press Despatch.
LONDON, Nov. 9, (Midnight).—That England is prepared to carry on the war to the bitter end, with every confidence in the result, was the tenor of speeches at the annual banquet inaugurating the new lord mayor of London at Guildhall this evening, delivered by the men who are responsible for the conduct of the war.

Notable speeches were made by the prime minister, H. H. Asquith, Field Marshal Lord Kitchener, secretary for war, and Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty. Lord Kitchener, whose massive figure, clad in service khaki, towered over the audience of a thousand men and women in the historic building, while expressing satisfaction at the response to his call for men and the progress of their military training, impressed upon the nation that the war would be a long one, and he would require more men and still more until the enemy is crushed.

Lord Kitchener also made a quiet reference to England's army, which, he said, "has proved itself to be not so contemptible an engine of war as some were disposed to consider it." Lord Kitchener, whose massive figure, clad in service khaki, towered over the audience of a thousand men and women in the historic building, while expressing satisfaction at the response to his call for men and the progress of their military training, impressed upon the nation that the war would be a long one, and he would require more men and still more until the enemy is crushed.

It is difficult to measure the full influence of the naval pressure in the early stages of the war, but it will speed the doom of Germany as surely as a winter strikes the leaves from the trees.

As to the losses suffered he said: "The punishment we receive is clear and definite; the punishment we inflict is very often unmeasured, and when unmeasured, very often cannot be measured. But time will tell."

The first lord also pointed out that despite the losses, the navy was stronger in every way than at the beginning of the war.

Premier Asquith, who devoted much of his speech to the war with Turkey, said it meant "the death knell to Ottoman domination, not only in Europe, but in Asia."

He, too, predicted that the war would be a long one, and he would require more men and still more until the enemy is crushed.

Cronje, a member of the legislature, near Doornberg. In the course of the fighting Gen. De Wet's son, Daniel, was killed. "The government is sending strong reinforcements to Cronje."

HUNDREDS OF BRITONS PLACED UNDER ARREST

Wholesale Raids Made on English Households All Thru Germany.

Canadian Press Despatch.
LONDON, Nov. 9.—The Hague reports that the arrest of British subjects in Berlin on Friday morning has been followed by something like a wholesale raid on every English household in the country. The number arrested in Berlin exceeds 900, in addition to 100 arrested in Dresden, many at Leipzig, 80 in Hanover, and 400 in Hamburg. The number taken in Munich is not reported, but the English population there is considerable. Those arrested in Berlin were put in trains and taken to the racetrack at Ruhleben. Most of them were escorted thru the streets on foot to Alexander Platz station.

SENSORS WILL PROHIBIT ALL FAKE PICTURES

Gruesome Battle Scenes Banned From Motion Picture Theatres in Ontario.

SOME TO BE CALLED IN

Scenes Showing Men Killed During Fighting Will All Be Cut Out.

George E. Armstrong, chief of the Ontario Board of Censors, placed the ban on moving pictures of the war yesterday. Following the presentation of the grand jury to Judge Coatsworth on Saturday, drawing attention to manifestly fake representations of battle scenes which have been shown at some of the biggest of the city theatres, Mr. Armstrong took action and made an ironclad ruling that no picture showing the gruesome side of battle will be permitted in any of the moving picture theatres of Ontario.

"There are many pictures which are at present being shown throughout the country," he said yesterday, "which already have been approved, but these will all be called in and censored, and no offending story will be passed. Hinder Enlisting

"Before the war broke out many pictures were exhibited which helped to stir the patriotic feeling of the young people, but the pictures being shown now, in the opinion of the censors, have quite the reverse effect. "With women, particularly, it is contended that seeing men falling around the field at this time would raise their feelings to such a pitch that it would be difficult to obtain the consent of a wife to allow her husband to proceed to the front, and in the case of a mother such pictures would have a strong influence in preventing her son from enlisting."

No Killing Allowed.
"Yesterday afternoon a four-reel military drama was placed before the censors. In the fourth reel three men are seen to fall during a short engagement. These few feet were immediately ordered to be taken out of use story, "The Boer War," a five-reel story, is charge have not yet been named.

Canada's Force Evidence Of Might of Dominions

Lord Kitchener Praises "Very Fine Body of Men Forming Contingent"—Premier Asquith Declares Triumph of Civilization Over Prussian Militarism Must Be Absolute.

LORD KITCHENER: It is well to remember that the enemy will have to reckon with the forces of the great dominions, the vanguard of which we have already welcomed in the very fine body of men forming the contingents from Canada and Newfoundland, while from Australia, New Zealand and other parts are coming in quick succession soldiers to fight for the imperial cause. And besides all these there are training in this country over 1,250,000 men, eagerly waiting for a call to bear their part in the great struggle.

WINSTON CHURCHILL: The economic pressure brought about by the naval blockade will spell Germany's ultimate doom. In a fortnight or a month strikes the leaves from the trees. The British navy is stronger at every point than hers in the Caucasus, causing much damage.

PREMIER ASQUITH: We shall not sheath the sword until Belgium recovers more than all that she has sacrificed, until France is adequately sure against the menace of aggression, until the rights of the smaller nationalities of Europe are placed on an unassailable foundation, until the military domination of Prussia is fully and finally destroyed. That is a great task, worthy of a great nation. It means that every man among us should give what he has to do and what he can.

EX-PREMIER BALFOUR: We fight not for ourselves alone, but for civilization and for all small states who seek to follow their own ideals, without interference from any unauthorized and insolent aggressor.

PAUL COMBON, French Ambassador: The allies have not sought domination, but simply desired to save European civilization. Europe has suffered previous invasions of barbarism, but has never seen barbarism raised to a degree taught by the intellectual elite. These professors of brutality believed that they had provided for everything, but had not provided that they would hurt themselves against the conscience of the civilized world.

"Dr. Rubensana has now been informed that while it appreciates the loyal sentiments of the natives it does not desire to avail itself of the services as combatants of citizens of non-European descent in the present hostilities."

POSITIONS HELD BY THE ALLIES ALL ALONG LINE

Germans Have Renewed Their Offensive in the Vicinity of Ypres and Dixmude in Attempt to Break Thru the Centre.

REINFORCEMENTS BEING SENT TO ASSIST ATTACK ON COAST

Belief is Expressed That Germans Have Given Up Their First Plan of Resisting Russian Advance on Positions on the Warthe River.

Direct Copyrighted Cable to The Toronto World.
LONDON, Nov. 9.—Events in both the eastern and western theatres of war are moving with such rapidity that developments of a most colossal nature are overshadowed in a few hours by others even more colossal. The outstanding fact of today is that the Russians are in Germany and that the kaiser has launched his master effort at the French coast, with a supreme struggle now on for the possession of Dixmude and Ypres as the first phase of what is certain to be the last period of the fighting on the present front. Assuredly the allies or the invaders will win or lose. The outcome is awaited with entire confidence.

FIGHTING IS FIERCER THAN EVER

Following the comparative lull of the past few days in Belgium and along the line in northwestern France, the Germans have thrown six hundred thousand men into the fight for Ypres, held by British and French forces. When it seemed that the Omega had been reached in the previous conflicts on his front, the fighting of today is declared to be fiercer than ever before. The opposing armies simply fly at one another's throats and the attacking regiments come back in shreds. But despite everything the allies are still holding and have actually advanced at several points around Ypres and further west. The main German assaults are understood to have been delivered southeast of Ypres, all of which were frustrated.

INTENSE FOG CHECKS FIGHTING.

The following official communication was issued by the French war office tonight:
"There has been no notable modification in the situation by reason of the difficulties which an intense fog has created in connection with operations of any extent."
"In the north the day has been good. We have maintained our positions between the River Lys and Langemarck, and made appreciable progress between Langemarck and Dixmude."

HEAVY ATTACKS REPULSED.

The French war office issued a statement this afternoon which throws some light on the general position of the contending hosts. This statement says:
"On our left wing the Germans have undertaken again an offensive movement on Dixmude in the region of Ypres. Particularly to the south-east of Ypres their attacks have been everywhere repulsed."
"At the end of the day, referring to the entire front between Dixmude and the Lys, we have made some progress along the major part of the line. Nevertheless, our advance is slow on account of the offensive movements undertaken by the enemy and because of the strong organization the enemy already has had the time to effect around his points of support. Since the beginning of the fighting, the fog, furthermore, has made operations difficult, particularly between the Lys and the Oise."

MAJOR OPERATION UNDER WAY

From these bare and meagre details it can be drawn that a major operation is under way in the west. The opposing trenches are so close together that it is impossible to bring heavy guns into play for fear of inflicting as much damage on friend as on foe. Bayonet fighting is the order of the day and sanguinary contests mark every hour of the 24. A heavy fog which rolled in from the North Sea served to complicate matters still further today. Aviators were helpless in the face of this damp blanket and cavalry patrols were in constant danger of stumbling into a host of their enemies.

YPRES IS STORM CENTRE.

The storm centre is at Ypres and here the British have concentrated their effectiveness. Nothing which the Germans have been able to do has ruffled the calm of their defense. The German guns shell the British positions, their troops come forward at the double, are
