The argument had been advanced that the depletion of the rural population was the result of the introducof improved machinery. THE SUNDAY WORLD

To-morrow's paper will be interesting from many points of view. In the six separate sections which make up The Sunday World, 46 pages in all, you will get a variety of information, as well as many pleasing pictures.

THE ILLUSTRATED SECTION:

We have grouped an exceptionally fine lot of photographs of Canadian outdoor girls in the parks of Toronto.

A half-page reproduction of a black and white sketch entitled "The Bank Failure," which was drawn by Max Cowper for Black and White after the suspension of the Glasgow Bank in 1878.

Another half page deals with the exhibition of Dutch paintings in the gallery of the Woman's Art Association.

Another half page, depicting the winter manoeuvres of the Toronto Boy Scouts.

As well as numerous other news and art pictures. THE MAGAZINE SECTION:

This is the four-color section, and we know that there is nothing so good as it printed in Canada. On the front page is an attractive illustrated article on the earliest art of man. The color editorial on the back treats of a son's duty to his father and mother, instancing a case in the New York courts where an opulent, skyrocket banker, haled to the bar of justice, sneers at his aged parents in poverty and denied that he was their son. Two excellent pages for women, conducted by Madame Cavalieri and Lady Duff-Gordon. Other special features of this section are: Louis Joseph Vance's story: "Plunder Island"; Mr. Good's comment on current affairs, a page for musical people and Mr. French's literary contributions and criticisms.

Each week we present a page of music. For this week the song is "Land of the Beautiful Dream," as sung in "Alma, Where Do You Live." In the music stalls you pay 25 cents for this. In The Sunday World you get it without extra charge.

Another of Nell Brinkley's superb sketches. Charming nature stories; humorous and serious comment on news stories of the week; articles by T. P. O'Connor, M.P., and John E. Redmond, M.P., on the political situation in Britain. Two pages of automobile news and gossip, two pages of stage news and a full Wallace Nesbitt, who have made reciprocity a study and have publicly expressed their views, Mr. Russell said: "I do not condemn our government demands. Those of Ontario only had one great problem to solve in that delegation. It was that of the tariff. He expressed the opinion that the influence of the agricultural implement wing of the manufacturers was visible in the results of the reciprocity negotiations. He was afraid that it might be possible that this feature of the proposed arrangement might result in their being thrown out by the United States senate.

In conclusion, he contended that the cost of production in Canada was as cheap as in the United States, and said this should place the Canadian manufacturer on equal footing with the American manufacturers.

Have now been announced. The changes have been too sweeping to permit of my attempting an estimate of their effects. First, however, we will see whether congress is prepared to pass the agreement. If it does not, it will best illustrate the attitude of the country in the past. If it passes, then we will all have opportunity of viewing the effect on our farm prosperity, for you as farmers have been too sweeping to permit of my attempting an estimate of their effects. First, however, we will see whether congress is prepared to pass the agreement. If it does not, it will best illustrate the attitude of the country in the past. If it passes, then at your word, and nearly every kind of farm produce placed on the reciprocal free list. "It was an important source of revenue to the san important source of revenue to the country and it was an encouragement for the building up of manufacturing industries. Deserting the Farm. In his reply Mr. Drury expressed the opinion that Mr. Russell's contention that the rural population had also decreased in England and the United States did not prove that the depletion of Canada's rural sections was not due to the tariff. The United States was facing the same problem, while the English rural population decreased States firms to Canada. The only benefit from this was in an increased population to sell produce to. In any event, therefore, he held that the Canadian consumer paid the duty whether the goods were manufactured across the border or ln Canada.

Interests Are One.

Mr. Russell reverted in his reply to the joint interest of the manufacturer and the farmer. Referring to cream separators, he said that the increase in cream separator production was the result of a demand through the could scarcely be supplied. He referred to the object of the Manuel facturers' Association, and declared three men. Jack Thompson, J. B. facturers' Association, and declared facturers' Association, and declared they had never done anything to form any combination in restraint of trade or to raise prices. If they had belittled the western deputation it was a mistake. They had no intention of belittling the agricultural interests. He concluded by expressing the opinion that the interests of the nation lay along the line of mutual helpfulness of the manufacturer and the farmer.
