er of your country's honor, I know full well, and your fortunes will always be followed by me with deep feelings of pride, affection and interest.

Impressive Ceremonials.

Late to-night the body of King Edward, enclosed in an oak casket, was transferred to the throne room of Buckingham Palace, where it rests on a catafalque covered with the same purple pall which enshrouded the coffin of Queen Victoria. A silken rosegirl has been spread over the pall.

Contrary to the original intention that the body of King Edward should be quietly and privately removed from Buckingham Palace to Westminster Hall, on next Tuesday, it now has been decided that the removal shall be accomplished with considerable ceremony and the cortege will be an imposing military spectacle. The house of commons will assemble in the morning at 10 o'clock to receive the body. Following the three days during which the body will lie in state, it is possible that, instead of the funeral procession proceeding direct to Paddington station, the casket will be borne to Westminster Abbey for the reading there of the first part of the burial service. According to the original intention, the body will be completed later in the day at Windsor Castle.

All the churches throughout the United Kingdom are arranging to hold memorial services upon the day of the state funeral.

City Becoming Normal.

Except for the appearance of mourning emblems along the streets, the fluttering of flags at half mast and the drawn blinds at the leading club houses and in government offices, a stranger visiting London to-day would find little outward evidence of the momentous occurrences which have attracted the attention of the world within the past three days.

The ordinary life of the metropolis has again fallen back to its accustomed channels.

Just as soon as the funeral of King Edward is held, it is probable that the court physicians will urge the Queen-mother to take a long vacation, and she is heard to express a desire to go to the doctors fear a collapse after she relaxes from the present strain.

The royal yacht, Alexandra, left Dover to-day for Calais, to bring the Dowager Czarina Dagmar, Alexandra's sister, to England. The two sisters are greatly attached to each other, and the doctors believe the arrival of the Dowager Czarina will prove a benefit to the Queen-mother.

The Alexandra was escorted by the destroyers Chelmer and Kennet.

An Omission.

No sooner was the splendor of yesterday's procession ceremonies past, it was learned to-day, than an egregious blunder was discovered in the ab-
