The third period started six men a side, rith Sheweil st.ll serving a portion of a enalty, but Dye departed for tripping, so with Sh penalty, but Dye departed for tripping, so the teams were even again. Then came the spiendid rushes of Gratton, with the success mentioned above, followed by Hughes' lone rush, which stopped the bar-rage of the Red and White net. Fox at this stage was just eaching up the ice, as far as speed goes, but he usually had too much headway on to manipulate the puck. He missed lots of chances and did not seem much in a mood to pass to his teammates. The play livened up, but the play-ers were almost wobbling in their shoes, and the least little bump sent them sprawing on the ice. Another series of penalties and the teams were battling four sprawing on the ice. Another series of penalties and the teams were battiling four a side, and then Aura Lee got the edge playing six men to four, which proved easy for Fox to rush and pass to Dye near the net, who promptly notched the eighth goel of the game. The Kingston defence were helpless equinst the attack, as their forwards were all in, so they used their weight with good advantage. After a series of attempts to break thru the Kingston defence Hudson hudled them, but hit the ice. However, from his posi-tion there he managed to scoop the puck into the net: Gratton, who had been try-ing like a trojan up to this stage, col-lopsed and had to be carried off. He gamely returned a few minutes later, but the rame ended with the score still stand-ing 7 to 2 in favor of Aura Lee. TIKE a collar button, a corkscrew has a bad habit of losing itself just when you need it most. L Here's your chance to get a handsome, nickeled, vest-pocket corkscrew-one that is worth keeping for special occasions.

This is not an ordinary corkscrew. It is a specially-designed little instrument that can be carried in the vest pocket, or on your key ring or watch chain. The point is guarded so that it cannot tear your pocket or stick your finger. Besides being a first-class corkscrew, it is also an excellent cap-opener for use in removing the caps from bottles of ginger ale, soda water, etc.

For your name and address

We want to be in touch with men who will appreciate a good corkscrew—whether they use it for opening ginger ale, soda water, or other things that you do not mention out loud in Ontario. Therefore, we offer it absolutely free of charge. There are no strings whatever to this offer. Just write your name and address (a postcard will do) and mail to-

JAMES B BROWN, Box 360, MONTREAL, P.Q. If you have any men friends who also would appreciate a corkscrew—send their names and addresses with your own Do it Now-This Offer May Not Appear Again
