Australians may be, such a population could hardly hope permanently to retain so large a slice of the world's surface if the rest of the empire were entired.

face if the rest of the empire were engaged in a life-and-death struggle."

The Earl of Dudley also made the following answer to some criticisms which had been made concerning him:

"I see in the newspapers that the prime minister of Australia has commented somewhat indignantly upon some remarks which I am supposed to have made about the corruption of professional politicians in Australia. As Mr. Fisher appears to have read a very much misreported version of my words.

"In such an emergency the present much misreported version of my words, that, in my opinion, there were too many professional politicians in Australia. In-

LOST THEIR POSITIONS THROUGH

There are Hundreds of Men in Canada who have had this bitter experience, and still continue to Drink because they fool themselves by saying they are going to Quit, but never do it. They no doubt are sincere in their intentions, but Liquor has got the better of them, consequently they lose their positions and their Families are the chief sufferers. Think what it would mean to you and those dependent upon you if you could be freed for all time from the craving and desire for liquor.
