EXCELLENT SHOW AT THE STAR TONIGHT

The pictures that were shown at the Star Theatre last night, and which will be shown again tonight, are exceptionally good. The complete list follows:

"When Society Calls."—This is a Vitagraph with Lillian Walker, Eddie Williams, Courtenay Foote and Audrey Berry in the cast. The lure of society leads the parents to separate them, and the neglect of their child. Her death brings them to a realization of their selfishness. In their sorrow and regret they are reunited.

"The Ghost of Granleigh."—This picture shows how a careful husband reformed, through the continuous appearance of a ghost. Edison's best players, such as Bigelow Cooper, Laura Sawyer, Herbert Prior, Charles Ogle, and Yale Benner take part in this picture.

"The Two Cowards."—This is a Lubin Drama, and shows how two men in the same business, prove themselves cowards, before a young lady who is admired by them both.

"Marion, the Holy Terror."—This is a fine comedy in which a girl from the city creates a sensation among the country fellows, for miles around. She proves to be more than a match for the boys on the ranch and plays many jokes on the cow-punchers. This picture is a scream throughout.

"Doc Yak, the Marksman."—One of those funny cartoon pictures to wind up this fine programme.
