New York Dec. 26—Prominent New York motion picture exhibitors express doubt if "Fatty" Arbuckle films well be shown here or elsewhere, despite his reinstatement to screen respectability. Their doubts arose from the emportant at Hollywood that the official ban placed on Arbuckle's films at the time of Virginia Rappe's death had been lifted.

Although Hugo Riesenfeld, director of the Rivoli and Rialto theatres, and others said they thought his pictures should be shown to test public opinion, Charles L. O'Reilly, president of the New York State Motion Picture Theatre Owners' Association, spoke for a larger group when he said he thought it likely the public would turn thumbs down on the comedian in advance of a showing of his pictures.

Meanwhile the tide of public opposition to Arbuckle's return to the screen was mounting, and the first formal protests to be issued here on behalf of organizations came out. They were from the Young Men's Christian Association of North America and the New York Federation of Churches, representing 1,100 Protestant congregations in the greater city.

views. A formal statement will be forthcoming at the annual meeting in Albany January 15, he said.

"So far as I can learn there has been no public demand for Arbuckle's return to the screen and I think, speaking for myself alone, that it would have been better to wait until he public asked for him. We were consulted by Mr. Hays before he banished Arbuckle, but the news of his reinstatement came as a surprise to the exhibitors. Many believe, of course, that it would have been better if Mr. Hays had sounded public sentiment through the theater owners, who are closer to it than any other group in the business." In Boston.

Boston, Mass., Dec. 26—There is diversity of opinion among state and city officials, courts and the police regarding the showing of Arbuckle films in Massachusetts and Boston. Colonel Alfred E. Mayor Curley declares the films will not be permitted in Boston, but the Mayor spoke before he consulted with his fellows on the Censorship Board.
