Hair Dyes for Colored Folks.

Nothing so much surprises negroes from the South visiting New York as the elaboration with which colored women in the cities dress their hair. The stage has made people that have not been south familiar with the way negroes dress their hair down there—little twisted and pomased nightlip by nothing the humbout it when properly managed, but city women will have none of it.

There are half a dozen establishment on the west side where colored women get their hair dressed. The largest of them is run by a Hebrew, a blood relation of the late Mother Mandelbaum.
