the opposition complained of the limitation of autonomy in the school clause, but that did not amount to a row of pins compared with the limitation of autonomy in the clause. He moved the following amendment:

"Provided that the foregoing shall not prejudice the right of the parliament of Canada expropriation or otherwise to obtain a relinquishment by the said company of the company's rights under section 16, chapter 1 of the statutes of 1881 aforesaid."

Mr. Fitzpatrick said that the amendments and facilitate progress.

A brief exchange of views between Borden, Fitzpatrick and Fielding resulted in an arrangement being arrived at that when consideration of the bill is resumed to take up the distribution clause last and either the educational or land clause first, as the opposition may desire.

Mr. Fielding would not promise to defer consideration of the bill longer than Thursday without consulting the premier, but suggested that the matter might be arranged tomorrow,
