

I did not give her a cigarette. After she stopped crying, she lay there relaxed and composed again. It was then that I had several interviews with her.

She also states that when I said I told her if she would not say anything I would not help her. That is not correct.

I talked for a while and then told her to dress.

I rejoined Mr. Gill and told her she was a nice girl and not "stiff".

While this was going on Mr. Gill was standing guard to keep away other people.

She went to the kitchen again I returned to Mrs. Bates to come with me into the room. She came without any form other than the form I had deposited in my hand. She seems to understand immediately what was expected of her. She undresses herself, laid down on the bed, pulled up her legs and spread them and waits for me to have several interviews.
