DOMINION DAY

TIO-DAY is the forty-eighth anniversary of the confederation of the Provinces of Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, which took place on first of July, 1867. Manitoba became a Province of the Dominion in 1870; British Columbia joined the confederation in vinces in 1905. Sadly diminished must be the ranks of federation of the separate independent provinces of British North America in "the sixties" of the last century, though many now elderly men remember that as boys they heard their fathers and grandpro or con. #### THE BEACON, VOLUME 27.

THE BEACON today enters its second year under its present management, and begins a new volume, Vol., 27. Formerly the volumes began with the third issue in the month of May, but owing to the fact that the paper stopped publication on April 9, 1914, and when it was resumed on July 2, the old serial numbering was continued, Volume 26, began on August 6. Though the last volume will have only 47 numbers instead of the usual 52 or 53, the change is advantageous from the publisher's point of view.
